Capture Of Nanking Appears Imminent

Today

The Way of a Ship.
Mark Twain Would Wonder.
Dog and Perfume Ladies.
And Only One Star.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

THE way of a ship in the midst of the sea has changed since Solomon, the son of David, wrote his Proverbs. The hardy Phoenician, bringing precious freight for Solomon's temple, and the American tourist of the General Grant-Mark Twain period would wonder at the ships of 1927.

This is written on the Aquitania, one of the many floating cities that cross the ocean, as free from romance as the moving pictures shown on Deck A. Whoever has crossed in old days rubs his eyes, like Rip Van Winkle.

Along the deck, much wider than Fifth avenue's sidewalk, and almost as steady, comes a wheezy, short, fat lady, leading a small dog to match, with all its owner's qualities, plus a disposition to snap at passing legs. They turn at the notice, "No dogs allowed forward of this sign."

The dog wears a beautiful ribbon, the lady, possibly a grandmother, wears brilliant pink silk stockings, of such high visibility that an old time captain might have put her in irons. Much gold on her dress and on her cheeks profusely spread the rouge that Jezabel wore, in Racine's description, pour reparer, des ans, l'irreparable outrage.

That modern seafaring lady passes, and here comes another, 40 years younger, 40 times worse. As she passes, in bright red, she scatters all the perfumes of Arabia, which are the worst, stickiest perfumes on earth, and smokes an ostentatious cigarette.

The cigarette is used as a wand, waved to emphasize a speech that she is making, deeply appreciated by a young woman with black, sleek, greasy hair, a stomach caving inward, a foreign accent, and no more back head than a Russian wolf hound.

The young woman's father probably has money.

Hundreds spend a week in this floating hotel, not realizing that they are on the ocean until the fog horn blows. Then some say "I don't like that sound." The more nervous drown the fog horn with two more cocktails.

Modern American wealth has changed ships into cocktail and breakfast food emporiums. There are 30 kinds of mucous membrane destroyers listed as cocktails on the smoking room pro-

The Review-Tribune Offers to Its Readers Booklet on Houses

"Home." What a magic word this is. To men and women the world over, the mere mention of home calls up some cherished vision or other—some ideal home. It may be only a humble cottage or it may be a stately mansion. But it is home—the end to which every enterprise and endeavor tends.

This bureau has for distribution a booklet that will aid you in selecting suitable plans for a home of your own. It contains exterior views and floor plans of 30 frame houses which are architecturally correct. Almost every type of home is shown—the dainty cottage—the inviting bungalow—the comfortable two story house.

No prospective builder can afford to be without this booklet. You can get your copy from our Washington Information Bureau if you send in your name and address with six cents in stamps for return postage and handling. In filling out the coupon be sure to write clearly.

CITIZEN POSSE SEEK SLAYERS OF THREE MEN

ONE MAN INJURED

Two Suspects in Tragedy Being Held at Logan.

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A posse of forty citizens and officers today was combing the hills in the vicinity of Island Creek, near here, for a group of supposed moonshiners who yesterday attacked a party of 10 campers with rifles from ambush, instantly killing three of the campers, and wounding a fourth man.

The campers, who said they were hunting ginseng, included a state prohibition officer, and his son, both of whom were included in those killed. Officers are working on the theory that the attackers, believing the party was hunting for moonshine stills, of which several were later found in the vicinity, organized the attack to protect their stills.

Those killed were Edward Hensley, 50, prohibition officer; his son, Donald, 19; and Ernest Marcum. Howard Tomblin, seriously injured, was brought to a hospital here.

The attack occurred at a remote spot in the forest, at noon yesterday, and the first news was brought here late last night by David Hensley, a brother of Edward Hensley, who made his way from the camp on foot to Logan, to obtain help. A posse was quickly formed and the bodies were brought here.

Two suspects were arrested in the vicinity when the posse arrived, but no charges have been filed against them, and officers said they had little evidence to connect them with the shooting.

NATIONALISTS ABANDON SEAT OF GOVERNMENT AS GUNS ROAR

British Warships Rescue Foreign Residents in City.

LOOTING BEGINS

Shanghai Authorities Throw Extra Guard Around City.

By Alfred Meyer.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17. — The capture of Nanking, capital city of the Nationalist government, by the northern troops of General Sun Chuan-Fang, was regarded as a certainty today as the Northerners opened a heavy bombardment of the city. The Nationalists are hastily evacuating the city.

Pukow Suburbs Fall.

The British warship Wivern took off safely all foreign residents of Nanking this morning. The exact number is not known. Looting is reported to have broken out in Nanking.

Following an intense bombardment, and fighting [illegible] according to word received here today. The northerners entered the two suburbs on Tuesday afternoon. Pukow is a point of strategic importance from a military viewpoint and northern troops have been converging upon the city for a week.

Defenders Demoralized.

The Cantonese defenders of Wuyi and Puchen were thrown into panic by the cannonading and fled precipitately towards Nanking.

Twenty thousand Cantonese, sent from Nanking to defend Wuhu, are reported to be returning. Nanking is crowded with demoralized southern soldiers, who are unwilling to return to the fighting front.

The Shanghai authorities are making strong precautions for protection of the city following receipt of news that five trainloads of Pei Chung Hsi adherents have entrained for this place. These troops are reported to be unruly and it is feared that they are seeking loot. Discipline of the soldiers has broken down following the resignation of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek as commander in chief.

PRIESTS ATTEND CLEVELAND MEET

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

David Reisling was given a judgment of $191 yesterday by a jury in municipal court in his claim against the Walter L. Main circus which exhibited here several months ago.

Buckeye Motor company was awarded judgment of $200 against Maize and Lois Kinsey, while Dr. A. L. Turner was allowed $694 and costs in the action brought against R. E. Hoopes and the Fisher Development company for return of money and cancellation of land contract.

$1,000 Reward in Boston Bomb Case

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The state of Massachusetts offered today a $1,000 reward for information leading to the identification of the person or persons responsible for the bombing of the East Milton home of Lewis McHardy, a Sacco-Vanzetti case juror.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller suggested the reward to the executive council. The suggestion was adopted promptly.

The Milton Post, American Legion, sent to the governor's office today a resolution deploring the bombing, pledging support to him in his "courageous stand" and urging him to "use every force to bring to justice the cowardly bomber."

TWO ARE HURT IN AUTO CRASH AT BLOOMFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson Victims of Accident.

FIVE UNINJURED

Johnson Car, Which is Overturned Badly Damaged.

[illegible] five others escaped unhurt in a collision between a Buick touring car, driven by Robert Birbeck, of Elm street, and an Oldsmobile, owned and driven by Harry Johnson, Bloomfield potter, which occurred on the Calcutta-East Liverpool road near the Bloomfield church, about 11 o'clock last night.

Mr. Johnson was cut and lacerated by broken glass while Mrs. Johnson was bruised and suffered from shock. Their three-year-old daughter, Jean and four passengers in the Birbeck car were not hurt.

Johnson, who was enroute to his home, claimed that he had just made the turn off the Calcutta road to the road leading into Bloomfield when the Birbeck car, which had been following him crashed into his machine. The Johnson car was turned over on its side, the windows being shattered and the top wrecked. Birbeck's car was not so badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were assisted to their home only a short distance from the scene of the accident where they received medical attention. Their car was brought to town by the McElray Brothers' wrecking equipment.

CHARGE VIOLATION OF DOG MEASURE

Frederick Alaimo, proprietor of a shoe repairing shop, Broadway, near Sixth street, is the first dog owner to be arrested here under the new law which became effective last week prohibiting dogs running at large between sundown and sunset.

He was arrested on a warrant issued at the request of C. E. Donahey, of Damascus, who was appointed recently to the position of county dog warden. Arraigned before Judge Jesse C. Hanley in municipal court his trial was postponed until a later date in order to allow a study of the law's provisions.

Boy is Gun Victim.

CANTON, O., Aug. 17. — Edward Herdlicha, 16, is dead here today, the victim of a rifle shot accidentally discharged while four youths were hunting frogs in a boat near Millersburg. The bullet of a .22 calibre rifle struck his forehead when he picked the firearm from the bottom of the boat.

BRING REMAINS OF ARMOUR TO UNITED STATES FOR INTERMENT

Body of Millionaire Packer to be Taken to Chicago.

DEATH A SHOCK

Deceased Once Was World's Second Richest Man.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The body of J. Ogden Armour, prominent Chicago packer who died yesterday in London following a long illness of typhoid fever, will be brought here for burial in the family plot by the side of his father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour.

Mrs. Armour, the widow, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mithchell, Jr., her son-in-law and daughter, will accompany the remains to Chicago. They were at Mr. Armour's bedside when he died.

News of Mr. Armour's passing cast a pall of gloom over Chicago where he spent his lifetime building the great packing business founded by his father. News of his death was a great shock as it was not known generally that his condition was serious.

Leaders in all phases of the city's industrial, commercial, civic and educational activities joined in paying tribute to Mr. Armour's [illegible] from active participation in business. Five years ago he resigned as president of Armour and Co., and was elected chairman of the board. Later he disposed of much of his vast holding in the concern under a trusteeship.

Mr. Armour, self-made son of a self-made father, inherited at 38 the great packing industry his father, Philip D. Armour had founded. He developed it from a $100,000,000 a year business to one of $500,000,000.

At the height of his career he was rated the world's richest man next to John D. Rockefeller.

Speculation was rife today over the extent of the fortune left by Armour. Estimates of his estate vary from a few thousand dollars to $20,000,000. The exact figure probably will not be known until his will is filed for probate.

Reverses during the post-war depression period wiped out the greater part of his huge fortune. He met losses of between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 to protect the name of Armour. To what extent he succeeded in retrieving a part of his wealth is a subject of conjecture.

SISTER OF JAMES NAGEL IS DEAD

Mrs. J. D. Stevens, former resident of East Liverpool, died today in her home at McKeesport, Pa.

FUNERAL PLANS

Services in Church Built by Deceased for Parents.

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 17.—Unaccompanied by pomp or ceremony the bronze casket containing the body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary was borne into Gary Memorial church here today by ten farmer boys.

The only member of the immediate family present was Mrs. Elsa Gary Dyce, a niece of the late industrial king.

Garland Grange, brother of "Red" Grange, former University of Illinois footbal star, was one of those who acted as preliminary palbearers.

Less than thirty persons witnessed the arrival of the hearse and two accompanying automobiles. Four motorcycle policemen cleared the state highway for the cortege.

Mrs. Gary and her two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, are expected later this afternoon.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, was to arrive in Chicago for a brief moment today before being borne to Wheaton, Ill., on special train.

Leaders of the industrial world waited at the depot at which the private car of the Twentieth Century, carrying the body of the great leader, was due to arrive. The bronze casket will be transferred without ceremony to the suburban special train for the last stage of the journey to his final resting place in the little city that observed his early struggles as a promising attorney.

GOLDEN EAGLE AND ALOHE ARE LEADING DASH FOR DOLE PRIZE

Woolaroc Believed to be in Third Place Position.

MISS DORAN LAST

Thirty-two Ships Stand Watch to Render Assistance.

On the last leg of the greatest race in the history of aviation four planes were believed nearing Hawaii at 8 a. m. today, Pacific coast time. Two were believed to be in the lead— the Hearst plane Golden Eagle and Martin Jensen's Aloha.

A fairly close third was the Woolaroc with Art Goebel as pilot, fourth in the race was believed the Miss Doran, piloted by Auggie Pedlar and carrying Miss Mildred Doran, Flint, Mich. school teacher, as a passenger.

Leaders "Sister Ships"

From the only plane carrying sending apparatus came a message through the United States naval radio station at Wailupe at 7 a. m., Pacific coast time announcing that the Woolaroc [illegible] miles out of San Francisco and stating that "everything was running on schedule on the last 700 mile lap.

Inasmuch as the fragmentary wireless reports of ships had placed both the Golden Eagle and the Aloha ahead of the Woolaroc and the Miss Doran well behind Goebel's plane, it was believed these positions were being maintained on the last leg of the race.

In effect the Golden Eagle and the Aloha are "sister ships" although built by different manufacturers and of slightly different type. Both are the work of the same designer, however. The Golden Eagle has shown its speed [illegible] new record between San Francisco and [illegible] Angeles.

Woolaroc Nears Goal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.— A message to radio corporation from the S. S. City of Los Angeles reported the position of the plane Woolaroc a 8:59 Pacific coast time as being 1,950

WOMAN SLAYER SLOWLY DYING

MARYSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Refusing to submit to an operation for the removal of a tumor because of her religious belief, Mrs. Katherine Kaber, 50, serving a life sentence for the murder of her husband, at the woman's reformatory here, is reported slowly dying by the prison physician, Dr. C. D. Mills. Mrs. Kaber was convicted at Cleveland six years ago, following the death of Dan Kaber, Lakewood publisher.

Mrs. Kaber's illness was discovered when Superintendent Louise Mitterdorff noted her listless actions in the laundry where she was employed. Following Dr. Mills report she was relieved from further duty and an operation was suggested.

BOMB HOME OF POLICE OFFICIAL

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 17.—The home of Edouardo Santiago, chief investigator for the Buenos Aires police, was wrecked by a bomb explosion today. Santiago and members of his family escaped injury.

Police believe the bombing was perpetrated by anarchists as revenge for the arrest, recently, of Horacio Bodarcco, alleged anarchist leader.

SCHOOL FACULTY FOR 1927-1928 TERM, NUMBERING 155, COMPLETE — BUILDING ASSIGNMENTS ANNOUNCED

With one exception, that caused by a recent resignation, faculty of the East Liverpool public schools for the term opening Tuesday, September 6, is completed, according to an announcement by Superintendent of Schools Charles S. McVay today.

The elementary school faculty numbers 116 while high school teachers, supervisors and clerks total 39, making a grand total of 155. This is the largest number ever to be employed in the local schools.

Another examination for teachers not holding certificates will be held in the High school building, Wednesday August 31 beginning at 9 a. m. No teacher will be permitted to teach in the local schools during the next school term who does not hold a teacher's certificate.

No meeting of the school board will be held Thursday night when board members will meet with city council to request the city's co-operation in a movement to improve the grounds surrounding the Pleasant Heights school building and also discuss the proposed draining of Patterson field, school's athletic grounds.

Here is Superintendent McVay's assignment of teachers by buildings:

Central.

1, Eva Shaw; 2, Mildred Ankrim; 3, Bernice Manor; 4, Gladys Swickard; 5, Edna Wells; 6, Grace McNutt; 7, Agnes Pfisterer; 8, Carrie Gaver; 8, Hazel Minnix, half-time; 8, I. A. Hoffman, principal.

GARY'S REMAINS ARE TAKEN TO RESTING PLACE

Train Bearing Body of Steel Magnate Reaches Wheaton.

Services in Church Built by Deceased for Parents.

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 17.—Unaccompanied by pomp or ceremony the bronze casket containing the body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary was borne into Gary Memorial church here today by ten farmer boys.

The only member of the immediate family present was Mrs. Elsa Gary Dyce, a niece of the late industrial king.

Garland Grange, brother of "Red" Grange, former University of Illinois footbal star, was one of those who acted as preliminary palbearers.

Less than thirty persons witnessed the arrival of the hearse and two accompanying automobiles. Four motorcycle policemen cleared the state highway for the cortege.

Mrs. Gary and her two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, are expected later this afternoon.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, was to arrive in Chicago for a brief moment today before being borne to Wheaton, Ill., on special train.

Leaders of the industrial world waited at the depot at which the private car of the Twentieth Century, carrying the body of the great leader, was due to arrive. The bronze casket will be transferred without ceremony to the suburban special train for the last stage of the journey to his final resting place in the little city that observed his early struggles as a promising attorney.

GOLDEN EAGLE AND ALOHE ARE LEADING DASH FOR DOLE PRIZE

Woolaroc Believed to be in Third Place Position.

Thirty-two Ships Stand Watch to Render Assistance.

On the last leg of the greatest race in the history of aviation four planes were believed nearing Hawaii at 8 a. m. today, Pacific coast time. Two were believed to be in the lead— the Hearst plane Golden Eagle and Martin Jensen's Aloha.

A fairly close third was the Woolaroc with Art Goebel as pilot, fourth in the race was believed the Miss Doran, piloted by Auggie Pedlar and carrying Miss Mildred Doran, Flint, Mich. school teacher, as a passenger.

Leaders "Sister Ships"

From the only plane carrying sending apparatus came a message through the United States naval radio station at Wailupe at 7 a. m., Pacific coast time announcing that the Woolaroc [illegible] miles out of San Francisco and stating that "everything was running on schedule on the last 700 mile lap.

Inasmuch as the fragmentary wireless reports of ships had placed both the Golden Eagle and the Aloha ahead of the Woolaroc and the Miss Doran well behind Goebel's plane, it was believed these positions were being maintained on the last leg of the race.

In effect the Golden Eagle and the Aloha are "sister ships" although built by different manufacturers and of slightly different type. Both are the work of the same designer, however. The Golden Eagle has shown its speed [illegible] between San Francisco and [illegible] record between San Francisco and [illegible].

Woolaroc Nears Goal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.— A message to radio corporation from the S. S. City of Los Angeles reported the position of the plane Woolaroc a 8:59 Pacific coast time as being 1,950

LEGIONNAIRES AT BATTLE FIELDS TO FIND WAR ANCIENT HISTORY

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The soldiers of the American Legion who make a visit to old battlefields this year will find that already, the great war is fading into ancient history.

The wide, smiling fields with their good crops and new, modern homes, have little to do with the places of horror they once knew. It is almost impossible to find the traces of the old front-line in any place for one can't trample down the wheat or oats. And where the German line once ran peaceful cows lie chewing their cud.

Year by year trenches are falling in, parapets washed away and dugouts collapse and disappear completely. Great shell-holes are slowly filling in and young bushes and trees beginning to hide the burnt stumps. The yards and yards of barbed wire have been rolled up and everywhere throughout the battle areas the fences of farm and garden are made of it, rusted and twisted, sometimes only half-straightened out. Ragged sheets of corrugated iron are put to a thousand uses, and among the spick-and-span new buildings are many little Nisen huts. They are used for chickens, children's playhouses, garages and stables. Some of them boast a new addition of corrugated iron and many of them have roses climbing over.

Of course there are a few areas which still remain in their original condition, as on the Vimy Ridge in the Railway Triangle behind Arras and the dreadful stretch by Thiepval to Beaumont Hamel, and for several kilometres around Verdun. On the Ridge the ground has been purposely left untouched to the glory of the Canadians and Highlanders who fought there ten years ago. And in the Triangle where perhaps more Germans met their death in 1917 than at almost any other place, there really is no purpose to which the land can be put.

The fourteen thousand graves in the American cemetery at Romagnes, near Verdun, and the recently-inaugurated memorial arch to the Pennsylvania regiments at Varenne, not far distant are certain proof that there was heavy fighting in these parts. Then everywhere, the scavengers of the battlefields in gangs of two or three are still at work. They have a long iron rod sharpened at the end with a T-shaped handle like that of a garden roller, with which they probe into the loose earth. They know by experience when the instrument hits metal and then they attack the spot with the great hoe-like spades of the French worker. There are still many accidents from unexploded shells and hand grenades but the rewards are high enough to justify the risks.

That 3,600 pails of wine and 1,600 barrels were consumed at the wedding of a German prince in 1561, has recently been disclosed.

LEGIONNAIRES AT BATTLE FIELDS TO FIND WAR ANCIENT HISTORY

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The soldiers of the American Legion who make a visit to old battlefields this year will find that already, the great war is fading into ancient history.

The wide, smiling fields with their good crops and new, modern homes, have little to do with the places of horror they once knew. It is almost impossible to find the traces of the old front-line in any place for one can't trample down the wheat or oats. And where the German line once ran peaceful cows lie chewing their cud.

Year by year trenches are falling in, parapets washed away and dug-outs collapse and disappear completely. Great shell-holes are slowly filling in and young bushes and trees beginning to hide the burnt stumps. The yards and yards of barbed wire have been rolled up and everywhere throughout the battle areas the fences of farm and garden are made of it, rusted and twisted, sometimes only half-straightened out. Ragged sheets of corrugated iron are put to a thousand uses, and among the spick-and-span new buildings are many little Nisen huts. They are used for chickens, children's playhouses, garages and stables. Some of them boast a new addition of corrugated iron and many of them have roses climbing over.

Of course there are a few areas which still remain in their original condition, as on the Vimy Ridge in the Railway Triangle behind Arras, and the dreadful stretch by Thiepval to Beaumont Hamel, and for several kilometres around Verdun. On the Ridge the ground has been purposely left untouched to the glory of the Canadians and Highlanders who fought there ten years ago. And in the Triangle where perhaps more Germans met their death in 1917 than at almost any other place, there really is no purpose to which the land can be put.

The fourteen thousand graves in the American cemetery at Romagnes, near Verdun, and the recently-inaugurated memorial arch to the Pennsylvania regiments at Varenne, not far distant are certain proof that there was heavy fighting in these parts. Then everywhere, the scavengers of the battlefields in gangs of two or three are still at work. They have a long iron rod sharpened at the end with a T-shaped handle like that of a garden roller, with which they probe into the loose earth. They know by experience when the instrument hits metal and then they attack the spot with the great hoe-like spades of the French worker. There are still many accidents from unexploded shells and hand grenades but the rewards are high enough to justify the risks.

That 3,600 pails of wine and 1,600 barrels were consumed at the wedding of a German prince in 1561, has recently been disclosed.

"And you heard it, Roderiguez?"

"Madre de Dios!" swore Roderiguez.

"Only a bird!" repeated Mr. Henshaw.

But John was watching Roderiguez. "I wondered whom the bird was calling. When I stumbled over Clench I knew."

"Bah!" ejaculated Mr. Henshaw. "How did you get up on the porch?"

"I climbed up this end," said John, still watching the big Mexican who was staring down at Clench.

"Why?"

John glanced impatiently at the inquisitor. "I had had enough of being spied upon," he replied sharply.

"Nervous about it, were you? And this poor fellow came to your room a second time. You climbed up here, you say? He turned half about to look.

"The rope!" thought John, too late. "If he asks me about it."

But apparently it did not occur to Mr. Henshaw to do so. He glanced from the rope to Clench and then at Roderiguez and Manuel. "Look! Mira!" he said quickly.

The sight of the rope seemed to break the spell of Roderiguez's superstitious fear. He was angry at once. "He came prepared," he snarled, scowling down at Clench.

"To bind Mr. Moore in his sleep perhaps," broke in Mr. Henshaw, sardonically. "It is quite evident that Mr. Moore feared some such thing. And yet it seems poor justification for—" He paused and looked down at Clench. "Poor devil!" he said for the second time.

"Just what do you mean by that?" demanded John.

Mr. Henshaw did not answer. He stooped and set his lamp on the floor beside the body. He touched the hand which held the shoes and then the face. "Still warm," he muttered half aloud. "But quite dead. One sure stroke—" His hand closed about the knife handle and drew it steadily forth. The little stream ran more quickly.

Manuel drew a gasping breath.

John looked up at him quickly. His eyes were almost starting from their sockets. He muttered unintelligible words and crossed himself; his face worked convulsively. Roderi

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting so that he may take Ruth out of the country. Clench is murdered.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"No, it isn't well," he said coldly. "Meeting Clench! Say rather that I have been put to it to keep out of his way! I don't like it! I came down here presumably on your invitation, Mr. Henshaw, and I have been spied upon ever since I came. This fellow Clench was snooping around in Tubutama this morning. He hung around me here all afternoon. Tonight while I smoked in this garden I heard him get up some sort of plan to get into my room. More spying! They planned something about a watch—I couldn't catch all of it."

"But that was—" began Roderiguez.

"Mr. Moore is telling this," interrupted Henshaw. "You say he planned to get into your room?" he asked more mildly of John.

"He did. And Roderiguez was a party to it," lied John boldly. "Clench went into my room and came back and reported to Roderiguez that I was missing. I could hear them talking to each other, although I couldn't catch their words. But it was all plain enough. In a few minutes they sent Manuel down to tell the news to you. That's correct, isn't it?"

"But—" began Roderiguez again.

"Keep out of this," snarled Henshaw. Then to John: "That is correct. But still, Mr. Moore, that is not—. You say then, that you did not speak to Clench after you left us in the dining room?"

"No," said John.

"Ah," said his host, softly. He stood shaking his head gently and looking down at the dead man at his feet. "Poor devil!" he said.

"Fooled him!" thought John Moore. "He has stopped worrying about what Clench told and has time for a few decent regrets over the murder."

It was, indeed, with just that look of decent regret which John had in mind that his host brought his attention back to John Moore. "And—what else—did you see in the garden?" he asked.

"Nothing," admitted John, frankly.

"Surely you saw Emanuel return to his room? I watched him climb the terraces in the moonlight myself."

"But I didn't—I fell asleep."

"Asleep! Until—?"

"Until about twenty minutes ago. When I awoke there was no sign of Manuel, no sign of any one, in fact, and no sound." John broke off abruptly.

Very softly, his voice a mere thread of speech, Mr. Henshaw spoke. "You heard something?"

"I heard some one calling from the shadow of the pepper tree," said John slowly.

"Ah!" The word released a deep drawn breath from Roderiguez.

"Got him!" thought John.

"Calling whom?" asked Mr. Henshaw.

"That's what I wondered," John returned. "Listen!" His voice sank to the pitch of the dove's crooning wail. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

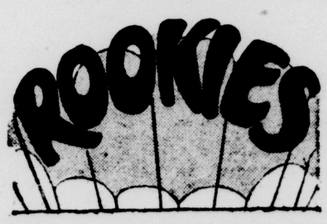

"Ahh," breathed Roderiguez again.

"You mean that fool bird!" said Mr. Henshaw, contemptuously.

"You heard it, too?" asked John.

I came down here presumably on your invitation, Mr. Henshaw, and I have been spied upon ever since I came. This fellow Clench was snooping around in Tubutama this morning. He hung around me here all afternoon. Tonight while I smoked in this garden I heard him get up some sort of plan to get into my room. More spying! They planned something about a watch—I couldn't catch all of it."

"But that was—" began Roderiguez.

"Mr. Moore is telling this," interrupted Henshaw. "You say he planned to get into your room?" he asked more mildly of John.

"He did. And Roderiguez was a party to it," lied John boldly. "Clench went into my room and came back and reported to Roderiguez that I was missing. I could hear them talking to each other, although I couldn't catch their words. But it was all plain enough. In a few minutes they sent Manuel down to tell the news to you. That's correct, isn't it?"

"But—" began Roderiguez again.

"Keep out of this," snarled Henshaw. Then to John: "That is correct. But still, Mr. Moore, that is not—. You say then, that you did not speak to Clench after you left us in the dining room?"

"No," said John.

"Ah," said his host, softly. He stood shaking his head gently and looking down at the dead man at his feet. "Poor devil!" he said.

"Fooled him!" thought John Moore. "He has stopped worrying about what Clench told and has time for a few decent regrets over the murder."

It was, indeed, with just that look of decent regret which John had in mind that his host brought his attention back to John Moore. "And—what else—did you see in the garden?" he asked.

"Nothing," admitted John, frankly.

"Surely you saw Emanuel return to his room? I watched him climb the terraces in the moonlight myself."

"But I didn't—I fell asleep."

"Asleep! Until—?"

"Until about twenty minutes ago. When I awoke there was no sign of Manuel, no sign of any one, in fact, and no sound." John broke off abruptly.

Very softly, his voice a mere thread of speech, Mr. Henshaw spoke. "You heard something?"

"I heard some one calling from the shadow of the pepper tree," said John slowly.

"Ah!" The word released a deep-drawn breath from Roderiguez.

"Got him!" thought John.

"Calling whom?" asked Mr. Henshaw.

"That's what I wondered," John returned. "Listen!" His voice sank to the pitch of the dove's crooning wail. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

"Ahh," breathed Roderiguez again.

"You mean that fool bird!" said Mr. Henshaw, contemptuously.

"You heard it, too?" asked John.

"Madre de Dios!" swore Roderiguez.

"Only a bird!" repeated Mr. Henshaw.

But John was watching Roderiguez. "I wondered whom the bird was calling. When I stumbled over Clench I knew."

"Bah!" ejaculated Mr. Henshaw. "How did you get up on the porch?"

"I climbed up this end," said John, still watching the big Mexican who was staring down at Clench.

"Why?"

John glanced impatiently at the inquisitor. "I had had enough of being spied upon," he replied sharply.

"Nervous about it, were you? And this poor fellow came to your room a second time. You climbed up here, you say? He turned half about to look.

"The rope!" thought John, too late. "If he asks me about it."

But apparently it did not occur to Mr. Henshaw to do so. He glanced from the rope to Clench and then at Roderiguez and Manuel. "Look! Mira!" he said quickly.

The sight of the rope seemed to break the spell of Roderiguez's superstitious fear. He was angry at once. "He came prepared," he snarled, scowling down at Clench.

"To bind Mr. Moore in his sleep perhaps," broke in Mr. Henshaw, sardonically. "It is quite evident that Mr. Moore feared some such thing. And yet it seems poor justification for—" He paused and looked down at Clench. "Poor devil!" he said for the second time.

"Just what do you mean by that?" demanded John.

Mr. Henshaw did not answer. He stooped and set his lamp on the floor beside the body. He touched the hand which held the shoes and then the face. "Still warm," he muttered half aloud. "But quite dead. One sure stroke—" His hand closed about the knife handle and drew it steadily forth. The little stream ran more quickly.

Manuel drew a gasping breath.

John looked up at him quickly. His eyes were almost starting from their sockets. He muttered unintelligible words and crossed himself; his face worked convulsively. Roderi

Photograph Albums

The Photographers' Association of America makes an eloquent plea for the revival of the family photograph album. Not necessarily as a public benefaction, either, though it might be regarded in that light.

History can never adequately portray the debt owed to the aforesaid album. For two generations it ranked next to the Bible as a family treasure, and lay beside it on the table in the darkened living room. It never had a serious rival during all that time, except possibly the stereoscope.

It was a source of never-failing inspiration to the members of the family and invaluable as a social asset. How many million young men have been saved from embarrassment by having the family portrait gallery opportunely shoved into their willing hands. How many million afternoons and evening—and especially evenings—have thereby been rendered a social success instead of a tongue-tied failure. And to come down to our own generation, how rich is the entertainment afforded by that same album, even though its chief appeal nowadays is the unintentional humor of those old pictures in pose, expression and sartorial style.

Now, alas, there are so many other forms of entertainment that the album is no longer a social necessity. Yet it deserves a revival, for the family associations it represents and preserves. It ministers to the sense of family continuity and preserves many a relationship that otherwise would be forgotten. And what matter if the next generation were to laugh at our pictures just as we, graceless scoffers that we are, laugh at those of our parents and grandparents?

The photographers, however, have quite a different slant on the thing. They want the album revived on the ground that its disuse has lost them money. It would pay them richly, they think, if there were once more an album in every house, gaping for new pictures. Millions would be rushing to the galleries for photos to fill those empty pages.

It might work that way. Nevertheless, as far as an outsider can see, the photographers might not profit so much as they fancy. In making pictures for insertion in an album, they couldn't mount the print on an expensive card, then insert the card in a more expensive paper frame, and insert that frame in a still more expensive folder. In selling more pictures, they would sell less paper. And any good photographic business man can tell you there's money in fancy paper.

College Quota

Oxford university, England, has gone on a quota basis as regards sex. It is ruled that the number of girls attending the university shall not be more than one-fourth of the student body.

This is considered very liberal. In the past, a femine quota of one-eighth has been thought ample. Obviously the girls are making headway in the most conservative of British educational institutions.

The reasons given for limiting the feminine attendance are entertaining.

"There is a real danger," the authorities say, "that the increase of women, if not checked, will threaten the masculinity of the university. This would affect the character of the teaching given. Women are more of a type than men. Women concentrate on certain courses, especially English literature, where they do extremely well, but they are not good at other branches of study, scientific, mathematical, philosophical and classical. They thus tend to give the university a less universal character than a learned institution like Oxford considers proper."

The authorities very considerately fail to mention athletics, which have suffered much from the invasion of women in American universities, and are likewise imperiled in England. Oxford would probably sacrifice even its precious classics rather than its football and rowing prowess.

Liver and Light

Iowa State college is feeding liver to anemic students, instead of regular meat, and reports that their blood tests show improvement. To others it is administering the ultra-violet ray, which likewise improves the blood by encouraging the growth of red corpuscles. Sunlight serves the same purpose, but is less controlable than the artificial light.

So it happens that there is a boom in lights and livers.

We are getting to be light-worshippers in this country. Thousands who used to fear sunshine are devoting their best efforts to getting out into it. Sun baths are becoming a fad, and they are a mighty wholesome one when not carried to excess. The sun is appreciated more than at any previous time since the days of ancient Greece. It was probably no accident that those old Greeks worshipped the sun, under the name of Apollo, "the god of life and poesy and light."

As for liver, recently scorned, it seems to be almost as full of vitamins—the invisible little life-givers in food—as cod liver oil. Almost any liver, from cod to cow, is good for the undernourished.

"A clean life is the key to old age," declares a centenarian, thus refuting the saying that the good die young.

It isn't such a small world after all, when it takes two months to learn that 100,000 Chinese have been killed by an earthquake.

It's great weather for the golf ball crop.

Just A Real Dirty Trick — By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. — New York's search for thrills is appeased somewhat in trick types of speakeasies. They are staging blood-curdling effects in many seamy dives to attract upper crust slummers. The thrill complex is noted in other diversions as well.

The plays with biggest patronage this summer were mystery shockers. The wax figures of the Snyder murder principals were the chief horrors at Coney. After theatre parties dritted to spook parlors for hair raising seances instead of the cabarets.

One speak-easy has an ashen pale piano thumper who gives the impression of sniffing cocaine between tunes. He uses table salt but the effect is gripping and at a table is a group of plug uglies who start a row and draw terrible looking knives.

In another a beautiful "prop" patron has a quarrel with a gigolo type and drinks the contents of a bottle labeled poison. It is explained afterward it is all good playful fun. The idea is for spectators to return with friends who are not in on the joke and provide them a goose-pimpled thrill.

In 22d street is a delightful fakery that has been drawing the initiated with unsuspecting friends. They are told the place is a horrible heli-hole, difficult to enter but dispensing the choicest of spirits. The come-on is led through a cellar passageway.

An ugly seared race peeps through a peep-hole and the prospective patron is questioned thoroughly. He is even searched for concealed weapons. Inside he finds a shuddery den with feeble low hanging lamps and a motley collection of riff-raff. All very pulse jumping.

He is told to order what he pleases and the climax is when he finds nothing stronger than ginger ale is served. Several other such places are reported but we, the portable machine and I, have not seen them. There is thrill enough for country boys crossing New York streets these mad days.

A tense moment in the old fashioned drama was furnished about 20 years ago in Gallipolis, O. The heroine had been hurled over a cliff, strapped to a railroad track and otherwise cowed by the villain of the piece. In the last act he had her at his mercy again, tied and gagged, near a buzz saw. Standing over her, flickering his riding crop against riding boots and tugging at his silken mustache—durn him—he inquired: "Nellie, why do you fear me?"

One of New York's chronic but inconspicuous first nighters is Joseph Urban. He is usually standing in back of the house or sitting in the balcony. He is a dreamy looking fellow of tremendous bulk whose manner seems as soft and detached as the blue of his celebrated theatrical skies. Urban does not conform to prescribed aritistic tendencies. He lives in Yonkers and his chief sport is attending prize fights. He is robust, jovial and addicted to constant cigarette smoking. He is just now designing the new Metropolitan Opera House.

Add disillusionments of the past 24 hours: A pair of stage twins who are not related; a sporting editor who goes to church every Sunday and Wednesday; a cabaret owner who never drinks and spends idle time on a farm and an incessent cigarette smoking novelist who never inhales.

But the most crumbling disillusionment of all was a visit to one of those sterling figures of the advertisements who proclaims himself as "a builder of personality." He wore a toupee, his uppers had to be clicked back in place periodically and he spoke of his wife as "the little lady." Fortunately he does his stuff by mail.

If these disillusionments continue many of us are going to smile at the idea of hanging up our stockings this Christmas.

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—V.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—A woman in this city bought a canary on the assumption that it was a male and therefore a songbird. After she had the bird a short time and it had never burst into song, she took it for granted that the canary had to be acclimated. Judge of her astonishment shortly thereafter when the canary that was supposed to be a "singer" laid eggs!

Obviously the woman had a just grievance against the dealer who had sold her the bird. She was not interested in raising canaries. All she wanted was a golden-hued, golden-throated songster, and all she had got was the makings of a canary nursery. Needless to say, the store adjusted this customer's complaint.

This is but one—if rather an unusual one—of the 627 so-called consumer complaints that were handled by the Washington Better Business Bureau during the last fiscal year, the majority of which, it is claimed, were settled on a basis that retained good will for the merchant and further established confidence in the public mind.

Such cases are instances in which members of the buying public are of the opinion that they have not received a square deal, and they come under the head of the miscellaneous activities of the forty-odd Better Business Bureaus in the United States. They are not cases in which misrepresentation, untruthfulness, or inaccuracy in advertising may be alleged, nor do they fall under the category of financial cases, in which the public is exploited through fake promotions and questionable stock transactions.

These cases may be said to involve unfair practices and misrepresentation in selling rather than in advertising and all of them are handled for the mutual interest of legitimate business and the public. With impartiality to both sides, the Better Business Bureaus endeavor to investigate and mediate the differences between the buyers and the sellers.

Customer Not Always Right.

Many business establishments adhere to the policy exemplified in the statement that the customer is always right. That is an expensive policy, although it may be vindicated in the long run, for the customers are not invariably right.

In fact, the general public is admonished that there are more dishonest customers than there are dishonest merchandisers, and that the comparison stands when it is a matter of sharp or unethical practices. The outstanding reason for this is that there are so many more customers than there are merchandisers and that the same inherent traits of character are to be found in buyers and sellers alike.

A more potent reason, however, is to be found in the fact that it is a great business asset to a merchant always to deal fairly and to see that his customers are satisfied, whereas the customer has nothing to lose by indulging in questionable practices.

Times innumerable the merchant is made the victim of the buyer who makes a purchase under no misrepresentation whatever and then decides that he wants his money back or an exchange. This often happens in a sale in which the merchant in his advertising has stipulated "no exchanges," which carries, of course, the meaning, "no money back." But the customer decides after the purchase has been made that he does not like his bargain and insists upon repudiating it. He alleges misrepresentation or faults in the article he has bought, and if he is sufficiently loud-mouthed in his complaint he usually gets away with it.

Then, too, there is the customer with a charge account, usually a woman, who has a gown or a coat sent to her home on approval, wears it once or twice, and then returns it with the demand that she be credited with its price—which is the equivalent of a "money back" transaction—or that she be permitted to exchange it. She gets away with it, even when she is flagrantly at fault, merely because she has a charge account. The merchant is comparatively helpless. He must take a loss incident to the condition of the article or its re-sale, or invite a controversy that may even occasion him a greater loss. The general public's complaint is that merchants must fix their prices at a scale that takes into consideration a certain percentage of such cases.

Buy From Reliable Firms.

Admittedly the customer's greatest safeguard for his purse in buying any kind of merchandise is to deal with reliable, established firms or merchants, to whom the customer's good will and confidence are assets to be conserved as carefully as stock on hand or cash in banks. The honest customer need not fear the honest dealer. The latter may make mistakes—honest mistakes or inadvertent inaccuracies—in his advertising or in his selling, but when he does, he corrects them. And, even more, when the honest dealer finds that an honest customer is unhappy over a purcrase he is always ready to make an adjustment, even though he knows that he is not at fault.

But when the buyer has been victimized through dealings with merchants of another kind, he may have recourse to the Better Business Bureau of his city and be reasonably sure that he will secure a satisfactory adjustment.

Among other miscellaneous activities of the Bureaus may be mentioned their squashing of fake solicitation schemes. So-called benefits, yearbooks, programs, social registers, charities, and what not, that the public is solicited constantly to patronize are almost without number. Some of them are selling and some of them are advertising schemes, but many of them are conducted by professional promoters solely for their personal gain. It is said that there is not a city

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION.

It is harking back into the dim corridors of sporting history to call up memories of the time when Billy Murray was manager of the Philadelphia team in the National league. Nevertheless, the opportunity to revive a baseball classic, is, I think, sufficient justification for directing the reader's attention to these reminiscent days.

Murray, as I say was manager and Murray had a bitter wit. Kitt Bransford was playing first base. Stanley Coveleskie, the Pole, was one of the pitching staff and one of the best men on it.

One afternoon at the Polo grounds when the Philadelphia team was playing the Giants, Coveleskie became abstracted, which was a very bad thing for any pitcher opposing the Giants to do. He passed a batter and thereafter paid so little attention that the runner stole second and then a moment later, third and finally scored on a high fly to the outfield.

When the inning ended Stanley came walking into the visiting players' bench looking rather abashed. Murray, who could use very stylish language when the occasion seemed to warrant such, hailed him in his most ceremonious manner.

"Mr. Coveleskie," he inquired, "did you happen to recall, just before you went to sleep standing up out there in the box with your eyes open, that there was a man on first base?"

"No," confessed the Pole, "I plumb forgot all about it."

'Oh,', you forgot about it?" echoed Murray, elaborating his sarcasm. He turned to his baseman: "Mr. Bransford, one moment if you please. Hereafter when a player on the opposite side reaches your station I wish you would please inform our young friend, Mr. Stanley Coveleskie, of the fact, won't you. It seems so foolish to have any secrets in the club."

An ugly seared race peeps through a peep-hole and the prospective patron is questioned thoroughly. He is even searched for concealed weapons. Inside he finds a shuddery den with feeble low hanging lamps and a motley collection of riff-raff. All very pulse jumping.

He is told to order what he pleases and the climax is when he finds nothing stronger than ginger ale is served. Several other such places are reported but we, the portable machine and I, have not seen them. There is thrill enough for country boys crossing New York streets these mad days.

A tense moment in the old fashioned drama was furnished about 20 years ago in Gallipolis, O. The heroine had been hurled over a cliff, strapped to a railroad track and otherwise cowed by the villain of the piece. In the last act he had her at his mercy again, tied and gagged, near a buzz saw. Standing over her, flickering his riding crop against riding boots and tugging at his silken mustache—durn him—he inquired: "Nellie, why do you fear me?"

One of New York's chronic but inconspicuous first nighters is Joseph Urban. He is usually standing in back of the house or sitting in the balcony. He is a dreamy looking fellow of tremendous bulk whose manner seems as soft and detached as the blue of his celebrated theatrical skies. Urban does not conform to prescribed aritistic tendencies. He lives in Yonkers and his chief sport is attending prize fights. He is robust, jovial and addicted to constant cigarette smoking. He is just now designing the new Metropolitan Opera House.

Add disillusionments of the past 24 hours: A pair of stage twins who are not related; a sporting editor who goes to church every Sunday and Wednesday; a cabaret owner who never drinks and spends idle time on a farm and an incessent cigarette smoking novelist who never inhales.

But the most crumbling disillusionment of all was a visit to one of those sterling figures of the advertisements who proclaims himself as "a builder of personality." He wore a toupee, his uppers had to be clicked back in place periodically and he spoke of his wife as "the little lady." Fortunately he does his stuff by mail.

If these disillusionments continue many of us are going to smile at the idea of hanging up our stockings this Christmas.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—V.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—A woman in this city bought a canary on the assumption that it was a male and therefore a songbird. After she had the bird a short time and it had never burst into song, she took it for granted that the canary had to be acclimated. Judge of her astonishment shortly thereafter when the canary that was supposed to be a "singer" laid eggs!

Obviously the woman had a just grievance against the dealer who had sold her the bird. She was not interested in raising canaries. All she wanted was a golden-hued, golden-throated songster, and all she had got was the makings of a canary nursery. Needless to say, the store adjusted this customer's complaint.

This is but one—if rather an unusual one—of the 627 so-called consumer complaints that were handled by the Washington Better Business Bureau during the last fiscal year, the majority of which, it is claimed, were settled on a basis that retained good will for the merchant and further established confidence in the public mind.

Such cases are instances in which members of the buying public are of the opinion that they have not received a square deal, and they come under the head of the miscellaneous activities of the forty-odd Better Business Bureaus in the United States. They are not cases in which misrepresentation, untruthfulness, or inaccuracy in advertising may be alleged, nor do they fall under the category of financial cases, in which the public is exploited through fake promotions and questionable stock transactions.

These cases may be said to involve unfair practices and misrepresentation in selling rather than in advertising and all of them are handled for the mutual interest of legitimate business and the public. With impartiality to both sides, the Better Business Bureaus endeavor to investigate and mediate the differences between the buyers and the sellers.

Customer Not Always Right.

Many business establishments adhere to the policy exemplified in the statement that the customer is always right. That is an expensive policy, although it may be vindicated in the long run, for the customers are not invariably right.

In fact, the general public is admonished that there are more dishonest customers than there are dishonest merchandisers, and that the comparison stands when it is a matter of sharp or unethical practices. The outstanding reason for this is that there are so many more customers than there are merchandisers and that the same inherent traits of character are to be found in buyers and sellers alike.

A more potent reason, however, is to be found in the fact that it is a great business asset to a merchant always to deal fairly and to see that his customers are satisfied, whereas the customer has nothing to lose by inludging in questionable practices.

Times innumerable the merchant is made the victim of the buyer who makes a purchase under no misrepresentation whatever and then decides that he wants his money back or an exchange. This often happens in a sale in which the merchant in his advertising has stipulated "no exchanges," which carries, of course, the meaning, "no money back." But the customer decides after the purchase has been made that he does not like his bargain and insists upon repudiating it. He alleges misrepresentation or faults in the article he has bought, and if he is sufficiently loud-mouthed in his complaint he usually gets away with it.

Then, too, there is the customer with a charge account, usually a woman, who has a gown or a coat sent to her home on approval, wears it once or twice, and then returns it with the demand that she be credited with its price—which is the equivalent of a "money back" transaction—or that she be permitted to exchange it. She gets away with it, even when she is flagrantly at fault, merely because she has a charge account. The merchant is comparatively helpless. He must take a loss incident to the condition of the article or its re-sale, or invite a controversy that may even occasion him a greater loss. The general public's complaint is that merchants must fix their prices at a scale that takes into consideration a certain percentage of such cases.

Buy From Reliable Firms.

Admittedly the customer's greatest safeguard for his purse in buying any kind of merchandise is to deal with reliable, established firms or merchants, to whom the customer's good will and confidence are assets to be conserved as carefully as stock on hand or cash in banks. The honest customer need not fear the honest dealer. The latter may make mistakes—honest mistakes or inadvertent inaccuracies—in his advertising or in his selling, but when he does, he corrects them. And, even more, when the honest dealer finds that an honest customer is unhappy over a purcrase he is always ready to make an adjustment, even though he knows that he is not at fault.

But when the buyer has been victimized through dealings with merchants of another kind, he may have recourse to the Better Business Bureau of his city and be reasonably sure that he will secure a satisfactory adjustment.

Among other miscellaneous activities of the Bureaus may be mentioned their squashing of fake solicitation schemes. So-called benefits, yearbooks, programs, social registers, charities, and what not, that the public is solicited constantly to patronize are almost without number. Some of them are selling and some of them are advertising schemes, but many of them are conducted by professional promoters solely for their personal gain. It is said that there is not a city

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION.

It is harking back into the dim corridors of sporting history to call up memories of the time when Billy Murray was manager of the Philadelphia team in the National league. Nevertheless, the opportunity to revive a baseball classic, is, I think, sufficient justification for directing the reader's attention to these reminiscent days.

Murray, as I say was manager and Murray had a bitter wit. Kitt Bransford was playing first base. Stanley Coveleskie, the Pole, was one of the pitching staff and one of the best men on it.

One afternoon at the Polo grounds when the Philadelphia team was playing the Giants, Coveleskie became abstracted, which was a very bad thing for any pitcher opposing the Giants to do. He passed a batter and thereafter paid so little attention that the runner stole second and then a moment later, third and finally scored on a high fly to the outfield.

When the inning ended Stanley came walking into the visiting players' bench looking rather abashed. Murray, who could use very stylish language when the occasion seemed to warrant such, hailed him in his most ceremonious manner.

"Mr. Coveleskie," he inquired, "did you happen to recall, just before you went to sleep standing up out there in the box with your eyes open, that there was a man on first base?"

"No," confessed the Pole, "I plumb forgot all about it."

'Oh,' you forgot about it?" echoed Murray, elaborating his sarcasm. He turned to his baseman: "Mr. Bransford, one moment if you please. Hereafter when a player on the opposite side reaches your station I wish you would please inform our young friend, Mr. Stanley Coveleskie, of the fact, won't you. It seems so foolish to have any secrets in the club."

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

Irreverent Dawes Irks Professionals By "Straight-Talk"

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Through all of Vice President Charles G. Dawes' philosophy there runs a deep vein of irreverance.

CHARLES G. DAWES

It crops out from time to time, too obviously for anybody to mistake, as it did the other day in the course of the vice president's contemptuous references to the experts' handling of the recent Geneva naval limitations negotiations.

The truth is, Br'er Dawes has no respect for professionals.

"RESULTS" is C. G. Dawes' criterion of everything.

If a thing's done, he doesn't care a hoot how it was done, provided the job's satisfactory.

If it isn't done, and ought to have been, or if it turns out to have been botched in any respect, he thinks it was a fizzle, no matter how strictly according to Hoyle the procedure was.

Dawes would rather submit to a surgical operations at the hands of a horse doctor, with a carving knife, and be cured, than have the highest priced specialist do it, with the most up-to-date kit of instruments, and die under the anaesthetic.

INTERNATIONAL relations, as Dawes sees 'em, are business—important business but no black art about it—and his idea of business is that it's something to be transacted.

If a matter of business arises between two or more countries, he wants to see it taken up, progress and be disposed of.

He can't conceive of a group of genuine men of affairs sitting down to settle a question that really has got to be settled and reporting, ultimately anything but some sort of a settlement.

Otherwise business would be impossible, he reckons.

BUT international experts don't try to transact business, or know or care anything about it, the vice president has concluded.

His observation is that they do nothing but play a game they've invented — a game called diplomacy—which is no more like business than tennis is like it, or golf or poker.

They play a lot of "draws," too, Dawes adds, and in his opinion the Geneva conference wound up in one of them.

THIS is why, not long ago, Dawes spoke so slightingly of a "career man" in the state department.

A "career man's" a professional diplomat.

He begins at the bottom and works up and the complaint frequently has been made that the reason this country is so often out-generaled diplomatically is our lack of enough of this kind of experts in key positions.

What if we are out-generaled? queries Dawes. It's only a game, anyway.

THE Dawes theory is that American business men, opposed to foreign diplomats, may lose all the diplomat's games, but they'll get the best of all the business dickers, for the simple reason that they know business and the diplomats never heard of such a thing.

He doesn't care a cent for all the games they lose.

What he's interested in is the business clean-ups they'll score to their credit.

SUCH talk as Dawes indulged in at Buffalo—in Secretary Kellogg's presence, too, and the Prince of Wales' and Stanley Baldwin's—is very painful to the state department.

It has diplomatic traditions to uphold.

The vice president doesn't go in for tactfulness in his speeches, however.

RICHARD DIX ARMY OFFICER

"Quicksands" at Ceramic is Hair-raising Story.

The versatile Richard Dix as an army lieutenant, who in the ordinary course of duty falls in with more hair-raising adventures than happen to the layman in the course of a lifetime, was enthusiastically received by large audiences Monday and Tuesday at the opening of "Quicksands" at the Ceramic theatre.

The picture is a fast moving melodrama of the frontier, where a gang of smugglers makes headquarters in a hard boiled town, and shatters the placidity of honest folk with its nefarious activity. The girl in the case, Helene Chadwick, is forced by the pinch of circumstances to live a double life. Part of the time she spends at Portugee Joe's place in Deadville where the smugglers congregate and where she attempts to discover the "brains" of the outfit in order to help out her father. In reality she is the very respectable daughter of a rancher who is a federal agent.

The story moves fast. Dix in love with the girl, finds himself launched in a campaign against the smugglers. His superior officer orders him to lead a detachment of troops in a raid on the town. Things start to hum. People who like good fast action will find plenty of it in the subsequent scenes. Dix finds himself confronting a whole infuriated mob of smugglers bent on killing him and the girl.

"Quicksands" in this reissued, retitled, reedited form is a film packed with thrilling action. The supporting cast is particularly good. Noah Beery in the role of "Silent" Kruez treats to a remarkable bad man characterization. Others in the cast are Alan Hale, Walter Long, Frank Campeau, and Jean Hersholt.

THE UPSTAGE PEOPLE

There are people who are both sad and funny. They are the "upstage people"—the ones who take themselves so seriously they are never quite natural. It is said that the Greatest Man who ever lived was so powerful he could feed five thousand people from a few baskets of food. And this man was not too proud to ask a lowly peasant woman for a drink of water at a roadside well.

"Nothing is more simple than greatness," said Emerson. "Indeed, to be simple is to be great."

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

Children cannot be grouped and classified according to age. Some are smart and some are dull. Others are worse than that. Intelligence tests, little believed in by old-fashioned people, are used to try them out. Grown-ups might find some of the questions hard. For example, in the Binet test, a question for twelve-year-olds in this: Explain the meaning of pity, revenge, charity, envy, justice. And sixteen-year-olds are asked: Distinguish between laziness and idleness; evolution and revolution; poverty and misery; character and reputation.

Try yourself out on these.

BLUE STRIPES

When Lord, director of the budget, noticed that government mail bags had blue stripes he asked why. He went all the way along the line and clear to the top. He never found anybody who knew. So he discontinued the blue stripes and saved the government $40,000 a year.

Have you some blue stripes that might just as well be dropped out?

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

First impressions are important. It's unfortunate that they are. They are frequently wrong, inaccurate. We cannot always judge matters by the first glance; neither can we judge personality by the first impression. Be tolerant with new acquaintances. Wait until the facts are all in.

HARD-BOILED?

The hard-boiled may get further as far as money goes, but the soft-hearted have a better time along the way. No sound happiness ever rested on the unhappiness of someone else.

As if suddenly sensing their agitation Mr. Henshaw, the knife still in his hand, rose and faced them, his back to John.

Surely, thought John, he must now see and speak.

He was speaking, sternly. "You fools! A dead man cannot hurt you. Give me your lamps! Now, take up the body and carry it into his room. Pick it up! It won't hurt you!"

With reluctant steps Roderiguez and Manuel approached and lifted Clench, face downward. His arms dangled horribly. The shoes clattered to the floor. Manuel shuddered and dropped the feet. Henshaw swore at him in Spanish.

"What are you going to do with the body?" asked John.

"We will arrange that. Fortunately you are among friends—in Mexico." Hr. Henshaw spoke with mournful dignity.

"Rot!" said John Moore. "You need not try to conceal murder — among your friends—in Mexico—for my sake. One glance at Manuel and Roderiguez here would be enough for any one who was hunting the facts of this case, Mr. Henshaw!"

The latter stared at him in blank astonishment. "You are surely not trying to fool us, are you, Mr. Moore?"

"No," retorted John. "I am not. I am being candid with you. I accuse your two friends here of murdering Clench."

"During the pandemonium of motion picture production—as in my direction of 'Beau Geste'—I find Lucky Strikes are not only soothing to tired vocal chords, but they have the best flavor. SIXTY WAYS TO SERVE

"I owe this idea to Herbert Brenon"

Alton Hamilton remarks to his friend Carl de Mel as he offers him a Lucky Strike at the Manor Country Club.

Herbert Brenon, noted Film Director, writes:

"During the pandemonium of motion picture production—as in my direction of 'Beau Geste'—I find Lucky Strikes are not only soothing to tired vocal chords, but they have the best flavor. The constant use of my voice in my work demands that I keep it in condition. Lucky Strikes are the only cigarettes which protect me from an irritated throat, and which I enjoy to the utmost."

Herbert Brenon

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation - No Cough.

FREDERICKS PLAN FAMILY REUNION

The Frederick family reunion will be held at the Lisbon fair grounds Wednesday, August 24. Indications point to a large attendance.

C. W. Frederick of Rochester, N. Y., has compiled the Frederick genealogy which will be exhibited together with photographs and other things of interest connected with the history of the family. Among these is a copy of a petition sent to the Provincial council in 1756 asking for more protection for the colonists from Indian atrocities, and citing as an example the killing of Noah Frederick and the capture of his children.

A moving picture taken of the gathering last year will be shown upon a screen.

Lemon Juice is Best to Whiten Skin
Prepare It Yourself at Home

The juice of two lemons squeezed into a bottle with Orchard White, will soothe sunburn, and clear up freckles, tan, discolored skin quicker than anything you can buy already prepared, and it doesn't cost you near as much.

Any druggist can sell you Orchard White, and it only takes a minute to mix it with the juice of two lemons. Then you have enough to last you all season.

It makes a delightful lotion which you can put on your face, neck, arms or hands at any time, and it will keep them nice and white. Mix a bottle now, so you will have it handy to use should your skin begin to turn dark, or rough.

It pays to know the difference between The HOOVER and a vacuum cleaner

We'll take your old cleaner in part payment

If you are now contenting yourself with an out-of-date, inefficient cleaner because you don't know how to get rid of it, bring or send it in to us. We'll give you a liberal allowance for it on the purchase of a Greater Hoover. With such a convenient arrangement as this, there is really no reason why you shouldn't have your Hoover immediately.

Ever since the appearance of The Greater Hoover a year ago its fame has been steadily growing. Thousands of women are finding out in actual use that "Positive Agitation" does reach deep-buried dirt that no other cleaning method can get—that it does agitate this dangerous, cutting grit to the surface to be suctioned away—and that as a result their rugs are 131% cleaner than ever before.

This is the cleaner that you can now obtain so easily. Why don't you call up and have one sent out for a demonstration? Or drop in and arrange for its purchase on easy payments.

There Are Lots of Ways to Identify the Delicious Kleen-Maid Loaf

HOUSEWIVES in this community have discovered these ways of knowing the delicious Kleen-Maid loaf.

First, you identify Kleen-Maid by the Little Dutch Girl and the Old Dutch Windmill on the tidy wrapper. You can also tell it by gently pressing its sides; Kleen-Maid bread has the unmistakable "feel" of good bread.

You can identify Kleen-Maid by its appetizing fragrance . . . the oven-aroma that says "Here is real, honest-to-goodness bread!" Kleen-Maid's glorious golden brown crust also will give you the clue.

But the surest way to know Kleen-Maid is to taste it. Here is bread at its tempting best! Ovenfresh, flavorful, satisfying. One fluffy slice starts a procession of slices. It's the kind of bread you like.

Enjoy Kleen-Maid bread and its extra slices today. There's a delicious loaf, oven-fresh, at your grocer's right now.

REMOVAL OF BELMONT COUNTY SHERIFF DEMANDED

PROSECUTOR TO VISIT DONAHEY AT COLUMBUS

Conference Held Yesterday to Consider Peace Fails.

GET AFFIDAVITS

Situation in Mine Zones Reported Quiet Today.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Efforts of Col. L. S. Conelly, Ohio National Guard, to bring about a settlement of differences between Sheriff Clyde C. Hardesty and Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell of Belmont county, having failed at a conference here late yesterday, Waddell today was preparing to press prosecution of charges of intoxication against the sheriff, and was to leave for Columbus tonight where he will confer with Gov. Donahey relatives to seeking removal of the sheriff from office.

The differences between the two officials grew out of the rioting here last week, when a taxicab driver transporting non-union miners was was attacked and beaten by union sympathizers. The prosecutor charged that the sheriff was intoxicated during the riot, and incapacitated for performance of his duty. Sheriff Hardesty emphatically denied the charge. Political differences between Hardesty and Waddell are said to have figured in the dispute.

Waddell, before leaving here today, issued a statement in which he declared that he had no prejudice in the mine strike controversy and that his only purpose was to obtain enforcement of the law He declared he would take numerous affidavits to Gov. Donahey today and demand removal of the sheriff from office.

The situation in mines of this vicinity was reported quiet today with no further violence or outbreaks of any character reported early today.

PRODUCERS SEEK CUT IN FREIGHT

West Virginia Operators Carry Fight to Supreme Court.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Southern West Virginia coal operators today were already making plans to carry their fight for a freight rate reduction on coal to lake ports, as offered by view of the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to allow a reduction of 20 cents a ton.

The decision blocks plans laid by the operators to continue competition in the lake ports with the mines of Pennsylvania and Ohio despite the recent ruling which gave the latter shippers an advantage which the West Virginia operators claim is "ruinous" to their business.

Operators here today expressed belief that an appeal to the U. S. supreme court would result in upsetting the ruling of the interstate commerce commission.

SELLS WHOLESALE BUSINESS ONLY

Gus Remy, proprietor of the Newell System bakery, in the Diamond, announced today that the wholesale business of that concern only had been sold to the Kaiser Baking Company.

The company will continue its bakery and retail store in the Diamond and also plan a house to house delivery system in the Newell and Chester districts, beginning immediately. The Kaiser company took charge of their Chester and Newell wholesale routes Monday.

Gary's Remains Taken

Funeral services are to be held in Gary Memorial church in Wheaton tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock daylight time.

More than twenty years ago the late Judge Gary contributed more than $100,000 for the construction of the church as a memorial to his parents.

The body will lie in state from 2 to 7 p. m. tomorrow. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Ahmer Penniwell, assisted by Bishop F. D. Fleet of Indianapolis, the Rev. Earnest F Tuttle of Evanston, Ill., and the Rev. James T. Ladd of Elgin, Ill., all of the Methodist Episcopal church.

gramme, and indignant Britishers on their own ship wade through a list of American breakfast foods that amazes and outrages them.

At this moment comes a radio from International News Service: "German pilots, Edzard and Frisch, flying Junkers machine, beat Chamberlin's endurance record, flying 52 hours 12 minutes." You thank heaven that soon we shall fly to Europe, escaping the dog and perfume ladies. Vain hope. They will be on the airplane, promenading a deck above the clouds, as soon as planes are a little bigger.

In old days after dark sentimental young people stood whispering behind the wheel house. The older, more serious, loked at the starry sky, muttering about Arcturus, Orion and Pleiades and the Chambers of the South.

That is "old stuff" now. There is no wheel house accessible on a modern ship, and you are not supposed to look at the stars.

The only one of six decks from which they can be seen is dark at night. Nobody uses it. To walk there is to interrupt your musings by falling over shuffle boards or imitation greens for golfers.

On modern ships one star is enough. The one to be seen tonight is wonderously beautiful, deep and soulful. Her picture, in colors, just outside the dining saloon, shows her pretty tiny nose, pressed close to the nose tip of some gentleman. The sign says Pola Negri in "Good and Naughty."

In the smoking room pools are auctioned on the ship's daily run, the pools running to thousands of dollars. The chief smoking room steward, generously remembered by the winner of each pool, gets twice as much as the ship's captain. That also is modern. Many a bootlegger gets four times as much as the president of the United States.

On this voyage Mr. Newmark and Mr. Lehman display strange knowledge as to how fast a ship will go. Martin Conboy, of New York, looks on and says it's too complicated and not worth the bother anyhow.

In spite of ladies and dogs, 90 per cent is improvement in modern travel, which is faster, safer, more comfortable. You have a room with real beds and windows, and higher above sea level than much of the land on Long Island; waves cannot reach you.

News comes through the ether from both shores, and unlike the brother of old Jerome, of Travers and Jerome, you don't wait ten days to learn that Wall Street has ruined you. You know it the same day.

miles out from San Francisco or about 450 miles from its goal.

The message said the Woolaroc reported receiving the radio beacon signals faintly.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Thirty-two ships are standing by to watch for the Dole flyers, the navy announced today.

There are three submarines off Hilo, the mine sweeper, Ortolan, and six submarines in the channel between Hawaii and Maui, and five submarines between Mokokai and Oahu. The sub-tender Widgeon and five submarines are stationed four miles apart between Oahu and Kauai.

The John Rogers came into five submarines north of Kauai four miles apart. The army announced that searchlights and beacons have been set up on the landing field.

Special kitchens have been erected on Wheeler field to feed the crowds gathering to greet the flyers.

Half Way Mark Passed

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.— The three leading Dole planes were believed to have passed the half-way mark of their 2400-mile race to Honolulu and to have entered the home stretch at 4 a. m. today, according to radio reports, mostly fragmentary, received here.

At that hour, the steamship Manukai reported by radio that she had been in communication with Art Goebel's Woolaroc, the only plane in the race equipped with a transmitter. The Woolaroc gave her position as latitude 28.45 N; longitude 143 W, which would put the plane about 1400 miles at sea and 60 miles off her course. The Manukai's captain added, however, that he was not sure of the plane's figures and was endeavoring to check them.

At 6 a. m. the city of Honolulu messaged she had been working with the Woolaroc and that the plane had given her position as latitude 27:50 north; longitude 146 west. "All okay" was the reassuring word sent out by the plane, the steamer reported. At that hour the City of Honolulu was approximately 1,575 miles off the coast.

The plane's position, translated into offshore mileage, on charts here, was placed at about 1,800 miles at sea, or 600 miles from Honolulu.

Radio reports picked up from ships at sea by the Post-Enquirer wireless station on the Oakland municipal airport prompted the belief that at 6 a. m. the "Golden Eagle" and the Aloha were between 1,800 and 2,000 miles out.

Contradicting a report relayed by the Esther Dollar, the City of Los Angeles, working directly with the Oakland station, said that she had sighted two planes high overhead at 3:05 a. m. Pacific coast time. The City of Los Angeles is bound for San Pedro, however, indicating that two of the ships, probably the "Woolaroc" and the "Miss Doran," have deviated nearly 65 miles off course. At 1:35 the airport station picked up a flash from the Manukai, in the great circle course. Reporting the sighting of two planes. The Manukai attempted to signal them, but had no luck, the report added. This strengthened the belief that the two ships were the "Aloha" and the "Golden Eagle," since neither ship has a sending set.

The liner Manoa, rounding the turn on the great circle course and heading for Honolulu, reported to island stations that she had picked up an unsigned message from a ship far at sea telling of the passage high overhead of two Dole planes. The planes, according to the message, were flying closely together.

The source of the message to the Manoa was not definitely established. Belief that the City of Los Angeles had seen the Dole birds was dispelled when the steamer Esther Dollar reported to local radio corporation headquarters that she had been in communication with the City of Los Angeles and that the latter boat had advised that she had neither heard nor seen any of the planes.

The unidentified radio report was interpreted to refer to the Hearst "Golden Eagle" and to Martin Jensen's "Aloha." This report, and the word from the Hanukai regarding the "Woolaroc" accounted tentatively for three of the four flyers. The fourth, the Buhl biplane of Auggie Pedlar and Miss Doran, "The Flying Schoolmarm" was trailing approximately 140 miles behind, due to the necessity of making a second start from the Oakland airport yesterday.

All Hawaii Ready.

WHEELER FIELD, HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Hawaii was ready to greet the Dole flyers today.

Territorial and municipal officials began arriving at Wheeler Field at 5 o'clock. Two battalions of the 27th infantry took up guard duty about the field to keep off the crowd.

It was the largest gathering in the history of the field. Military officials estimated there were 3,500 automobiles parked at the field and lined up along the road leading from the city with others still coming.

Beacon experts of the army estimated that the plane Woolaroc on its last reported position was almost in a direct line with the Beacon Waves.

James Dole, Hawaiian millionaire and donor of the $35,000 pot for the race, arrived on Wheeler Field at 5:35 a. m. entering the reception stand. Dole greeted cordially the officials and committeemen already gathered. He shook hands all around with members of the official receiving group.

Three Soldiers Injured.

WHEELER FIELD, Honolulu, Aug. 17.—Three soldiers sleeping on the road near Wheeler Field were run over by an ambulance early today and badly injured.

These men were the first casualties reported in connection with the gathering at Wheeler Field.

GUARD OFFICERS ARE WITHDRAWN

Major Thomas Quits West Point Mine Zone.

Major A. J. Thomas, Ohio National Guard, assigned to Lisbon for the purpose of making a detailed survey of the mining situation in the West Point field in this county has been withdrawn. Col. Robert Haubrich and Col. O. E. Hardway, two O. N. G. officers first assigned to make observations in this territory, returned for a few hours Tuesday, and when they left they were accompanied by Major Thomas.

A handfull of non-union mine workers are still at West Point, and are making their headquarters in the bunk house provided by the Seger Fuel company. It is related upon authority close to the Seger Fuel company that no effort will be made to produce coal at the West Point mine, all work being directed toward pumping the water from the mine.

A day and night guard is on duty at the West Point mine, but they have little if anything to do. The mine tipple and also the power plant of the Youngstown & Ohio Railroad company is brilliantly illuminated at night as a precautionary measure.

Union mine workers at West Point still maintain their camp across the Wellsville-West Point road from the bunk house of the Seger Fuel company, but not as many men are to be seen about the camp now as a few weeks ago.

ROAD INSPECTOR UNDER ARREST

Gallipolis Police Continue Investigation of Murder Mystery.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Aug. 17.—Edward J. Costello, 25, was at liberty under $2,000 bond here today, to await a preliminary hearing Thursday on charges of violating the Mann white slave act, following the tragic death of Mrs. Florence Buck, in a hotel room Monday.

Costello with Mrs. Loyal Wright, Grimms Landing, W. Va., a sister of the slain woman, registered at the hotel late Sunday. Costello and Mrs. Wright, occupied the same room, it is charged, while Mrs. Buck occupied an adjacent chamber.

During the night, Mrs. Buck was strangled. Her sister was released after being questioned by authorities.

Woolaroc Sends Message.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—"Everything running as per schedule," radioed Art Goebel in the Dole plane Woolaroc at 7 a. m., Pacific Coast time, the Wailupe naval radio station reported today.

Goebel gave his position at that hour at latitude 26:20; longitude 147.40.

MA APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

BOSTON, Aug. 17. — An "eleventh hour" dash to Washington, by either train or airplane, to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti was being planned today by defense legal forces.

The dash to the national capital would be made to obtain a writ of certiorari from the United States supreme court in event of an adverse decision by the Massachusetts supreme judicial court on bills of exceptions to state court rulings against motions for a new trial, revocation of sentence and a writ of error.

Defense counsel, M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, stated that several moves in federal courts were under consideration but that the application for a writ of certiorari was practically decided upon.

ROME FLIGHT TO START SOON

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 17. — "Old Glory" may start for Rome very soon, possibly as early as five o'clock this evening.

While neither Lloyd W. Bertaud nor James De Witt Hill, air mail pilots, would confirm the reported 5 o'clock take-off, it was learned from other sources today that the possibilities for a start at that hour are good.

Weather reports show favorable conditions over the proposed route most of the way to Italy and the big Fokker monoplane is tuned to perfection, Bertaud and Hill worked on it at Curtiss field until four o'clock this morning, assisted by a large crew of mechanics.

PRESIDENT WILL MEET INDIANS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 17.—President Coolidge left here at 8 o'clock this morning for Pine Ridge Indian reservation where 10,000 redskins this afternoon are to greet him. He was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and his son, John. The president is scheduled to deliver an address to the Indians this afternoon.

MARION SUFFERS $20,000 BLAZE

MARION, O., Aug. 17.—Loss of $20,000 was sustained by the Marion Hay, Grain and Supply company today in an early fire. The fire is thought to have originated in an overheated housing. Flour and grain constituted the greater part of the loss.

DEATH ROLL

Canton Men Drive Around Rim of U. S. in 21 Days.

A novel long distance automobile record and a remarkable exhibition of motor car stamina and durability were completed when Police Officer Albert O. Bush and his relief driver and mechanician, Theodore Marsh recently returned to their home city of Canton, Ohio, 21 days after they had left it in a 1924 Chrysler "70" touring car for a drive "Round the Rim" of the United States.

In the three weeks of their absence their itinerary had taken them through every boundary state of the Union and along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coastlines. They added 13,456 miles to the 50,000 already registered on their car's speedometer, making an average of 636 miles a day. The actual elapsed time for the trip, checked by Western Union, was 21 days, 4 hours and 6 minutes.

In computing the daily average time Officer Bush pointed out that consideration must be given the fact that speed laws were observed throughout the trip and in some states faster running was possible than in others.

The time of the new record is all the more striking in view of the almost inconceivable combination of adverse conditions that met the drivers, running the gamut of cloudbursts, floods, mountain snow and blinding sandstorms.

Their daily telegraphic reports show that from the time they left Canton headed east, and all the way down the Atlantic coast, they ran into a succession of furious rainstorms, which in New Hampshire reached the proportions of a cloudburst. Detours through miles of mud, often hubdeep, dragged down their average running time, and washouts entailed long delays until streams could be forded or crossed by improvised bridges.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. — Strength and activity in the motor stocks and high priced specialties was the outstanding feature of early trading today. The dividend rails continued to move forward in the face of disappointing freight traffic reports for the week of August 6, while all of the low priced motor stocks bettered their previous closing prices.

Walter Chrysler's "mystery" statement, due on Saturday, is expected to disclose details about a new car that will make a bid for the Ford business, and the stock has been in demand at the highest prices of the year. Hudson sold up 2 points, while Packard and Studebaker continued to attract attention.

Baldwin was jacked up to another new high level around 260 to the accompaniment of reports that the Fisher brothers were preparing to take an active interest and participation in the affairs of the company. Radio Corporation, American Linseed, International Combustion and other specialty and mercantile stocks which have recently stepped into the limelight, moved upward a point or two. The oils were firm with Lago petroleum duplicating its best previous price for the year above 32. Vanadium was the leader of the independent steel group.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up 20 points on good home and foreign buying. Sterling cables were quoted at 4.86-3 16 and French francs at 3.92⅛. Call money unchanged at 3¾ per cent.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy during the long illness and death of our husband and father.

Especially do we thank Rev. Shaddock of Rogers and the singers for their services.

MRS. JOHN H. FITZSIMMONS AND CHILDREN.

CLASSIFIED AD BRINGS RESULTS

Mrs. John Ludwig, of 820 Highland avenue, had a four-room house, which she desired to rent and so she decided to invest a trifling sum in the classified columns of the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Her investment brought her 24 telephone calls from interested persons; 10 personal interviews; and the satisfaction of renting her property to responsible people.

These few lines did the work:

"House for rent, four rooms, bath, elec., 1 acre for gardening, chicken run, barn and fruit, for rent to responsible parties. Phone 1765-R."

FUNERAL HELD AT COLUMBUS

Services for Mrs. Wheeler and Father Today.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.—A delegation of officials of two international prohibition organizations—the World League Against Alcoholism and the Anti-Saloon league—headed by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of the M. E. church, was to arrive here today to attend the funeral this afternoon of Mrs. Wayne B. Wheeler, and her father, Robert Candy.

Mrs. Wheeler, wife of the general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, died of burns sustained Saturday night in a gasoline explosion at a Michigan resort. Her aged father died of shock soon after Mrs. Wheeler had been injured.

The double funeral was to be held from the Central M. E. church, conducted by Rev. A. G. Schatzman, pastor, and Rev. A. B. Riker. Hundreds of telegrams, telephone messages and letters of condolence from friends and political foes alike throughout the country continued to pour in here to Wheeler today.

NATIONAL GUARD AT CAMP PERRY

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 17.—Contingents of Ohio National Guard riflemen were on the range here today as were several detachments of United States regulars, for first firing practice in preparation for the national rifle matches which start here in September.

A team to represent the O. N. G. in the national event will be selected from the high-scorers, to try for the Hilton trophy which Ohio won in 1924 and lost again in 1925. Lieutenant Noble Morton, of Company C, Lima, Ohio, and Sergt. Franklin Murphy, Company K, Delaware, are expected to try out for a place this year. Both have served on previous teams.

WADDELL FOR BEER AND WINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A new attack on the Volstead act by Col. James C. Waddell, federal alcohol and brewery control chief of New Jersey that he would press for passage of a light wine and beer bill, today added fuel to what promises to be the most lively congressional prohibition fight since the adoption of the 18th amendment.

Waddell, who declared that the Volstead act is not enforceable unless 2¾ per cent beer is legalized, added that there is no reason why the beverage should not be sold in lunch counters, drug stores and groceries.

PIRATE LEADER GETS $100 FINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was fined $100 today by President John Heydler of the National league for alleged "violation of the playing rules and bad conduct."

Bush was ejected from the game by Umpire Ernie Quigley in the first inning for protesting vigorously a decision by Quigley. Quigley declared Lloyd Waner was out at third base on a throw from Eddie Roush. Bush contradicted the statement.

UHRICHSVILLE IS QUARANTINED

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Six cases of infantile paralysis are on record here, following the discovery of two additional cases Tuesday. All places of public meeting have been closed to youths of 16 years or under.

One case is reported at the adjacent city of Dennison, with two probable cases. The epidemic has reached the northern portion of Tuscarawas county, where one new case was reported late Tuesday.

CHECK SPREAD OF PARALYSIS

California and Ohio Lead in Number of Cases Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Although there have been several outbreaks recently, notably in Ohio, good progress is being made in checking the spread of infantile paralysis in the United States, the public health service said today.

So far this month 179 cases are active in the country. In Martins Ferry, Ohio, there were 43 cases this month, with three deaths since August 4. Nine new cases were reported between Aug. 13 and 16.

Cumming said that infantile paralysis spreads by direct contact with infected persons and declared that the service is recommending that all cases be isolated. State health authorities have been requested to report all cases to Washington.

The cases active at present are distributed by states as follows:

California, 56; Ohio, 43; Connecticut, 11; Massachusetts 10; Missouri 15; New Jersey 17; New Mexico 9; Oklahoma 8; and Texas 10.

Claims Riding Record.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Milton A. Smith, a 16-year-old high school youth, today claimed a world's record for continuous bicycle riding. Young Smith pedalled continuously for 24 hours and 15 minutes, covering 250.4 miles.

REMOVAL OF BELMONT COUNTY SHERIFF DEMANDED

GET AFFIDAVITS

Situation in Mine Zones Reported Quiet Today.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Efforts of Col. L. S. Conelly, Ohio National Guard, to bring about a settlement of differences between Sheriff Clyde C. Hardesty and Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell of Belmont county, having failed at a conference here late yesterday, Waddell today was preparing to press prosecution of charges of intoxication against the sheriff, and was to leave for Columbus tonight where he will confer with Gov. Donahey relatives to seeking removal of the sheriff from office.

The differences between the two officials grew out of the rioting here last week, when a taxicab driver transporting non-union miners was was attacked and beaten by union sympathizers. The prosecutor charged that the sheriff was intoxicated during the riot, and incapacitated for performance of his duty. Sheriff Hardesty emphatically denied the charge. Political differences between Hardesty and Waddell are said to have figured in the dispute.

Waddell, before leaving here today, issued a statement in which he declared that he had no prejudice in the mine strike controversy and that his only purpose was to obtain enforcement of the law. He declared he would take numerous affidavits to Gov. Donahey today and demand removal of the sheriff from office.

The situation in mines of this vicinity was reported quiet today with no further violence or outbreaks of any character reported early today.

PRODUCERS SEEK CUT IN FREIGHT

West Virginia Operators Carry Fight to Supreme Court.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Southern West Virginia coal operators today were already making plans to carry their fight for a freight rate reduction on coal to lake ports, as offered by view of the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to allow a reduction of 20 cents a ton.

The decision blocks plans laid by the operators to continue competition in the lake ports with the mines of Pennsylvania and Ohio despite the recent ruling which gave the latter shippers an advantage which the West Virginia operators claim is "ruinous" to their business.

Operators here today expressed belief that an appeal to the U. S. supreme court would result in upsetting the ruling of the interstate commerce commission.

SELLS WHOLESALE BUSINESS ONLY

Gus Remy, proprietor of the Newell System bakery, in the Diamond, announced today that the wholesale business of that concern only had been sold to the Kaiser Baking Company.

The company will continue its bakery and retail store in the Diamond and also plan a house to house delivery system in the Newell and Chester districts, beginning immediately. The Kaiser company took charge of their Chester and Newell wholesale routes Monday.

OFFICIALS MEET AT CONNEAUT

Officials of A. A. A. clubs of western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio will meet at Conneaut, Ohio, this afternoon and tonight. E. M. Diehl, secretary of The Columbiana County Motor Club left this morning to attend the session.

Conferences of motor club officials along the Pennsylvania-Ohio state line have proven very valuable to motor club members through a more complete source of interstate regulation.

Gary's Remains Taken

Funeral services are to be held in Gary Memorial church in Wheaton tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock daylight time.

More than twenty years ago the late Judge Gary contributed more than $100,000 for the construction of the church as a memorial to his parents.

The body will lie in state from 2 to 7 p. m. tomorrow. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Ahmer Penniwell, assisted by Bishop F. D. Fleet of Indianapolis, the Rev. Earnest F Tuttle of Evanston, Ill., and the Rev. James T. Ladd of Elgin, Ill., and of the Methodist Episcopal church.

TODAY

gramme, and indignant Britishers on their own ship wade through a list of American breakfast foods that amazes and outrages them.

At this moment comes a radio from International News Service: "German pilots, Edzard and Frisch, flying Junkers machine, beat Chamberlin's endurance record, flying 52 hours 12 minutes." You thank heaven that soon we shall fly to Europe, escaping the dog and perfume ladies. Vain hope. They will be on the airplane, promenading a deck above the clouds, as soon as planes are a little bigger.

In old days after dark sentimental young people stood whispering behind the wheel house. The older, more serious, loked at the starry sky, muttering about Arcturus, Orion and Pleiades and the Chambers of the South.

That is "old stuff" now. There is no wheel house accessible on a modern ship, and you are not supposed to look at the stars.

The only one of six decks from which they can be seen is dark at night. Nobody uses it. To walk there is to interrupt your musings by falling over shuffle boards or imitation greens for golfers.

On modern ships one star is enough. The one to be seen tonight is wonderously beautiful, deep and soulful. Her picture, in colors, just outside the dining saloon, shows her pretty tiny nose, pressed close to the nose tip of some gentleman. The sign says Pola Negri in "Good and Naughty."

In the smoking room pools are auctioned on the ship's daily run, the pools running to thousands of dollars. The chief smoking room steward, generously remembered by the winner of each pool, gets twice as much as the ship's captain. That also is modern. Many a bootlegger gets four times as much as the president of the United States.

On this voyage Mr. Newmark and Mr. Lehman display strange knowledge as to how fast a ship will go. Martin Conboy, of New York, looks on and says it's too complicated and not worth the bother anyhow.

In spite of ladies and dogs, 90 per cent is improvement in modern travel, which is faster, safer, more comfortable. You have a room with real beds and windows, and higher above sea level than much of the land on Long Island; waves cannot reach you.

News comes through the ether from both shores, and unlike the brother of old Jerome, of Travers and Jerome, you don't wait ten days to learn that Wall Street has ruined you. You know it the same day.

Golden Eagle Leads

miles out from San Francisco or about 450 miles from its goal.

The message said the Woolaroc reported receiving the radio beacon signals faintly.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Thirty-two ships are standing by to watch for the Dole flyers, the navy announced today.

There are three submarines off Hilo, the mine sweeper, Ortolan, and six submarines in the channel between Hawaii and Maui, and five submarines between Mokokai and Oahu. The sub-tender Widgeon and five submarines are stationed four miles apart between Oahu and Kauai.

The John Rogers came into five submarines north of Kauai four miles apart. The army announced that searchlights and beacons have been set up on the landing field.

Special kitchens have been erected on Wheeler field to feed the crowds gathering to greet the flyers.

Half Way Mark Passed

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—The three leading Dole planes were believed to have passed the half-way mark of their 2400-mile race to Honolulu and to have entered the home stretch at 4 a. m. today, according to radio reports, mostly fragmentary, received here.

At that hour, the steamship Manukai reported by radio that she had been in communication with Art Goebel's Woolaroc, the only plane in the race equipped with a transmitter. The Woolaroc gave her position as latitude 28.45 N; longitude 143 W, which would put the plane about 1400 miles at sea and 60 miles off her course. The Manukai's captain added, however, that he was not sure of the plane's figures and was endeavoring to check them.

At 6 a. m. the city of Honolulu messaged she had been working with the Woolaroc and that the plane had given her position as latitude 27:50 north; longitude 146 west. "All okay" was the reassuring word sent out by the plane, the steamer reported. At that hour the City of Honolulu was approximately 1,575 miles off the coast.

The plane's position, translated into offshore mileage, on charts here, was placed at about 1,800 miles at sea, or 600 miles from Honolulu.

Radio reports picked up from ships at sea by the Post-Enquirer wireless station on the Oakland municipal airport prompted the belief that at 6 a. m. the "Golden Eagle" and the Aloha were between 1,800 and 2,000 miles out.

Contradicting a report relayed by the Esther Dollar, the City of Los Angeles, working directly with the Oakland station, said that she had sighted two planes high overhead at 3:05 a. m. Pacific coast time. The City of Los Angeles is bound for San Pedro, however, indicating that two of the ships, probably the "Woolaroc" and the "Miss Doran," have deviated nearly 65 miles off course. At 1:35 the airport station picked up a flash from the Manukai, in the great circle course. Reporting the sighting of two planes. The Manukai attempted to signal them, but had no luck, the report added. This strengthened the belief that the two ships were the "Aloha" and the "Golden Eagle," since neither ship has a sending set.

The liner Manoa, rounding the turn on the great circle course and heading for Honolulu, reported to island stations that she had picked up an unsigned message from a ship far at sea telling of the passage high overhead of two Dole planes. The planes, according to the message, were flying closely together.

The source of the message to the Manoa was not definitely established. Belief that the City of Los Angeles had seen the Dole birds was dispelled when the steamer Esther Dollar reported to local radio corporation headquarters that she had been in communication with the City of Los Angeles and that the latter boat had advised that she had neither heard nor seen any of the planes.

The unidentified radio report was interpreted to refer to the Hearst "Golden Eagle" and to Martin Jensen's "Aloha." This report, and the word from the Hanukai regarding the "Woolaroc" accounted tentatively for three of the four flyers. The fourth, the Buhl biplane of Auggie Pedlar and Miss Doran, "The Flying Schoolmarm" was trailing approximately 140 miles behind, due to the necessity of making a second start from the Oakland airport yesterday.

All Hawaii Ready.

WHEELER FIELD, HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Hawaii was ready to greet the Dole flyers today.

Territorial and municipal officials began arriving at Wheeler Field at 5 o'clock. Two battalions of the 27th infantry took up guard duty about the field to keep off the crowd.

It was the largest gathering in the history of the field. Military officials estimated there were 3,500 automobiles parked at the field and lined up along the road leading from the city with others still coming.

Beacon experts of the army estimated that the plane Woolaroc on its last reported position was almost in a direct line with the Beacon Waves.

James Dole, Hawaiian millionaire and donor of the $35,000 pot for the race, arrived on Wheeler Field at 5:35 a. m. entering the reception stand. Dole greeted cordially the officials and committeemen already gathered. He shook hands all around with members of the official receiving group.

Three Soldiers Injured.

WHEELER FIELD, Honolulu, Aug. 17.—Three soldiers sleeping on the road near Wheeler Field were run over by an ambulance early today and badly injured.

These men were the first casualties reported in connection with the gathering at Wheeler Field.

GUARD OFFICERS ARE WITHDRAWN

Major Thomas Quits West Point Mine Zone.

Major A. J. Thomas, Ohio National Guard, assigned to Lisbon for the purpose of making a detailed survey of the mining situation in the West Point field in this county has been withdrawn. Col. Robert Haubrich and Col. O. E. Hardway, two O. N. G. officers first assigned to make observations in this territory, returned for a few hours Tuesday, and when they left they were accompanied by Major Thomas.

A handfull of non-union mine workers are still at West Point, and are making their headquarters in the bunk house provided by the Seger Fuel company. It is related upon authority close to the Seger Fuel company that no effort will be made to produce coal at the West Point mine, all work being directed toward pumping the water from the mine.

A day and night guard is on duty at the West Point mine, but they have little if anything to do. The mine tipple and also the power plant of the Youngstown & Ohio Railroad company is brilliantly illuminated at night as a precautionary measure.

Union mine workers at West Point still maintain their camp across the Wellsville-West Point road from the bunk house of the Seger Fuel company, but not as many men are to be seen about the camp now as a few weeks ago.

ROAD INSPECTOR UNDER ARREST

Gallipolis Police Continue Investigation of Murder Mystery.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Aug. 17.—Edward J. Costello, 25, was at liberty under $2,000 bond here today, to await a preliminary hearing Thursday on charges of violating the Mann white slave act, following the tragic death of Mrs. Florence Buck, in a hotel room Monday.

Costello with Mrs. Loyal Wright, Grimms Landing, W. Va., a sister of the slain woman, registered at the hotel late Sunday. Costello and Mrs. Wright, occupied the same room, it is charged, while Mrs. Buck occupied an adjacent chamber.

During the night, Mrs. Buck was strangled. Her sister was released after being questioned by authorities.

Woolaroc Sends Message.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—"Everything running as per schedule," radioed Art Goebel in the Dole plane Woolaroc at 7 a. m., Pacific Coast time, the Wailupe naval radio station reported today.

Goebel gave his position at that hour at latitude 26:20; longitude 147.40.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Etta Patterson.

Mrs. Etta Patterson, 47, died last night in the home of her cousin, Mrs. J. W. Early, 1182 Harker avenue, East End, after an extended illness.

She leaves her father, Richard Price; two brothers, William and John Price, and three sisters, Mrs. Stella Morris, Ms. Mattie Pegran and Mrs. Celia Coleman, all of New Kent, Va.

Glenda Roushausen.

Glenda M. Roushausen, five-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Roushausen, died last night in the home, 522 Mulberry street.

Besides her parents, she is survived by two brothers, Elbert and Hillis.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Canton Men Drive Around Rim of U. S. in 21 Days.

A novel long distance automobile record and a remarkable exhibition of motor car stamina and durability were completed when Police Officer Albert O. Bush and his relief driver and mechanician, Theodore Marsh recently returned to their home city of Canton, Ohio, 21 days after they had left it in a 1924 Chrysler "70" touring car for a drive "Round the Rim" of the United States.

In the three weeks of their absence their itinerary had taken them through every boundary state of the Union and along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coastlines. They added 13,456 miles to the 50,000 already registered on their car's speedometer, making an average of 636 miles a day. The actual elapsed time for the trip, checked by Western Union, was 21 days, 4 hours and 6 minutes.

In computing the daily average time Officer Bush pointed out that consideration must be given the fact that speed laws were observed throughout the trip and in some states faster running was possible than in others.

The time of the new record is all the more striking in view of the almost inconceivable combination of adverse conditions that met the drivers, running the gamut of cloudbursts, floods, mountain snow and blinding sandstorms.

Their daily telegraphic reports show that from the time they left Canton headed east, and all the way down the Atlantic coast, they ran into a succession of furious rainstorms, which in New Hampshire reached the proportions of a cloudburst. Detours through miles of mud, often hubdeep, dragged down their average running time, and washouts entailed long delays until streams could be forded or crossed by improvised bridges.

MA APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—An "eleventh hour" dash to Washington, by either train or airplane, to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti was being planned today by defense legal forces.

The dash to the national capital would be made to obtain a writ of certiorari from the United States supreme court in event of an adverse decision by the Massachusetts supreme judicial court on bills of exceptions to state court rulings against motions for a new trial, revocation of sentence and a writ of error.

Defense counsel, M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, stated that several moves in federal courts were under consideration but that the application for a writ of certiorari was practically decided upon.

ROME FLIGHT TO START SOON

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 17. — "Old Glory" may start for Rome very soon, possibly as early as five o'clock this evening.

While neither Lloyd W. Bertaud nor James De Witt Hill, air mail pilots, would confirm the reported 5 o'clock take-off, it was learned from other sources today that the possibilities for a start at that hour are good.

Weather reports show favorable conditions over the proposed route most of the way to Italy and the big Fokker monoplane is tuned to perfection, Bertaud and Hill worked on it at Curtiss field until four o'clock this morning, assisted by a large crew of mechanics.

PRESIDENT WILL MEET INDIANS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 17.—President Coolidge left here at 8 o'clock this morning for Pine Ridge Indian reservation where 10,000 redskins this afternoon are to greet him. He was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and his son, John. The president is scheduled to deliver an address to the Indians this afternoon.

MARION SUFFERS $20,000 BLAZE

MARION, O., Aug. 17.—Loss of $20,000 was sustained by the Marion Hay, Grain and Supply company today in an early fire. The fire is thought to have originated in an overheated housing. Flour and grain constituted the greater part of the loss.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. — Strength and activity in the motor stocks and high priced specialties was the outstanding feature of early trading today. The dividend rails continued to move forward in the face of disappointing freight traffic reports for the week of August 6, while all of the low priced motor stocks bettered their previous closing prices.

Walter Chrysler's "mystery" statement, due on Saturday, is expected to disclose details about a new car that will make a bid for the Ford business, and the stock has been in demand at the highest prices of the year. Hudson sold up 2 points, while Packard and Studebaker continued to attract attention.

Baldwin was jacked up to another new high level around 260 to the accompaniment of reports that the Fisher brothers were preparing to take an active interest and participation in the affairs of the company. Radio Corporation, American Linseed, International Combustion and other specialty and mercantile stocks which have recently stepped into the limelight, moved upward a point or two. The oils were firm with Lago petroleum duplicating its best previous price for the year above 32. Vanadium was the leader of the independent steel group.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up 20 points on good home and foreign buying. Sterling cables were quoted at 4.86-3 16 and French francs at 3.92⅛. Call money unchanged at 3¾ per cent.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy during the long illness and death of our husband and father.

Especially do we thank Rev. Shaddock of Rogers and the singers for their services.

MRS. JOHN H. FITZSIMMONS AND CHILDREN.

CLASSIFIED AD BRINGS RESULTS

Mrs. John Ludwig, of 820 Highland avenue, had a four-room house, which she desired to rent and so she decided to invest a trifling sum in the classified columns of the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Her investment brought her 24 telephone calls from interested persons; 10 personal interviews; and the satisfaction of renting her property to responsible people.

These few lines did the work:

FUNERAL HELD AT COLUMBUS

Services for Mrs. Wheeler and Father Today.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.—A delegation of officials of two international prohibition organizations—the World League Against Alcoholism and the Anti-Saloon league—headed by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of the M. E. church, was to arrive here today to attend the funeral this afternoon of Mrs. Wayne B. Wheeler, and her father, Robert Candy.

Mrs. Wheeler, wife of the general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, died of burns sustained Saturday night in a gasoline explosion at a Michigan resort. Her aged father died of shock soon after Mrs. Wheeler had been injured.

The double funeral was to be held from the Central M. E. church, conducted by Rev. A. G. Schatzman, pastor, and Rev. A. B. Riker. Hundreds of telegrams, telephone messages and letters of condolence from friends and political foes alike throughout the country continued to pour in here to Wheeler today.

NATIONAL GUARD AT CAMP PERRY

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 17.—Contingents of Ohio National Guard riflemen were on the range here today as were several detachments of United States regulars, for first firing practice in preparation for the national rifle matches which start here in September.

A team to represent the O. N. G. in the national event will be selected from the high-scorers, to try for the Hilton trophy which Ohio won in 1924 and lost again in 1925. Lieutenant Noble Morton, of Company G, Lima, Ohio, and Sergt. Franklin Murphy, Company K, Delaware, are expected to try out for a place this year. Both have served on previous teams.

WADDELL FOR BEER AND WINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A new attack on the Volstead act by Col. James C. Waddell, federal alcohol and brewery control chief of New Jersey that he would press for passage of a light wine and beer bill, today added fuel to what promises to be the most lively congressional prohibition fight since the adoption of the 18th amendment.

Waddell, who declared that the Volstead act is not enforceable unless 2¾ per cent beer is legalized, added that there is no reason why the beverage should not be sold in lunch counters, drug stores and groceries.

PIRATE LEADER GETS $100 FINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was fined $100 today by President John Heydler of the National league for alleged "violation of the playing rules and bad conduct."

Bush was ejected from the game by Umpire Ernie Quigley in the first inning for protesting vigorously a decision by Quigley. Quigley declared Lloyd Waner was out at third base on a throw from Eddie Roush. Bush contradicted the statement.

UHRICHSVILLE IS QUARANTINED

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Six cases of infantile paralysis are on record here, following the discovery of two additional cases Tuesday. All places of public meeting have been closed to youths of 16 years or under.

One case is reported at the adjacent city of Dennison, with two probable cases. The epidemic has reached the northern portion of Tuscarawas county, where one new case was reported late Tuesday.

CHECK SPREAD OF PARALYSIS

California and Ohio Lead in Number of Cases Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Although there have been several outbreaks recently, notably in Ohio, good progress is being made in checking the spread of infantile paralysis in the United States, the public health service said today.

So far this month 179 cases are active in the country. In Martins Ferry, Ohio, there were 43 cases this month, with three deaths since August 4. Nine new cases were reported between Aug. 13 and 16.

Cumming said that infantile paralysis spreads by direct contact with infected persons and declared that the service is recommending that all cases be isolated. State health authorities have been requested to report all cases to Washington.

The cases active at present are distributed by states as follows:

California, 56; Ohio, 43; Connecticut, 11; Massachusetts 10; Missouri 15; New Jersey 17; New Mexico 9; Oklahoma 8; and Texas 10.

Claims Riding Record.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Milton A. Smith, a 16-year-old high school youth, today claimed a world's record for continuous bicycle riding. Young Smith pedalled continuously for 24 hours and 15 minutes, covering 250.4 miles.

BUSINESS MEN STAGE OUTING

Annual Event Sponsored by Chester Merchants at Rock Springs.

Annual basket picnic of the Chester Business Men's association is being held today at Rock Springs park with a large crowd in attendance. Stores of the city closed at 10 o'clock.

Feature of the afternoon was an athletic program in which events were held for men, women and children. Baseball game was staged between clerks of Chester and East Liverpool, while a soft ball contest was played between Chester and business men of East Liverpool, Newell, East End and Wellsville.

Sport committee is composed of L. W. Bird, F. E. Werkheiser, Dr. H. E. Matthews, Max Tuttle, H. Kenneta Kimble and A. G. Floyd.

Free coffee was furnished by the Campbell Wood company, of Pittsburgh, while music was rendered by Bennett's band of Chester.

Business men of East Liverpol, Wellsville, Newell nad East End were largely represented.

BIDS SOUGHT ON CITY BUILDING

Bids for the construction of the new combined city hall and fire station will be opened in the municipal building on Tuesday, September 6. Plans, profiles and specifications are now in the hands of city clerk, A. Earl Wilson.

CHANGES MADE AT WEIRTON MILL

A number of changes, including several promotions, was announced by the Weirton Steel company in the management of departments at their Weirton mills.

J. M. Hill has been promoted from manager of the tin plate and sheet mill to manager of the tin plate and sheet mills of the Weirton plant, succeeding E. M. Mentzer, who is now on a vacation. Mr. Mentzer will return in November and will assume duties in the general offices of the company.

Hugh H. Scanlon, who was succeeded as manager of the tin mill by E. W. Reiger, will go to Steubenville as manager of the Weirton plant, in that city.

E. E. Paddock of the Steubenville plant, has been promoted to the general offices in Weirton. He was formerly a superintendent in the Weirton plant.

R. F. Horn will become manager of the sheet mill, succeeding Mr. Hill. Mr. Horn, until his promotion, was chief clerk at the Weirton office. Adam Hill will succeed Horn as chief clerk.

BEAVER FALLS HERE TONIGHT

Record crowd is expected to attend the baseball game here tonight on Smith field between Chester Superior Cord Tires nad the Beaver Falls Elks. This is without a doubt the best attraction ever booked for fans in this section by Manager Frank H. Riley. The contest will begin at 5:30.

Delegations are expected to be on hand from all towns in this district.

Lawn Fete Arranged.

Lawn fete will be held tomorrow night on the grounds of the First Methodist Episcopal church by the Ladies Aid society of the church.

JUNIOR EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Junior exhibits, the entries of boys and girls, will play an important part in the forthcoming forty-seventh annual West Virginia exposition and state fair at Wheeling which opens Saturday, September 3 and continues to the 10. They will constitute the handiwork of boys and girls, both in the cities and on the farms.

Chief among these junior exhibits will be those of the 4-H clubs. The sons and daughters of the farmers will have their inning here. They will exhibit calves which they have raised, judge live stock, exhibit poultry, sewing and garden truck. The 4-H club camp at the fair grounds will be a virtual bee hive of industry. Here will be quartered the boys and girls entered in the state contests during their stay at the fair.

In the textile and fancy work department the girls under 14 years of age will show their skill with a needle. They will exhibit specimens of cross-stitch embroidery, darning, buttonholes, patching, crochet and other needlework of various kinds.

The school exhibit is another juvenile feature of the fair. The pupils of grade and high schools will show their skill in many endeavors. These will include applied electricity, industrial drawing, pottery, sheet metal, wood turning, cabinet making, architectural drawing, designing, machine shop work, basketry, home economics, art and handwork.

Eastern Star Meeting.

Members of Crescent chapter No. 49, Order of Eastern Star, will meet Thursday night in the Masonic temple, First street. Routine business will be transacted.

Many Attend Garden Party.

Large crowd attended the garden party last night under the auspices of the Loyal Daughters class of the First Christian church at the home of Mrs. A. Earl Wilson in Church street.

Prayer Services.

Prayer services tonight in the First United Presbyterian church will be in charge of H. C. Leeper. Services will be held in the other churches of the city at the usual hour.

ANTI CLUB FOR TAX REDUCTION

Will Urge Heavier Penalties for Intoxicated Auto Drivers.

Members of the board of directors of the Columbiana County Motor club met in regular monthly session in H. C. Armstrong's office in Lisbon Monday night.

The body went on record for the repeal of the remaining 3 per cent federal war excise on passenger automobiles and will work with the American Automobile association for its discontinuation.

The board of directors are preparing to appear before councilmanic bodies in Columbiana county for the purpose of having ordinances enacted in conformity with a bill recently passed by the state legislature providing heavier penalties for intoxicated drivers of automobiles.

Public approval has caused the board to continue the personal automobile accident insurance policy as a part of club membership service until the date of their next meeting on September 19, 1927.

HOT DOG, SOME CLASS!

NEW YORK.—No longer will people of artistic tastes need to shudder every time they glance at a hot dog stand. The Art Center of New York has announced that $7,000 donated to it by Mrs. John D Rockefeller, Jr., would be used to provide prizes for architectural suggestions for artistic hot dog stands. As to the hot dog itself, it's still to retain its present shape.

A PIPE! NO, NEVER!

PARIS.—If American women make up their minds to go to Paris to see the wild, wild life in Paris cafes, they must reconcile themselves to one thing; that is, leave their pipes at home. This was emphatically decided when two girl students were ejected for smoking their pipes at dinner at a famous cafe.

WELL, WHY NOT?

SAN FRANCISCO.—According to A. B. C. Dohrmann, dean of Pacific coast merchants, America soon will be a nation of garage owners with bedrooms attached, instead of home owners. Such cramped living quarters, said he, never can insure happiness.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who so kindly ministered to our dear father, Mr. J. B. Rowe and to us during his sickness and death.

We especially thank the Rev. Fowler for his comforting words and male quartette, also the neighbors who sent flowers and donated cars.

BEAVER COUNTY DIVORCES CLIMB

For every eight couples married in Beaver county in 1926, one couple was divorced, according to the report of the Department of Commerce, Wasington, just issued. There were 956 marriages and 121 divorces during the year. There was an increase of 15 marriages and seven more divorces than in 1925.

In the state during 1926 there was a decrease in divorces. In 1926 there were 7,706 divorces and in 1925 there were 8,027. There were 72,222 marriages in 1926 as compared to 71,093 in 1925.

Fans To Attend Game.

Choir Rehearsal Scheduled.

Choir rehearsal will be held at 8 o'clock Friday night in the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

Missionary Meeting.

Mrs. W. E. Baird will be hostess to members of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church tomorrow night at her home in Ohio avenue.

Tires Scheduled Here.

Knowles, Taylor and Knowles and Chester Superior Cord tires are booked to clash in an Industrial league game tomorrow night at Columbian park.

Lodgemen To Meet.

Members of Pennova lodge No. 880, I. O. O. F. will meet tomorrow night in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

DINNER STORIES

He Ought to Know.

Two business men were discussing a competitor who once had been an employee of the older of the two men.

"I happen to know that fellow is a sharper and not above lying or stealing when it's to his advantage," remarked the older man.

Do you know him personally?"

"Know him? Say, I taught him everything he knows."

Not in His Class.

"Porter, I say, porter! Don't let that man off here with me! He is not of my station."

"Prithee, whaffo?"

"He comes from a lower berth?"

How THE Other Half Behaves

HOT DOG, SOME CLASS!

NEW YORK.—No longer will people of artistic tastes need to shudder every time they glance at a hot dog stand. The Art Center of New York has announced that $7,000 donated to it by Mrs. John D Rockefeller, Jr., would be used to provide prizes for architectural suggestions for artistic hot dog stands. As to the hot dog itself, it's still to retain its present shape.

A PIPE! NO, NEVER!

PARIS.—If American women make up their minds to go to Paris to see the wild, wild life in Paris cafes, they must reconcile themselves to one thing; that is, leave their pipes at home. This was emphatically decided when two girl students were ejected for smoking their pipes at dinner at a famous cafe.

WELL, WHY NOT?

SAN FRANCISCO.—According to A. B. C. Dohrmann, dean of Pacific coast merchants, America soon will be a nation of garage owners with bedrooms attached, instead of home owners. Such cramped living quarters, said he, never can insure happiness.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who so kindly ministered to our dear father, Mr. J. B. Rowe and to us during his sickness and death.

We especially thank the Rev. Fowler for his comforting words and male quartette, also the neighbors who sent flowers and donated cars.

MRS. J. B. ROWE AND FAMILY.

DINNER STORIES

He Ought to Know.

Two business men were discussing a competitor who once had been an employee of the older of the two men.

"I happen to know that fellow is a sharper and not above lying or stealing when it's to his advantage," remarked the older man.

Do you know him personally?"

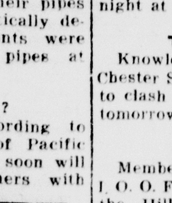

"Know him? Say, I taught him everything he knows."

Not in His Class.

"Porter, I say, porter! Don't let that man off here with me! He is not of my station."

"Prithee, whaffo?"

"He comes from a lower berth?"

'ROOKIES' REAL FARCE COMEDY

All-Star Cast in Picture at American Theatre.

A rip roaring farce comedy. A laugh in every foot of celluloid, and a chuckle, every inch!

That's an apt description of "Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's latest comedy, which is being shown at the American theatre.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, two inimitable comedians, are introduced as a team in this farce, and between them they manage to keep the audience in an uproar from beginning to fade-out.

The story, which was filmed with the cooperation of the United States government, has a background of the citizens' military training camp, held annually in many of the states, a background affording ample opportunity for thrills and laughs.

Byron Morgan, who wrote the original story, nad Sam Wood, who directed the picture, mut have spent many days figuring out the laugh-producing situations and gags. Don't miss it!

More recently the Better Business Bureaus have been getting after fakes of this kind. The Bureaus advise the public to make inquiry before contributing to any unknown charity, benefit, or advertising proposition, or before buying anything from itinerant solicitors who offer their wares with the plea that a purchase will "help" some one or some movement and thus be semi-charitable. Almost invariably a Bureau can supply immediate information on such schemes and is always in a position promptly to investigate others.

Individuals who comprise the general public are urged in their buying and "contributing" to curb that cupidity that is characteristic of so many humans. Cupidity, freely defined, is the desire to get something for nothing, or almost nothing. The "something" may be extraordinary profit on an investment or self-exaltation from a charity contribution.

WELLSVILLE SEWER INSPECTION NEAR COMPLETION

COMMISSION AND ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEET

Prepare Recommendations on Drainage Problems.

CONFER THURSDAY

Suggestions Will be Submitted to City Council.

With their work practically completed, the sewer commission appointed last week by Wellsville city council to inspect drainage conditions in the west end of the city from Fourteenth sreet down, is expected to confer on Thursday evening with Engineers McGill, for the city, and Frederick, for the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, preparatory to submitting their recommendations to solons for action.

The meeting of commission members and engineers on Thursday evening will be followed by another conference between the commission and city council when recommendations and views of the commission members will be discussed in detail. The complete report and recommendations will then be made public at a subsequent session of council.

The members of the sewer commission include: D. S. Brookman, first ward; C. C. Ewing, second ward; Frank Kerr, third ward; Issac Cable, fourth ward; C. J. Berg, Martin Foley and J. S. McLane, at large.

FILE ACTION ON $50,000 NOTES

Suit to recover $50,000 and interest on 10 notes of $5,000 each given at Salineville, July 24, 1925, has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney Elmer E. Black of Salineville in behalf of the First National Bank of Marietta, against James S. and Bridget Strabley, John H. and Beatrice Strabley, James C. and Margaret F. Strabley; the Dillon Electric Co., of Canton and the Miller & Coulson Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The notes were secured by mortgage deeds on 13 tracts of land in sections 29 and 35 in Washington township.

CARAVELLA AND SPELL IN JAIL

Fined $2,000 Each at Police Court Hearings.

Patsy Caravella and Peter Spell, arrested last Friday in a raid by local police on a farm south of Lisbon, are in jail today in default of fines amounting to 52,000 each, assessed by Mayor W. L. Fogo following hearings yesterday afternoon.

Caravella and Spell were charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, second offense. A number of witnesses were introduced during the hearings, the defendants being represented by Attorney Frank Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

Frank Fusco and Patsy Romano, arrested along with Caravella and Spell, are at liberty under bond pending disposition of their cases on Tuesday, August 30, Mayor Fogo announced today.

Visit in Chicago.

Mrs. N. S. Wood and son Albert of First avenue are spending two weeks with the former's sister, Mrs. R. J. Dickerson, in Chicago.

MOTORS PLAY MIDLAND HERE

Meet All-Stars Tonight; Newell Thursday and Saturday.

Two more games with the Laughlin champions of the City Industrial league and an engagement with the Midland All Stars will round out the Wellsville Nash Motors' schedule for the present week.

The locals are billed to meet the Midland aggregation tonight at 5:30 at Nicholson Field in an exhibition encounter.

On Thursday night the team will play at Newell in a league contest. A bad first inning when the Newell club crashed out three straight hits and scored two runs discounted a brilliant pitching exhibition by Huffman last night.

On Saturday afternoon, according to arrangements made by the two clubs last night, Laughlin will play the locals in an exhibition game at Nicholson Field.

Motor to New York.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted us during our bereavement in the loss of our husband and father; especially Rev. Berger for his kind words of sympathy, the singers and all those who donated cars; the state highway department; and friends and neighbors for their beautiful floral offerings.

CIVIL SERVICE PLANS EXAMS

Seek Eligibles for Patrolman, Janitor Jobs.

Date for a civil service commission examination for patrolman, patrol drivers and public school janitors was fixed at Friday, August 26, at a meeting of the commission last night in the city hall.

One vacancy exists in the ranks of public school janitors and this will be filled from the eligibles certified by the commission after the examination. There are no vacancies at present among patrolmen or patrol drivers, but the list of successful applicants will be retained to select from in case of future needs.

COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Will Confer Monday on New Power Co. Franchise.

City council held a short session last night, the third meeting of the municipal lawmakers in as many weeks.

Plans were announced by the street and light and the finance committees for a meeting with Ohio Power company representatives next Monday night here when a proposed ordinance granting the electric power company a new franchise will be discussed preparatory to formal action at a later session of the solons.

Each member of council as well as city officials were presented with copies of the proposed ordinances last night.

A communication from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company asking that the city inspect repaving jobs by the gas company between the street car rails, was referred to the service director. The street car company communication, signed by C. A. Smith, general manager, pointed out that unless the bricks, which were taken up by the gas company to install and inspect pipe lines, were replaced carefully, the surface of the street would be damaged.

The street and light committee recommended the relocating of a telephone pole at the corner of Third and Broadway and a white coat of paint for electric light standards.

Auditor Eckfeld submitted the following report: General fund, $1,843.13; safety, $1,249.06; health, $544.26; service, $1,039.93; water, $3,002.45; cemetery, $1,103.15; library, $378.09; gasoline tax, $5,729.39; special water, $4,734.63; auto license, $3,844.33; cemetery trust, $613.37; firemen's indemnity, $350.06; sinking fund depository, $26,259.60.

EX-SOLDIER TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE AFOOT

15,000 Mile Hike in Three Years is Plan.

TO MAKE RECORD

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 17. — New York to Paris, not by airplane but afoot.

Such is the intention of John Oliver Porter, world war veteran and globe trotter extraordinary of this city.

"Quite a task, yes, but I'll do it," he declared with much emphasis. "They laughed at Lindbergh and no doubt they'll do the same to me, but I'll see Paris."

Porter's declaration has set this quaint little New England town agog. It's the chief topic of the day. Many of the "boys" go as far back as Colonial days, when Danvers, once old Salem village, was the cradle of witchcraft where men of strange ideas were punished by death, it being taken for granted that they were possessed of some evil spirit.

Only Way Left.

Since travel to Paris has been accomplished by almost every means conceivable only one way remains and that is to hike it, according to Porter.

Porter will begin his trek to Europe the latter part of this month. From New York, he will move to Canada, thence to Alaska and the Behring Sea. What next? There, according to Porter, is the greatest handicap of the hike. A sixty mile stretch of water is frozen solidly for a period of three months or more during the course of winter. Indians and Eskimoes living in the vicinity are known to frequently cross that great stretch during winter time. Cold, yes, very cold, they tell us, perhaps 70 degrees below zero or more. But, according to Porter, 60 miles is not far when a man is properly clothed and with a suitable guide the move can be made without any undue exertion.

Once across, Porter then faces a stretch of Asiatic country covering a stretch of several thousands of miles. Dangers are many among them being the cold.

According to Porter approximately three days will be consummated in his task perhaps more with the possibility that some 15,000 miles will be covered before the finish.

Will Lecture Enroute.

Porter is a native of the town of Marblehead, the town that claims to be the birthplace of the American navy. Walking is his chief hobby. Even now Porter thinks no more of walking 30 or more miles a day through the woods and different neighboring towns. During the World war, Porter was a member of the 20th Field Artillery. He served two years in France and never faltered once during the long hikes that were prevalent during those days.

He is a magazine salesman by occupation and is known to have visited practically every college in the country during the last ten years. Porter will turn to lecturing at various points enroute.

Porter is now working during his spare time making plans for his undertaking.

The latter part of this month will see John Oliver Porter, of Danvers, starting his jaunt to Paris from New York.

"I want it understood—not by airplane, but afoot," remarked Porter. He seems to be wondering as to whether the folks back home will be calling him the "walking fool."

"Paris is my goal," declared Porter. "Just watch me!"

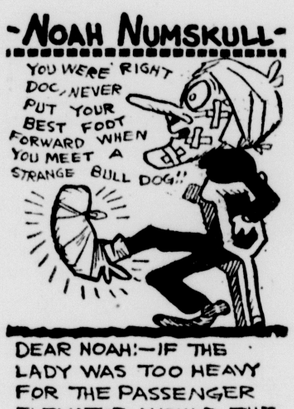

PHILADELPHIA POLICE CHECK MURDER STORY TOLD BY WIDOW OF SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 17. — Police authorities of this city have asked the British Admiralty and the police authorities of Tampico, Mexico, to cooperate in tracing down an alleged trail of murder which stretches back 22 years, and ended in the harbor here with the death, by suicide, of a barge captain, Juan Fernandez.

The tale of three murders, alleged to have been committed by Fernandez, was told by his widow, who said Fernandez had confessed them to her. She declared he suicided in fear of his crimes being found out by the authorities of one of the countries affected—Guatemala, Mexico, and Great Britain.

According to the widow's story, Fernandez shot and killed his brother in their home in Guatemala, 22 years ago, when Fernandez was only 11 years old. He then fled the country. In 1927, the widow asserted, Fernandez stabbed to death a man at Tampico, Mexico, during a quarrel, and then fled that country. His third murder, according to the widow's story, was committed the following year aboard a British merchant ship. She said Fernandez choked a sailor to death during a quarrel aboard the vessel, and threw the body overboard to conceal the crime.

Police are holding the widow pending a check of her story.

Seek Eligibles for Patrolman, Janitor Jobs.

Date for a civil service commission examination for patrolman, patrol drivers and public school janitors was fixed at Friday, August 26, at a meeting of the commission last night in the city hall.

One vacancy exists in the ranks of public school janitors and this will be filled from the eligibles certified by the commission after the examination. There are no vacancies at present among patrolmen or patrol drivers, but the list of successful applicants will be retained to select from in case of future needs.

COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Will Confer Monday on New Power Co. Franchise.

City council held a short session last night, the third meeting of the municipal lawmakers in as many weeks.

Plans were announced by the street and light and the finance committees for a meeting with Ohio Power company representatives next Monday night here when a proposed ordinance granting the electric power company a new franchise will be discussed preparatory to formal action at a later session of the solons.

Each member of council as well as city officials were presented with copies of the proposed ordinances last night.

A communication from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company asking that the city inspect repaving jobs by the gas company between the street car rails, was referred to the service director. The street car company communication, signed by C. A. Smith, general manager, pointed out that unless the bricks, which were taken up by the gas company to install and inspect pipe lines, were replaced carefully, the surface of the street would be damaged.

The street and light committee recommended the relocating of a telephone pole at the corner of Third and Broadway and a white coat of paint for electric light standards.

Auditor Eckfeld submitted the following report: General fund, $1,843.13; safety, $1,249.66; health, $544.26; service, $1,039.93; water, $3,002.45; cemetery, $1,103.15; library, $378.09; gasoline tax, $5,729.39; special water, $4,734.63; auto license, $3,844.33; cemetery trust, $613.37; firemen's indemnity, $350.06; sinking fund depository, $26,259.60.

EX-SOLDIER TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE AFOOT

15,000 Mile Hike in Three Years is Plan.

TO MAKE RECORD

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 17. — New York to Paris, not by airplane but afoot.

Such is the intention of John Oliver Porter, world war veteran and globe trotter extraordinary of this city.

"Quite a task, yes, but I'll do it," he declared with much emphasis. "They laughed at Lindbergh and no doubt they'll do the same to me, but I'll see Paris."

Porter's declaration has set this quaint little New England town agog. It's the chief topic of the day. Many of the "boys" go as far back as Colonial days, when Danvers, once old Salem village, was the cradle of witchcraft where men of strange ideas were punished by death, it being taken for granted that they were possessed of some evil spirit.

Only Way Left.

Since travel to Paris has been accomplished by almost every means conceivable only one way remains and that is to hike it, according to Porter.

Porter will begin his trek to Europe the latter part of this month. From New York, he will move to Canada, thence to Alaska and the Behring Sea. What next? There, according to Porter, is the greatest handicap of the hike. A sixty mile stretch of water is frozen solidly for a period of three months or more during the course of winter. Indians and Eskimoes living in the vicinity are known to frequently cross that great stretch during winter time. Cold, yes, very cold, they tell us, perhaps 70 degrees below zero or more. But, according to Porter, 60 miles is not far when a man is properly clothed and with a suitable guide the move can be made without any undue exertion.

Once across, Porter then faces a stretch of Asiatic country covering a stretch of several thousands of miles. Dangers are many among them being the cold.

According to Porter approximately three days will be consummated in his task perhaps more with the possibility that some 15,000 miles will be covered before the finish.

Will Lecture Enroute.

Porter is a native of the town of Marblehead, the town that claims to be the birthplace of the American navy. Walking is his chief hobby. Even now Porter thinks no more of walking 30 or more miles a day through the woods and different neighboring towns. During the World war, Porter was a member of the 20th Field Artillery. He served two years in France and never faltered once during the long hikes that were prevalent during those days.

He is a magazine salesman by occupation and is known to have visited practically every college in the country during the last ten years. Porter will turn to lecturing at various points enroute.

Porter is now working during his spare time making plans for his undertaking.

The latter part of this month will see John Oliver Porter, of Danvers, starting his jaunt to Paris from New York.

"I want it understood—not by airplane, but afoot," remarked Porter. He seems to be wondering as to whether the folks back home will be calling him the "walking fool."

"Paris is my goal," declared Porter. "Just watch me!"

PHILADELPHIA POLICE CHECK MURDER STORY TOLD BY WIDOW OF SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 17. — Police authorities of this city have asked the British Admiralty and the police authorities of Tampico, Mexico, to cooperate in tracing down an alleged trail of murder which stretches back 22 years, and ended in the harbor here with the death, by suicide, of a barge captain, Juan Fernandez.

The tale of three murders, alleged to have been committed by Fernandez, was told by his widow, who said Fernandez had confessed them to her. She declared he suicided in fear of his crimes being found out by the authorities of one of the countries affected—Guatemala, Mexico, and Great Britain.

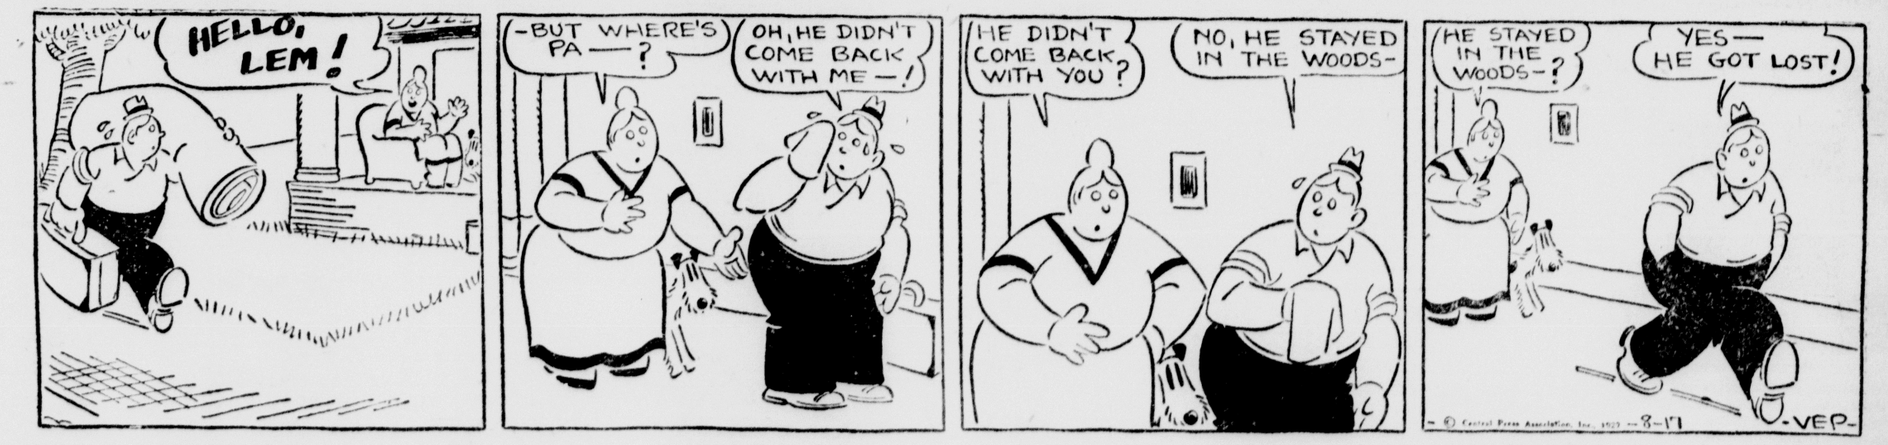

According to the widow's story, Fernandez shot and killed his brother in their home in Guatemala, 22 years ago, when Fernandez was only 11 years old. He then fled the country. In 1927, the widow asserted, Fernandez stabbed to death a man at Tampico, Mexico, during a quarrel, and then fled that country. His third murder, according to the widow's story, was committed the following year aboard a British merchant ship. She said Fernandez choked a sailor to death during a quarrel aboard the vessel, and threw the body overboard to conceal the crime.

Police are holding the widow pending a check of her story.

'ROOKIES' REAL FARCE COMEDY

All-Star Cast in Picture at American Theatre.

A rip roaring farce comedy. A laugh in every foot of celluicid, and a chuckle, every inch!

That's an apt description of "Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest comedy, which is being shown at the American theatre.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, two inimitable comedians, are introduced as a team in this farce, and between them they manage to keep the audience in an uproar from beginning to fade-out.

The story, which was filmed with the cooperation of the United States government, has a background of the citizens' military training camp, held annually in many of the states, a background affording ample opportunity for thrills and laughs.

Byron Morgan, who wrote the original story, nad Sam Wood, who directed the picture, mut have spent many days figuring out the laugh-producing situations and gags. Don't miss it!

The Bureaus advise the public to make inquiry before contributing to any unknown charity, benefit, or advertising proposition, or before buying anything from itinerant solicitors who offer their wares with the plea that a purchase will "help" some one or some movement and thus be semi-charitable. Almost invariably a Bureau can supply immediate information on such schemes and is always in a position promptly to investigate others.

Individuals who comprise the general public are urged in their buying and "contributing" to curb that cupidity that is characteristic of so many humans. WELLSVILLE SEWER INSPECTION NEAR COMPLETION

COMMISSION AND ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEET

Prepare Recommendations on Drainage Problems.

CONFER THURSDAY

Suggestions Will be Submitted to City Council.

With their work practically completed, the sewer commission appointed last week by Wellsville city council to inspect drainage conditions in the west end of the city from Fourteenth sreet down, is expected to confer on Thursday evening with Engineers McGill, for the city, and Frederick, for the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, preparatory to submitting their recommendations to solons for action.

The meeting of commission members and engineers on Thursday evening will be followed by another conference between the commission and city council when recommendations and views of the commission members will be discussed in detail. The complete report and recommendations will then be made public at a subsequent session of council.

The members of the sewer commission include: D. S. Brookman, first ward; C. C. Ewing, second ward; Frank Kerr, third ward; Issac Cable, fourth ward; C. J. Berg, Martin Foley and J. S. McLane, at large.

FILE ACTION ON $50,000 NOTES

Suit to recover $50,000 and interest on 10 notes of $5,000 each given at Salineville, July 24, 1925, has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney Elmer E. Black of Salineville in behalf of the First National Bank of Marietta, against James S. and Bridget Strabley, John H. and Beatrice Strabley, James C. and Margaret F. Strabley; the Dillon Electric Co., of Canton and the Miller & Coulson Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The notes were secured by mortgage deeds on 13 tracts of land in sections 29 and 35 in Washington township.

Fined $2,000 Each at Police Court Hearings.

Patsy Caravella and Peter Spell, arrested last Friday in a raid by local police on a farm south of Lisbon, are in jail today in default of fines amounting to 52,000 each, assessed by Mayor W. L. Fogo following hearings yesterday afternoon.

Caravella and Spell were charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, second offense. A number of witnesses were introduced during the hearings, the defendants being represented by Attorney Frank Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

Frank Fusco and Patsy Romano, arrested along with Caravella and Spell, are at liberty under bond pending disposition of their cases on Tuesday, August 30, Mayor Fogo announced today.

Visit in Chicago.

Mrs. N. S. Wood and son Albert of First avenue are spending two weeks with the former's sister, Mrs. R. J. Dickerson, in Chicago.

MOTORS PLAY MIDLAND HERE

Meet All-Stars Tonight; Newell Thursday and Saturday.

Two more games with the Laughlin champions of the City Industrial league and an engagement with the Midland All Stars will round out the Wellsville Nash Motors' schedule for the present week.

The locals are billed to meet the Midland aggregation tonight at 5:30 at Nicholson Field in an exhibition encounter.

On Thursday night the team will play at Newell in a league contest. A bad first inning when the Newell club crashed out three straight hits and scored two runs discounted a brilliant pitching exhibition by Huffman last night.

On Saturday afternoon, according to arrangements made by the two clubs last night, Laughlin will play the locals in an exhibition game at Nicholson Field.

Motor to New York.

James Stevenson, of Wellsville and Forest Baker, of Lisbon, have left by motor for New York where they will spend the week.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted us during our bereavement in the loss of our husband and father; especially Rev. COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Will Confer Monday on New Power Co. Franchise.

City council held a short session last night, the third meeting of the municipal lawmakers in as many weeks.

Plans were announced by the street and light and the finance committees for a meeting with Ohio Power company representatives next Monday night here when a proposed ordinance granting the electric power company a new franchise will be discussed preparatory to formal action at a later session of the solons.

Each member of council as well as city officials were presented with copies of the proposed ordinances last night.

A communication from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company asking that the city inspect repaving jobs by the gas company between the street car rails, was referred to the service director. The street car company communication, signed by C. A. CIVIL SERVICE PLANS EXAMS

Seek Eligibles for Patrolman, Janitor Jobs.

Date for a civil service commission examination for patrolman, patrol drivers and public school janitors was fixed at Friday, August 26, at a meeting of the commission last night in the city hall.

One vacancy exists in the ranks of public school janitors and this will be filled from the eligibles certified by the commission after the examination. There are no vacancies at present among patrolmen or patrol drivers, but the list of successful applicants will be retained to select from in case of future needs.

COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Will Confer Monday on New Power Co. Franchise.

City council held a short session last night, the third meeting of the municipal lawmakers in as many weeks.

Plans were announced by the street and light and the finance committees for a meeting with Ohio Power company representatives next Monday night here when a proposed ordinance granting the electric power company a new franchise will be discussed preparatory to formal action at a later session of the solons.

Each member of council as well as city officials were presented with copies of the proposed ordinances last night.

A communication from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company asking that the city inspect repaving jobs by the gas company between the street car rails, was referred to the service director. The street car company communication, signed by C. A. Smith, general manager, pointed out that unless the bricks, which were taken up by the gas company to install and inspect pipe lines, were replaced carefully, the surface of the street would be damaged.

The street and light committee recommended the relocating of a telephone pole at the corner of Third and Broadway and a white coat of paint for electric light standards.

Auditor Eckfeld submitted the following report: General fund, $1,843.13; safety, $1,249.66; health, $544.26; service, $1,039.93; water, $3,002.45; cemetery, $1,103.15; library, $378.09; gasoline tax, $5,729.39; special water, $4,734.63; auto license, $3,844.33; cemetery trust, $613.37; firemen's indemnity, $350.06; sinking fund depository, $26,259.60.

EX-SOLDIER TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE AFOOT

15,000 Mile Hike in Three Years is Plan.

TO MAKE RECORD

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 17. — New York to Paris, not by airplane but afoot.

Such is the intention of John Oliver Porter, world war veteran and globe trotter extraordinary of this city.

"Quite a task, yes, but I'll do it," he declared with much emphasis. "They laughed at Lindbergh and no doubt they'll do the same to me, but I'll see Paris."

Porter's declaration has set this quaint little New England town agog. It's the chief topic of the day. Many of the "boys" go as far back as Colonial days, when Danvers, once old Salem village, was the cradle of witchcraft where men of strange ideas were punished by death, it being taken for granted that they were possessed of some evil spirit.

Only Way Left.

Since travel to Paris has been accomplished by almost every means conceivable only one way remains and that is to hike it, according to Porter.

Porter will begin his trek to Europe the latter part of this month. From New York, he will move to Canada, thence to Alaska and the Behring Sea. What next? There, according to Porter, is the greatest handicap of the hike. A sixty mile stretch of water is frozen solidly for a period of three months or more during the course of winter. Indians and Eskimoes living in the vicinity are known to frequently cross that great stretch during winter time. Cold, yes, very cold, they tell us, perhaps 70 degrees below zero or more. But, according to Porter, 60 miles is not far when a man is properly clothed and with a suitable guide the move can be made without any undue exertion.

Once across, Porter then faces a stretch of Asiatic country covering a stretch of several thousands of miles. Dangers are many among them being the cold.

According to Porter approximately three days will be consummated in his task perhaps more with the possibility that some 15,000 miles will be covered before the finish.

Will Lecture Enroute.

Porter is a native of the town of Marblehead, the town that claims to be the birthplace of the American navy. Walking is his chief hobby. Even now Porter thinks no more of walking 30 or more miles a day through the woods and different neighboring towns. During the World war, Porter was a member of the 20th Field Artillery. He served two years in France and never faltered once during the long hikes that were prevalent during those days.

He is a magazine salesman by occupation and is known to have visited practically every college in the country during the last ten years. Porter will turn to lecturing at various points enroute.

Porter is now working during his spare time making plans for his undertaking.

The latter part of this month will see John Oliver Porter, of Danvers, starting his jaunt to Paris from New York.

"I want it understood—not by airplane, but afoot," remarked Porter. He seems to be wondering as to whether the folks back home will be calling him the "walking fool."

"Paris is my goal," declared Porter. "Just watch me!"

PHILADELPHIA POLICE CHECK MURDER STORY TOLD BY WIDOW OF SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 17. — Police authorities of this city have asked the British Admiralty and the police authorities of Tampico, Mexico, to cooperate in tracing down an alleged trail of murder which stretches back 22 years, and ended in the harbor here with the death, by suicide, of a barge captain, Juan Fernandez.

The tale of three murders, alleged to have been committed by Fernandez, was told by his widow, who said Fernandez had confessed them to her. She declared he suicided in fear of his crimes being found out by the authorities of one of the countries affected—Guatemala, Mexico, and Great Britain.

According to the widow's story, Fernandez shot and killed his brother in their home in Guatemala, 22 years ago, when Fernandez was only 11 years old. He then fled the country. In 1927, the widow asserted, Fernandez stabbed to death a man at Tampico, Mexico, during a quarrel, and then fled that country. His third murder, according to the widow's story, was committed the following year aboard a British merchant ship. She said Fernandez choked a sailor to death during a quarrel aboard the vessel, and threw the body overboard to conceal the crime.

Police are holding the widow pending a check of her story.

Community Loop Rivals Start Series For First Half Title

SUPERIORS WIN NINTH STRAIGHT

Tiremakers Maintain Lead in Victory Over Turk Nash.

WITH both clubs hitting the ball hard at times, the players exhibiting plenty of fielding thrills and the outcome in doubt until practically the end of the game the Chester Superior Cords defeated Turk Nash on Smith field yesterday, 5 to 2.

By reason of the dash displayed, the headwork manifested and the fighting spirit shown by the competing teams, the contest will stand out in local baseball annals.

James was hit harder than in any previous game in which he has worked in the City Industrial league since joining it. The same may be said for Crandall. The former was found for 11 and the latter seven safe drives. Off James two triples were made and nine singles; off Crandall was one three-bagger, two doubles and six safeties. The Turk-Nash twirler fanned five and the Chester southpaw six. Both walked one each.

Both teams scored in the first inning, Turk-Nash making one and Chester two. Both lead off men, E. Bayley and J. Evans, hit safely and subsequently scored on their first appearance at the plate.

Wilde and McConnell furnished the greatest fielding thrills of the game. The former, just after the score had been tied, 2 to 2, and Turk-Nash was on the verge of a battling rally that might win the contest, jumped into the air and with his gloved hand speared L. McMath's liner to right, a certain safe blow which, since Smittel immediately followed with a single might have ruined Chester's chances had not he landed it. On Schneidmiller's drive Wilde further thrilled the crowd by starting a double play that retired Smittel and the side.

McConnell in the next inning stopped another potential rally by Turk-Nash when, with R. Pollock on first after he had singled to right, he ran back to the cherry trees and with his gloved hand captured a long fly by Sainor. Deshler forced Pollock, Melchori to Conners, at second and J. Evans threw out W. Mundy at first.

"Sunny" Deshler put Turk-Nash in the running in the fourth when with two out he unexpectedly stretched his single to right into a double. Then Manager W. Mundy used the "grey matter" by putting himself to hit instead of J. Watson and coming through with a single to third.

This blow put Deshler on third and enabled him to score when Scullion threw low to retire James at first.

The count was 2 to 2 in the fifth. Wilde had fanned and Melchori flown to Parsons. Conners then singled to right. P. Cebula did likewise to left. Had Smittle fielded cleanly, Conners might have been retired at third. James wavered apparently here for McConnell sent the ball on the third base line, scoring both runners. He went to second on the plate throw and himself scored on Parsons' single to middle.

E. Bayley beat out a bunt in the first. L. McMath sacrificed, Crandall to Wilde. Smittle flew to P. Cebula. E. Bayley scored on a wild pitch. Schneidmiller fanned.

J. Evans singled to middle in the last of the first. Wilde sacrificed, J. Watson to R. Pollock. Melchori singled to middle, scoring J. Evans. Conners singled to left, sending Mechori home. J. Watson then threw out P. Cebula and McConnell at first.

After R. Pollock and Sainor had struck out in the fourth Deshler doubled to right. W. Mundy went in to hit for J. Watson and singled through third, thus putting Deshler on third. James missed the third strike and Scullion, essaying an assist to Wilde to retire him, threw low, giving the pitcher life and enabling Deshler to count and tie the score.

JOE MAKES AKRON MEET SEMI-FINAL

Wells Plays Akron District Golf Champ Today.

AKRON, O., Aug. 17.—Four stellar golfers from widely separated sections of Ohio battle today in the semi-final round of the Portage Country Club's invitation tournament.

John Herron, Portage star and present Akron district champion, came through his match with Dave Ogilvie of Cleveland, one up. They were even at start of the final hole. Herron then took a four to Ogilvie's five to win.

Joe Wells, of East Liverpool, former state champion, defeated Bob Johnson, the Springfield driving marvel, 2 and 1, to gain a berth in the semi-finals.

Christy Diebel of Akron, turned in a victory over Jack Munro, Portage, a former state title rival, 2 and 1.

The fourth entry in today's round is Bob Winteringer of Steubenville, the Princeton champion, who defeated E. O. Handy of Portage three and two.

Diebel meets Wintringer and Herron will battle Wells in the eighteen-hole semi-final matches. Winners of those two tussles play eighteen this afternoon.

In the second flight F. F. Dugan, Portage, is in the finals, having won from H. H. Bandy, Cleveland, in the semi-finals by default. The other semi-final match will bring J. J. McFawn, Detroit, and Dr. D. E. Carey, Zanesville, together. The winner will play Dugan for the flight title.

In the consolation play of the first flight L. C. Boles, Wooster, will play the winner of the other semi-final, consisting of O. L. Brailey, Toledo, and R. C. Garretson, Ashland.

Second flight consolation semi-final pairings are: John York, Cleveland, vs. B. H. Allen, Portage; W. T. Sisler, Portage, vs. H. C. Cook, Toledo.

AT INDIANAPOLIS—Meyer Grace, Chicago middleweight, defeated Patsy Rocco, Chicago, 10 rounds.

Kewnie Trimble, of Chicago, won over Tony Ross of Pittsburgh, in 8 rounds.

BOXING has been legal in the state of Illinois a comparatively short time.

Since the state made the gumption real awngray by giving the fight promoters legal right to "get away with murder," Chicago has had two honest-to-goodness championship battles. And in both instances the title changed hands.

Which may or may not give Gene Tunney, heavyweight king, some food for thought.

Rocky Kansas, lightweight champion, was the first king to risk his crown there after the lid was raised. They met a year ago—July 3, 1926. The affair went 10 rounds. Neither one of them tossed a haymaker during the fight. Mandell received the decision at the end of 10 rounds—and the title.

Tiger Flowers was the middleweight champion—and the first of his race to hold that title—when Chicago promoters brought him into town to meet Mickey Walker, Dec. 3, last year, in defense of the title.

The bout was suggested and engineered by Jack Kearns, manaving Walker and former pilot of Jack Dempsey. The shrewd Mr. Kearns is said to have promised Flowers a return battle with Walker within 90 days should the former lose the title.

Walker won the bout—and crown—on points. There was considerable squawking. Flowers is still waiting for the return battle.

Now comes another champion of a major division to risk his crown in the Windy (from bandit bullets) City.

It's to be a 10-round affair—liable to go to the finish and be decided on points. Tunney's last battle with the former champ went the limit.

If Tunney is given to pondering such matters it may be that the reverses handed champions who preceded him there will worry him a bit.

Indianas Lose to Whippets

The Indiana Trucks bowed to the Chamberlain Whippets, 7 to 3, in a Community League clash last evening at Stop 55.

The Trucks started a rally in the seventh inning, scoring one run and had two men on with one down when the game was called on account of darkness, the score reverting to the previous inning.

MOORE'S SQUAD BEATS P. O. NINE

Avenging a previous defeat, the Moore Furniture softball club last night handed the postoffice crew a 9 to 0 drubbing in a clash on the Deidrick Hill diamond.

A home run by Holt, the Furniture nine's pitcher, featured the contest.

The two clubs will battle again this week.

NEWELL'S NEW SLAB STAR WINS

Grimm Beats Wellsville in City League Debut.

IN a contest replete with fast plays Laughlin defeated Wellsville in a well played City Industrial league contest on Nicholson field last evening, 3 to 1.

Huffman got off to a bad start and two runs were made off him. He then blanked his opponents in all but the fifth inning when one more run was made by the visitors. He fanned six and walked one.

Grimm, pitching his first game for Laughlin, struck out nine and walked two men.

In the fourth Huffman whiffed Herbert, Heckathorne and W. Watson in a row.

Rager, in left for Wellsville, had six fly catches.

Laughlin had but two assists during the entire game, one by Crawford to Sayers on G. Meyer's single to center in the fourth and the other by Sayers to Heckathorne in the first when Kibble drove to him.

G. Meyers and Lang for their respective teams had two hits each in a trio of efforts.

G. Wagner, batting for Rager in the seventh, came through with a clean hit a 1000 mark for the day.

Crawford, walking in the first, was caught napping, Huffman to G. Meyers. Webber singled to center. Herbert sent the ball over the right field fence for a double, Webber going to third. With "two and three" on him Heckathorne singled to middle, scoring both runners. The latter was caught on the throw-in as he essayed to reach second, Crawford to Litner to G. Meyers.

In the fifth Laughlin scored one more. Sayers flew to Cook. Lang doubled down the left field foul line. Grim hit a hot one between short and second, Lang scoring. Crawford and Webber flew to Rager and H. Meyers.

In the seventh Wellsville counted. G. Wagner, hitting for Rager, singled over second. He was caught off first, Grim taking the throw from Finley, missed him and he landed safely on second. Litner flew to Sayers. Huffman fanned. Kibble singled to right, scoring Wagner. Cook then fanned for the third time.

CLEANERS MEET TRUCKS TONIGHT

Initial Championship Battle to be Staged at Columbian Park to Break Existing Tie Between Clubs.

First half championship of the Community Baseball League will be determined in a series of games between the Indiana Trucks and the Skid Cleaners, the first of which will be played this evening at Columbian park.

The Trucks and Cleaners finished the first heat in a deadlock after the league moguls had decided that the season be divided in halves and, as a result, a series was determined upon to decide supremacy.

Both clubs played good ball during the first half, winning 10 games and losing four while encountering strong opposition from the six other entries in the circuit.

Tonight's game will be played at 5:45 o'clock.

The Skids have won two and lost none thus far in the second half, while the Trucks, playing three games, have dropped a couple while winning one.

The second half standing to date is:

Golden Stars	1	2	.333
Indiana Trucks	1	2	.333

Skid's Cleaners hammered out 11 hits and won from Dixonville, 7 to 4, last evening at Dixonville in a Community league contest.

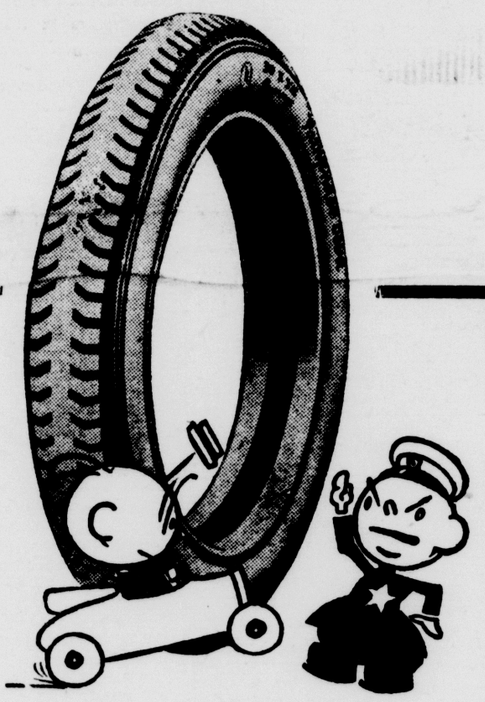

Porter gave the home club four safeties. Dailey, Cleaners' shortstop, collected three hits and a walk in four times up. In the fifth Fry went back to the woods in center to take down a long drive that looked good for a homer. Davis drove one out for a homer in the first with one man on.

Community Loop Rivals Start Series For First Half Title

SUPERIORS WIN NINTH STRAIGHT

Tiremakers Maintain Lead in Victory Over Turk Nash.

WITH both clubs hitting the ball hard at times, the players exhibiting plenty of fielding thrills and the outcome in doubt until practically the end of the game the Chester Superior Cords defeated Turk Nash on Smith field yesterday, 5 to 2.

By reason of the dash displayed, the headwork manifested and the fighting spirit shown by the competing teams, the contest will stand out in local baseball annals.

James was hit harder than in any previous game in which he has worked in the City Industrial league since joining it. The same may be said for Crandall. The former was found for 11 and the latter seven safe drives. Off James two triples were made and nine singles; off Crandall was one three-bagger, two doubles and six safeties. The Turk-Nash twirler fanned five and the Chester southpaw six. Both walked one each.

Both teams scored in the first inning, Turk-Nash making one and Chester two. Both lead off men, E. Bayley and J. Evans, hit safely and subsequently scored on their first appearance at the plate.

Wilde and McConnell furnished the greatest fielding thrills of the game. The former, just after the score had been tied, 2 to 2, and Turk-Nash was on the verge of a battling rally that might win the contest, jumped into the air and with his gloved hand speared L. McMath's liner to right, a certain safe blow which, since Smittel immediately followed with a single might have ruined Chester's chances had not he landed it. On Schneidmiller's drive Wilde further thrilled the crowd by starting a double play that retired Smittel and the side.

McConnell in the next inning stopped another potential rally by Turk Nash when, with R. Pollock on first after he had singled to right, he ran back to the cherry trees and with his gloved hand captured a long fly by Sainor. Deshler forced Pollock, Melchori to Conners, at second and J. Evans threw out W. Mundy at first.

"Sunny" Deshler put Turk-Nash in the running in the fourth when with two out he unexpectedly stretched his single to right into a double. Then Manager W. Mundy used the "grey matter" by putting himself to bit instead of J. Watson and coming through with a single to third.

This blow put Deshler on third and enabled him to score when Scullion threw low to retire James at first.

The count was 2 to 2 in the fifth. Wilde had fanned and Melchori flown to Parsons. Conners then singled to right. P. Cebula did likewise to left. Had Smittle fielded cleanly, Conners might have been retired at third. James wavered apparently here for McConnell sent the ball on the third base line, scoring both runners. He went to second on the plate throw and himself scored on Parsons' single to middle.

E. Bayley beat out a bunt in the first. L. McMath sacrificed, Crandall to Wilde. Smittle flew to P. Cebula. E. Bayley scored on a wild pitch. Schneidmiller fanned.

J. Evans singled to middle in the last of the first. Wilde sacrificed, J. Watson to R. Pollock. Melchori singled to middle, scoring J. Evans. Conners singled to left, sending Melchori home. J. Watson then threw out P. Cebula and McConnell at first.

After R. Pollock and Sainor had struck out in the fourth Deshler doubled to right. W. Mundy went in to hit for J. Watson and singled through third, thus putting Deshler on third. James missed the third strike and Scullion, essaying an assist to Wilde to retire him, threw low, giving the pitcher life and enabling Deshler to count and tie the score.

JOE MAKES AKRON MEET SEMI-FINAL

Wells Plays Akron District Golf Champ Today.

AKRON, O., Aug. 17.—Four stellar golfers from widely separated sections of Ohio battle today in the semi-final round of the Portage Country Club's invitation tournament.

John Herron, Portage star and present Akron district champion, came through his match with Dave Ogilvie of Cleveland, one up. They were even at start of the final hole. Herron then took a four to Ogilvie's five to win.

Joe Wells, of East Liverpool, former state champion, defeated Bob Johnson, the Springfield driving marvel, 2 and 1, to gain a berth in the semi-finals.

Christy Diebel of Akron, turned in a victory over Jack Munro, Portage, a former state title rival, 2 and 1.

The fourth entry in today's round is Bob Winteringer of Steubenville, the Princeton champion, who defeated E. O. Handy of Portage three and two.

Diebel meets Wintringer and Herron will battle Wells in the eighteen-hole semi-final matches. Winners of those two tussles play eighteen this afternoon.

In the second flight F. F. Dugan, Portage, is in the finals, having won from H. H. Handy, Cleveland, in the semi-finals by default. The other semi-final match will bring J. J. McFawn, Detroit, and Dr. D. E. Carey, Zanesville, together. The winner will play Dugan for the flight title.

In the consolation play of the first flight L. C. Boles, Wooster, will play the winner of the other semi-final, consisting of O. L. Brailey, Toledo, and R. C. Garretson, Ashland.

Second flight consolation semi-final pairings are: John York, Cleveland, vs. B. H. Allen, Portage; W. T. Sisler, Portage, vs. H. C. Cook, Toledo.

AT INDIANAPOLIS—Meyer Grace, Chicago middleweight, defeated Patsy Rocco, Chicago, 10 rounds.

Kewpie Trimble, of Chicago, won over Tony Ross of Pittsburgh, in 8 rounds.

BOXING has been legal in the state of Illinois a comparatively short time.

Since the state made the gumption coal awngray by giving the fight promoters legal right to "get away with murder," Chicago has had two honest-to-goodness championship battles. And in both instances the title changed hands.

Which may or may not give Gene Tunney, heavyweight king, some food for thought.

Rocky Kansas, lightweight champion, was the first king to risk his crown there after the lid was raised. They met a year ago—July 3, 1926. The affair went 10 rounds. Neither one of them tossed a haymaker during the fight. Mandell received the decision at the end of 10 rounds—and the title.

Tiger Flowers was the middleweight champion—and the first of his race to hold that title—when Chicago promoters brought him into town to meet Mickey Walker, Dec. 3, last year, in defense of the title.

The bout was suggested and engineered by Jack Kearns, managing Walker and former pilot of Jack Dempsey. The shrewd Mr. Kearns is said to have promised Flowers a return battle with Walker within 90 days should the former lose the title.

Walker won the bout—and crown—on points. There was considerable squawking. Flowers is still waiting for the return battle.

Now comes another champion of a major division to risk his crown in the Windy (from bandit bullets) City.

It's to be a 10-round affair—liable to go to the finish and be decided on points. Tunney's last battle with the former champ went the limit.

If Tunney is given to pondering such matters it may be that the reverses handed champions who preceded him there will worry him a bit.

Indianas Lose to Whippets

The Indiana Trucks bowed to the Chamberlain Whippets, 7 to 3, in a Community League clash last evening at Stop 55.

The Trucks started a rally in the seventh inning, scoring one run and had two men on with one down when the game was called on account of darkness, the score reverting to the previous inning.

MOORE'S SQUAD BEATS P. O. NINE

Avenging a previous defeat, the Moore Furniture softball club last night handed the postoffice crew a 9 to 0 drubbing in a clash on the Deidrick Hill diamond.

A home run by Holt, the Furniture nine's pitcher, featured the contest.

The two clubs will battle again this week.

NEWELL'S NEW SLAB STAR WINS

Grimm Beats Wellsville in City League Debut.

IN a contest replete with fast plays Laughlin defeated Wellsville in a well played City Industrial league contest on Nicholson field last evening, 3 to 1.

Huffman got off to a bad start and two runs were made off him. He then blanked his opponents in all but the fifth inning when one more run was made by the visitors. He fanned six and walked one.

Grimm, pitching his first game for Laughlin, struck out nine and walked two men.

In the fourth Huffman whiffed Herbert, Heckathorne and W. Watson in a row.

Rager, in left for Wellsville, had six fly catches.

Laughlin had but two assists during the entire game, one by Crawford to Sayers on G. Meyer's single to center in the fourth and the other by Sayers to Heckathorne in the first when Kibble drove to him.

G. Meyers and Lang for their respective teams had two hits each in a trio of efforts.

G. Wagner, batting for Rager in the seventh, came through with a clean hit a 1000 mark for the day.

Crawford, walking in the first, was caught napping, Huffman to G. Meyers. Webber singled to center. Herbert sent the ball over the right field fence for a double, Webber going to third. With "two and three" on him Heckathorne singled to middle, scoring both runners. The latter was caught on the throw-in as he essayed to reach second, Crawford to Litner to G. Meyers.

In the fifth Laughlin scored one more. Sayers flew to Cook. Lang doubled down the left field foul line. Grim hit a hot one between short and second, Lang scoring. Crawford and Webber flew to Rager and H. Meyers.

In the seventh Wellsville counted. G. Wagner, hitting for Rager, singled over second. He was caught off first, Grim taking the throw from Finley, missed him and he landed safely on second. Litner flew to Sayers. Huffman fanned. Kibble singled to right, scoring Wagner. Cook then fanned for the third time.

CLEANERS MEET TRUCKS TONIGHT

Initial Championship Battle to be Staged at Columbian Park to Break Existing Tie Between Clubs.

First half championship of the Community Baseball League will be determined in a series of games between the Indiana Trucks and the Skid Cleaners, the first of which will be played this evening at Columbian park.

The Trucks and Cleaners finished the first heat in a deadlock after the league moguls had decided that the season be divided in halves and, as a result, a series was determined upon to decide supremacy.

Both clubs played good ball during the first half, winning 10 games and losing four while encountering strong opposition from the six other entries in the circuit.

Tonight's game will be played at 5:45 o'clock.

The Skids have won two and lost none thus far in the second half, while the Trucks, playing three games, have dropped a couple while winning one.

	Won	Lost	Pct
Potters Supply	2	0	1.000
Skid's Cleaners	2	0	1.000

Golden Stars	1	2	.333
Indiana Trucks	1	2	.333

Skid's Cleaners hammered out 11 hits and won from Dixonville, 7 to 4, last evening at Dixonville in a Community league contest.

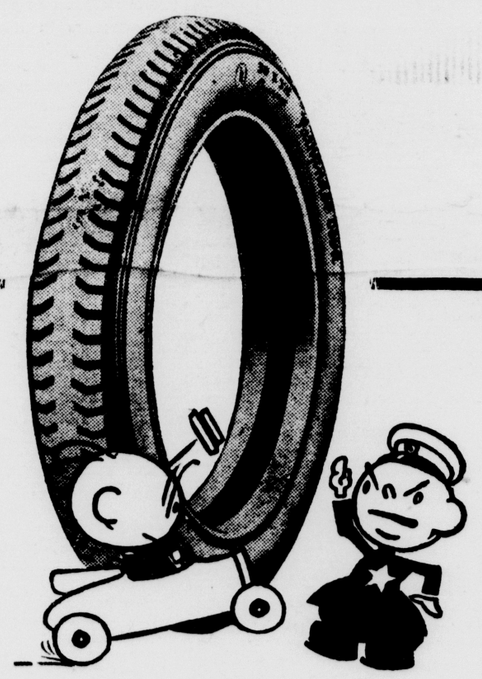

Porter gave the home club four safeties. Dailey, Cleaners' shortstop, collected three hits and a walk in four times up. In the fifth Fry went back to the woods in center to take down a long drive that looked good for a homer. Davis drove one out for a homer in the first with one man on.

Bruins Stretch Lead to Six Games as Pirates Lose to Giants; Hornsby Gets Homer.

By Less Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Baseball fans in the east, who have refused to regard the Chicago Cubs as champions, are about ready today to concede the National league pennant to the Bruins. As a result of their victory over Brooklyn, while the Pirates were losing to the Giants, McCarthy's men enjoy a lead of six games today, with the other three contenders bunched.

Charley Root turned in his 22nd victory for the Cubs, holding the Robins to five hits and whitewashing them 3 to 0.

The Giants, confident that they can overawe the flying Cubs, won their sixth straight game, 8 to 4, when Hornsby smacked a homer with two on.

The Cardinals advanced to within one game of Pittsburgh by nosing out the Braves, 5 to 3, on Frisch's single in the eleventh. Manager Bob O'Farrell, of the Cards, made five hits.

Lester Sweetland, of the Phillies, negotiated a 5 to 3 win over the Reds. Chick Thompson stole three bases.

The Yankees chalked up their eightieth victory and increased their lead over the Senators to 13½ games as Pennock stopped the White Sox, 8 to 1. Ruth clouted his 37th homer.

The drive of the Athletics to finish in the money speeded up as the A's scalped the Indians twice, 6 to 3 and 8 to 0.

Detroit made it six wins in succession by outslugging the Red Sox, 10 to 7. Catcher Hofmann sustained a broken nose in blocking a runner.

The Senators and Browns were held idle by rain.

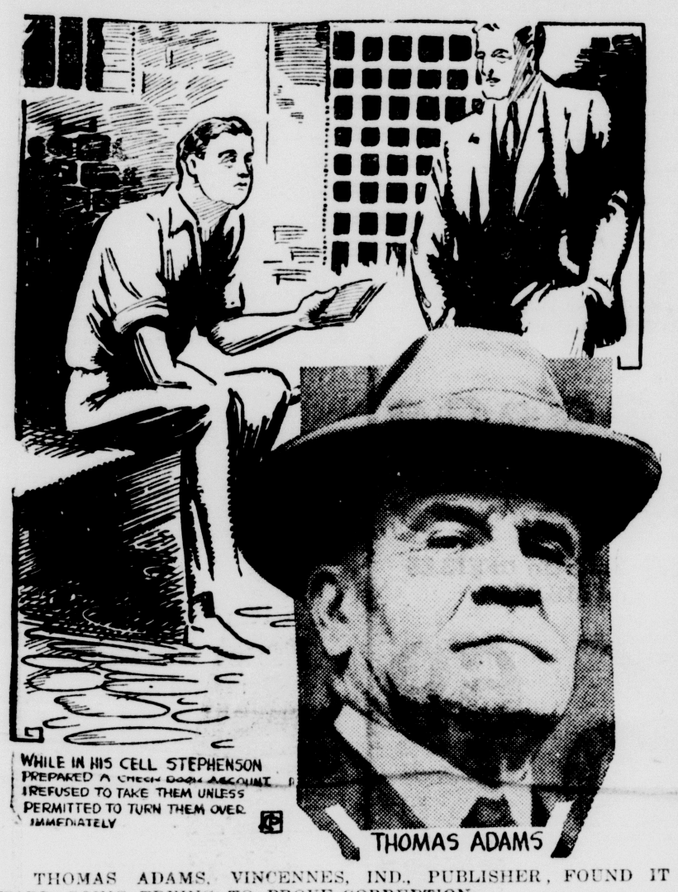

AT BOSTON — Jim Sacco, Boston welterweight, won decision over Sid Barbarian, Detroit, 10 rounds.

AT LOS ANGELES—Joey Sangor, Milwaukee featherweight, outpointed Santiago Zorilla, of Panama, 10 rounds.

Pedro Amador defeated Joe Guerrero, both of Los Angeles, 6 rounds.

CHECK-BOOK AACCOUNT OF KLAN ACTIVITIES PREPARED BY DRAGON

THOMAS ADAMS, VINCENNES, IND., PUBLISHER, FOUND IT HARD GOING TRYING TO PROVE CORRUPTION.

VIII

By BONITA WITT

Staff Write for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(This Story Tells How the Caged Ex-Dragon of Indiana Prepared for the Future).

While in his cell at Noblesville, Ind., waiting to be taken to Michigan City prison to serve a life sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, young Indianapolis girl, D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, prepared a check book account of his activities as "the law in Indiana." He attached notes to checks explaining for what purposes they had been used and why they had been given. Also he gathered together certain contracts which he alleges he made with Indiana officials. He boasted: "I never will serve a life sentence at Michigan City." He was gathering his evidence against the day when he felt it would serve him best. The caged ex-dragon was sharpening his claws.

This is confirmed by Floyd Christian, an attorney of Noblesville, who says: "I saw these checks. They were spread in a separate cell. It was during a call I made upon Stephenson, after his conviction. He requested me to take the checks for him, and hold them 90 days, and if he were not free then to turn them over to Prosecutor William Remy of Marion county (Indianapolis).

Refused to Take Them.

"I refused to take them unless permitted to turn them over immediately without waiting for any expected developments."

Stephenson retained the checks. And further evidence of his power came to light.

Shortly after he was taken to prison at Michigan City the state highway commission was under fire. Two of its members were under indictment, charged with disposing of surplus war materials illegally.

Thomas Adams, publisher of a newspaper at Vincennes, Ind., an advocate of good roads, and a believer in the integrity of the commissioners, brought the situation to the attention of Indiana editors at a meeting of the State Republican Editorial association. Since the railroad had been curtailing service between small towns, publishers were being forced to transport their papers in trucks. Good roads, therefore, were of importance to them. Adams was named as chairman of a committee to investigate the commission.

I went to Vincennes to hear the story of this crusading editor. I found him at his desk, a middle aged, rather large, gray-haired man. His battles to bring to light true conditions in Indiana have been hard on him. Obstacles constantly have been put nto his path. He has been called "a disgruntled old man, disappointed because he wasn't appointed United States senator, and stirring up a fuss to get even."

Nevertheless, he investigated—and startled Indiana with statements of his results.

What He Found.

He found that a "road ripper" bill, designed to change the setup of the highway commission, was traceable to Stephenson. Before it could be passed, however, Stephenson was in jail.

"From the start, I realized a conspiracy existed to overthrow the highway commission and discredit the commissioners," Adams says. "The 'road ripper' bill was framed to loot the highway commission. Stephenson now says he spent $300,000 in an effort to secure the passage of the bill.

"On every year of pavement laid, on every section of roadway, there could have been a profit," Adams asserts.

"The men indicted for stealing and selling junk, that is surplus war materials allotted to Indiana, by the federal government, were innocent. Prosecutor Remy, himself, admitted that there was no evidence against the men, and finally asked that the indictments be quashed.

U. S. Attorney General Agrees.

"United States Attorney General Sargent told me in Washington the whole affair was one of the most disgraceful situations ever brought to his attention."

Adams and the small group of men with whom he worked were astounded at the apparent intrigue which revealed itself as they worked. Hampered by persons apparently trying to hide facts. Adams kept hammering away.

Many who made revelations to him, Adams declares, were intimidated to such a degree that they were afraid to make further disclosures.

Folk feared the man in the penitentiary with the notated checks and "black boxes" hidden away somewhere. He must have smiled at his power, this man locked in prison, deprived of citizenship, as men who had been his friends and those who now were his enemies swept Adams with a barrage that all but conquered him.

"I wish I never had begun," Adams declared. "But I'm going to fight to a finish!" The battle had just begun.

(Another instalment tomorrow.)

Newell Giants Lose To Joetown Club; Play Again Friday

Manager Bernard O'Donnell and his Giants, of Newell, went to Joetown last evening and took a defeat at the hands of Raymond Heath's Joetown Indians. O'Donnell, a veteran boxman, started the game for the Giants but gave way to Laughlin after the first inning. Owen for the Indians had the Giants under his control the entire game, fanning nine men. The Giants, a new organized team, showed lack of practice, but gave promise of improvement.

The Joetown management and fans are to be complimented on the new grounds which are located on the hill back of Joetown providing a view of Newll and East Liverpool. The same teams will meet on the Newell grounds Friday evening at 5:30.

Beaver Falls Defeats Grays

Beaver Falls Elks, who tonight will tangle with the Chester Superior Cords at Smith Field, Chester, yesterday afternoon beat Smoky Joe Williams and the Homestead Grays, 3 to 1, at Beaver Falls, giving the O. & P. league champs thre victories over Cum Posey's outfit for the season.

Alvin Hilty, Ed. Harvey's pitching star, held the Grays to six hits. Smoky Joe fanned 10 batters but was touched between times for 10 hits. Lefty Friz, Beaver Falls first baseman, had a double and three singles in four times up.

As a result of his workout yesterday it is not likely that Hilty will do any slab work tonight at Smith Field. Herman, from the Eastern Ohio circuit, will probably pitch for the Superior Cords.

The contest will start at 5:30.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Benny Bass, Pennsylvania featherweight champion, knocked out Joey Williams, colored, in the eighth round.

AT UTICA, N. Y. — Red Herring, Utica, outpointed Tony Vaccarelli, New York, 10 rounds.

Interest Renewed In Home Run Race

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—With Babe Ruth hitting bigger and better homers than ever before, interest was at fever heat today in the great home run derby between the king of swat and his younger rival, Lou Gehrig. The Babe's 37th homer, made yesterday, sailed clean over the right field stands in Chicago, the first ever hit over it.

Ruth is now only one homer behind Gehrig. Both are some distance behind Ruth's 1921 record, however.

Fight Results

AT SEATTLE, WASH.—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, won decision over Jock Malone, of St. Paul, 6 rounds.

Dode Bercot, of Monroe, knocked out Sailor Thode, of San Diego, in sixth round.

AT NEW YORK—George La Rocco, New York heavyweight, won the decision over Johnny Grosso in 10 rounds.

Lew Barba; New York heavyweight, won on a foul from Bernard Labloski in the second round.

Sid Angstreich, New York light heavyweight, knocked out Charley Rammel, of Austria, in the third round.

Henry Goldberg, Brooklyn, won decision over Eddie Tiernan, of Astoria.

More Trial Matches.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Trial matches held to determine the personnel of the United States Davis cup team had failed to clarify the situation today and two additional matches will be played this afternoon. Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., will oppose John Doeg, of California, in the singles, and a doubles match will be held between Richard Norris Williams and George M. Lott, of Chicago, and John Hennessy and Lewis White.

Doeg and Lott won a hard fought match from Williams and Hunter yesterday. It had been expected that Williams and Hunter, together with William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, would represent the United States in the international matches. The latter pair probably will fill the singles roles.

Looks Like Part of Series Will Be Played in Chicago

By Ross Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Baseball fans in the east, who have refused to regard the Chicago Cubs as champions, are about ready today to concede the National league pennant to the Bruins. As a result of their victory over Brooklyn, while the Pirates were losing to the Giants, McCarthy's men enjoy a lead of six games today, with the other three contenders bunched.

Charley Root turned in his 22nd victory for the Cubs, holding the Robins to five hits and whitewashing them 3 to 0.

The Giants, confident that they can overhaul the flying Cubs, won their sixth straight game, 8 to 4, when Hornsby smacked a homer with two on.

The Cardinals advanced to within one game of Pittsburgh by nosing out the Braves, 5 to 3, on Frisch's single in the eleventh. Manager Bob O'Farrell, of the Cards, made five hits.

Lester Sweetland, of the Phillies, negotiated a 5 to 3 win over the Reds. Chick Thompson stole three bases.

The Yankees chalked up their eightieth victory and increased their lead over the Senators to 13½ games as Pennock stopped the White Sox, 8 to 1. Ruth clouted his 37th homer.

The drive of the Athletics to finish in the money speeded up as the A's scalped the Indians twice, 6 to 3 and 8 to 0.

Detroit made it six wins in succession by outslugging the Red Sox, 10 to 7. Catcher Hofmann sustained a broken nose in blocking a runner.

The Senators and Browns were held idle by rain.

AT BOSTON — Jim Sacco, Boston welterweight, won decision over Sid Barbarian, Detroit, 10 rounds.

Pedro Amador defeated Joe Guerrero, both of Los Angeles, 6 rounds.

Newell Giants Lose To Joetown Club; Play Again Friday

Manager Bernard O'Donnell and his Giants, of Newell, went to Joetown last evening and took a defeat at the hands of Raymond Heath's Joetown Indians. O'Donnell, a veteran boxman, started the game for the Giants but gave way to Laughlin after the first inning. Owen for the Indians had the Giants under his control the entire game, fanning nine men. The Giants, a new organized team, showed lack of practice, but gave promise of improvement.

The Joetown management and fans are to be complimented on the new grounds which are located on the hill back of Joetown providing a view of Newll and East Liverpool. The same teams will meet on the Newell grounds Friday evening at 5:30.

Interest Renewed In Home Run Race

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—With Babe Ruth hitting bigger and better homers than ever before, interest was at fever heat today in the great home run derby between the king of swat and his younger rival, Lou Gehrig. The Babe's 37th homer, made yesterday, sailed clean over the right field stands in Chicago, the first ever hit over it.

Ruth is now only one homer behind Gehrig. Both are some distance behind Ruth's 1921 record, however.

Fight Results

AT SEATTLE, WASH.—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, won decision over Jock Malone, of St. Paul, 6 rounds.

Dode Bercot, of Monroe, knocked out Sailor Thode, of San Diego, in sixth round.

AT NEW YORK—George La Rocco, New York heavyweight, won the decision over Johnny Grosso in 10 rounds.

Lew Barba, New York heavyweight, won on a foul from Bernard Labloski in the second round.

Sid Angstreich, New York light heavyweight, knocked out Charley Rammel, of Austria, in the third round.

Henry Goldberg, Brooklyn, won decision over Eddie Tiernan, of Astoria.

More Trial Matches.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Trial matches held to determine the personnel of the United States Davis cup team had failed to clarify the situation today and two additional matches will be played this afternoon. Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., will oppose John Doeg, of California, in the singles, and a doubles match will be held between Richard Norris Williams and George M. Lott, of Chicago, and John Hennessy and Lewis White.

Doeg and Lott won a hard fought match from Williams and Hunter yesterday. It had been expected that Williams and Hunter, together with William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, would represent the United States in the international matches. The latter pair probably will fill the singles roles.

Beaver Falls Defeats Grays

Beaver Falls Elks, who tonight will tangle with the Chester Superior Cords at Smith Field, Chester, yesterday afternoon beat Smoky Joe Williams and the Homestead Grays, 3 to 1, at Beaver Falls, giving the O. & P. league champs thre victories over Cum Posey's outfit for the season.

Alvin Hilty, Ed. Harvey's pitching star, held the Grays to six hits. Smoky Joe fanned 10 batters but was touched between times for 10 hits. Lefty Friz, Beaver Falls first baseman, had a double and three singles in four times up.

As a result of his workout yesterday it is not likely that Hilty will do any slab work tonight at Smith Field. Herman, from the Eastern Ohio circuit, will probably pitch for the Superior Cords.

The contest will start at 5:30.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Benny Bass, Pennsylvania featherweight champion, knocked out Joey Williams, colored, in the eighth round.

AT UTICA, N. Y. — Red Herring, Utica, outpointed Tony Vaccarelli, New York, 10 rounds.

CHECK-BOOK AACCOUNT OF KLAN ACTIVITIES PREPARED BY DRAGON

THOMAS ADAMS, VINCENNES, IND., PUBLISHER, FOUND IT HARD GOING TRYING TO PROVE CORRUPTION.

VIII

By BONITA WITT

Staff Write for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(This Story Tells How the Caged Ex-Dragon of Indiana Prepared for the Future).

While in his cell at Noblesville, Ind., waiting to be taken to Michigan City prison to serve a life sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, young Indianapolis girl, D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, prepared a check book account of his activities as "the law in Indiana." He attached notes to checks explaining for what purposes they had been used and why they had been given. Also he gathered together certain contracts which he alleges he made with Indiana officials. He boasted: "I never will serve a life sentence at Michigan City." He was gathering his evidence against the day when he felt it would serve him best. The caged ex-dragon was sharpening his claws.

This is confirmed by Floyd Christian, an attorney of Noblesville, who says: "I saw these checks. They were spread in a separate cell. It was during a call I made upon Stephenson, after his conviction. He requested me to take the checks for him, and hold them 90 days, and if he were not free then to turn them over to Prosecutor William Remy of Marion county (Indianapolis).

Refused to Take Them.

"I refused to take them unless permitted to turn them over immediately without waiting for any expected developments."

Stephenson retained the checks. And further evidence of his power came to light.

Shortly after he was taken to prison at Michigan City the state highway commission was under fire. Two of its members were under indictment, charged with disposing of surplus war materials illegally.

Thomas Adams, publisher of a newspaper at Vincennes, Ind., an advocate of good roads, and a believer in the integrity of the commissioners, brought the situation to the attention of Indiana editors at a meeting of the State Republican Editorial association. Since the railroad had been curtailing service between small towns, publishers were being forced to transport their papers in trucks. Good roads, therefore, were of importance to them. Adams was named as chairman of a committee to investigate the commission.

I went to Vincennes to hear the story of this crusading editor. I found him at his desk, a middle aged, rather large, gray-haired man. His battles to bring to light true conditions in Indiana have been hard on him. Obstacles constantly have been put nto his path. He has been called "a disgruntled old man, disappointed because he wasn't appointed United States senator, and stirring up a fuss to get even."

Nevertheless, he investigated—and startled Indiana with statements of his results.

What He Found.

He found that a "road ripper" bill, designed to change the setup of the highway commission, was traceable to Stephenson. Before it could be passed, however, Stephenson was in jail.

"From the start, I realized a conspiracy existed to overthrow the highway commission and discredit the commissioners," Adams says. "The 'road ripper' bill was framed to loot the highway commission. Stephenson now says he spent $300,000 in an effort to secure the passage of the bill.

"On every year of pavement laid, on every section of roadway, there could have been a profit," Adams asserts.

"The men indicted for stealing and selling junk, that is surplus war materials allotted to Indiana, by the federal government, were innocent. Prosecutor Remy, himself, admitted that there was no evidence against the men, and finally asked that the indictments be quashed.

U. S. Attorney General Agrees.

"United States Attorney General Sargent told me in Washington the whole affair was one of the most disgraceful situations ever brought to his attention."

Adams and the small group of men with whom he worked were astounded at the apparent intrigue which revealed itself as they worked. Hampered by persons apparently trying to hide facts. Adams kept hammering away.

Many who made revelations to him, Adams declares, were intimidated to such a degree that they were afraid to make further disclosures.

Folk feared the man in the penitentiary with the notated checks and "black boxes" hidden away somewhere. He must have smiled at his power, this man locked in prison, deprived of citizenship, as men who had been his friends and those who now were his enemies swept Adams with a barrage that all but conquered him.

"I wish I never had begun," Adams declared. "But I'm going to fight to a finish!" The battle had just begun.

"Daredevil" Babcock Coming to Chester

Loop-the-Loop Artist, Now Appearing at Cleveland, to Fill Week's Engagement at Rock Springs Park, Starting Labor Day.

Oscar V. Babcock, veteran "daredevil" loop-the-loop artist, who is now filling an engagement in connection with the Cleveland Industrial exposition, has been booked for a week's exhibition at Rock Springs park beginning with Labor Day, according to an announcement by Park Manager Charles C. Macdonald.

Babcock was to have appeared at the park earlier this season but was forced to cancel his engagement because of illnes. His exhibition, which will be free, will be given every afternoon and evening during the week beginning September 5 and ending September 10. A gorgeous fireworks display will also feature the Labor Day program at the Chester resort.

Twenty-two years in the business of looping the loop and flying the flume in what is said to be the only act of its kind is a record in the show business that few have attained.

Babcock's history as a loop bicyclist reads like a story book. He has thrilled crowds in India, Japan, China and in European countries as well, and in fact has just returned from an extensive tour in the Orient. That his act has stood the test of almost a quarter of a century's popularity is one of his best recommendations.

Riding down a steep incline 120 feet long, Babcock is shot on his bicycle into a loop that has a 12-foot break in it consisting of a section held by a set of springs that his front wheel must trip as he nears the completion of the loop. The thrill comes in watching the section swing into place as the daring rider speeds around the circle, 28 feet in diameter. It's a question of whether Babcock will reach the gap before the trap as it is called, does. Completing the loop, there is still a big gap to jump and a landing to make on another incline. But it happens fast and all within the length of the apparatus not more than 200 feet over all. From the time that Babcock leaves the 60-foot elevation until he is stopped at the end of the track by a rope barrier, five seconds have elapsed.

Babcock is a heavy set man about middle age and well-muscled from a life of athletic work. When dressed in his street clothes and talking about most any subject, he is not the sort of person one would expect to find in a thriller bicycle act.

He took up the loop-the-loop act upon the death in an accident of the man who performed it 22 years ago. Babcock was a professional bicycle rider. He has several motorcycle records to his credit and is a veteran of two six-day bicycle races in New York city.

During the Spanish-American war he qualified as an expert marksman.

"What are the feelings one experiences in looping the loop?" Returned Babcock in reply to the question.

"Well, they are pretty much varied and mostly tension. When I start down the incline it takes a second or two to pick up speed, so I relax until I enter the loop. The wind rush as I speed along tends to pull my head down and overbalance me, but that is the thing that in 22 years at the job I have learned to handle. As I near the gap the real thrill of the ride comes, because there is always the excitement of feeling the trap spring into place and of riding over it. The question is, will the springs do their duty?

"Flying the flume takes my attention next, and I get one landing shock and then in a thrice the other and the ride is over. Sounds easy. And is, if you've had enough practice," he smiled.

"What about the wind, you asked about, Mr. Babcock?"

"A bad puff of wind or a sudden breeze may make it harder for me to keep on the black line in the center of the incline or on the landing, and because I am traveling at lightning speed it does not take much to shift my course."

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial corbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder of tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

Capture Of Nanking Appears Imminent

The Way of a Ship.
Mark Twain Would Wonder.
Dog and Perfume Ladies.
And Only One Star.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

THE way of a ship in the midst of the sea has changed since Solomon, the son of David, wrote his Proverbs. The hardy Phoenician, bringing precious freight for Solomon's temple, and the American tourist of the General Grant-Mark Twain period would wonder at the ships of 1927.

This is written on the Aquitania, one of the many floating cities that cross the ocean, as free from romance as the moving pictures shown on Deck A. Whoever has crossed in old days rubs his eyes, like Rip Van Winkle.

Along the deck, much wider than Fifth avenue's sidewalk, and almost as steady, comes a wheezy, short, fat lady, leading a small dog to match, with all its owner's qualities, plus a disposition to snap at passing legs. They turn at the notice, "No dogs allowed forward of this sign."

The dog wears a beautiful ribbon, the lady, possibly a grandmother, wears brilliant pink silk stockings, of such high visibility that an old time captain might have put her in irons. Much gold on her dress and on her cheeks profusely spread the rouge that Jezabel wore, in Racine's description, pour reparer, des ans, l'irreparable ouvrage.

That modern seafaring lady passes, and here comes another, 40 years younger, 40 times worse. As she passes, in bright red, she scatters all the perfumes of Arabia, which are the worst, stickiest perfumes on earth, and smokes an ostentatious cigarette.

The cigarette is used as a wand, waved to emphasize a speech that she is making, deeply appreciated by a young woman with black, sleek, greasy hair, a stomach caving inward, a foreign accent, and no more back head than a Russian wolf hound.

The young woman's father probably has money.

Hundreds spend a week in this floating hotel, not realizing that they are on the ocean until the fog horn blows. Then some say "I don't like that sound." The more nervous drown the fog horn with two more cocktails.

Modern American wealth has changed ships into cocktail and breakfast food emporiums. There are 30 kinds of mucous membrane destroyers listed as cocktails on the smoking room pro-

The Review-Tribune Offers to Its Readers Booklet on Houses

"Home." What a magic word this is. To men and women the world over, the mere mention of home calls up some cherished vision or other—some ideal home. It may be only a humble cottage or it may be a stately mansion. But it is home—the end to which every enterprise and endeavor tends.

This bureau has for distribution a booklet that will aid you in selecting suitable plans for a home of your own. It contains exterior views and floor plans of 30 frame houses which are architecturally correct. Almost every type of home is shown—the dainty cottage—the inviting bungalow—the comfortable two story house.

No prospective builder can afford to be without this booklet. You can get your copy from our Washington Information Bureau if you send in your name and address with six cents in stamps for return postage and handling. In filling out the coupon be sure to write clearly.

CITIZEN POSSE SEEK SLAYERS OF THREE MEN

Hunters Ambushed by Group of Alleged Moonshiners.

ONE MAN INJURED

Two Suspects in Tragedy Being Held at Logan.

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A posse of forty citizens and officers today was combing the hills in the vicinity of Island Creek, near here, for a group of supposed moonshiners who yesterday attacked a party of 10 campers with rifles from ambush, instantly killing three of the campers, and wounding a fourth man.

The campers, who said they were hunting ginseng, included a state prohibition officer, and his son, both of whom were included in those killed. Officers are working on the theory that the attackers, believing the party was hunting for moonshine stills, of which several were later found in the vicinity, organized the attack to protect their stills.

Those killed were Edward Hensley, 50, prohibition officer; his son, Donald, 19; and Ernest Marcum. Howard Tomblin, seriously injured, was brought to a hospital here.

The attack occurred at a remote spot in the forest, at noon yesterday, and the first news was brought here late last night by David Hensley, a brother of Edward Hensley, who made his way from the camp on foot to Logan, to obtain help. A posse was quickly formed and the bodies were brought here.

Two suspects were arrested in the vicinity when the posse arrived, but no charges have been filed against them, and officers said they had little evidence to connect them with the shooting.

NATIONALISTS ABANDON SEAT OF GOVERNMENT AS GUNS ROAR

British Warships Rescue Foreign Residents in City.

LOOTING BEGINS

Shanghai Authorities Throw Extra Guard Around City.

By Alfred Meyer.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17. — The capture of Nanking, capital city of the Nationalist government, by the northern troops of General Sun Chuan-Fang, was regarded as a certainty today as the Northerners opened a heavy bombardment of the city. The Nationalists are hastily evacuating the city.

Pukow Suburbs Fall.

The British warship Wivern took off safely all foreign residents of Nanking this morning. The exact number is not known. Looting is reported to have broken out in Nanking.

Following an intense bombardment, and [illegible] suburbs, crowded, Wuyi ing to word received here today. The northerners entered the two suburbs on Tuesday afternoon. Pukow is a point of strategic importance from a military viewpoint and northern troops have been converging upon the city for a week.

Defenders Demoralized.

The Cantonese defenders of Wuyi and Puchen were thrown into panic by the cannonading and fled precipitately towards Nanking.

Twenty thousand Cantonese, sent from Nanking to defend Wuhu, are reported to be returning. Nanking is crowded with demoralized southern soldiers, who are unwilling to return to the fighting front.

The Shanghai authorities are making strong precautions for protection of the city following receipt of news that five trainloads of Pei Chung Hsi adherents have entrained for this place. These troops are reported to be unruly and it is feared that they are seeking loot. Discipline of the soldiers has broken down following the resignation of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek as commander in chief.

PRIESTS ATTEND CLEVELAND MEET

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

David Reisling was given a judgment of $191 yesterday by a jury in municipal court in his claim against the Walter L. Main circus which exhibited here several months ago.

Buckeye Motor company was awarded judgment of $200 against Maize and Lois Kinsey, while Dr. A. L. Turner was allowed $694 and costs in the action brought against R. E. Hoopes and the Fisher Development company for return of money and cancellation of land contract.

$1,000 Reward in Boston Bomb Case

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The state of Massachusetts offered today a $1,000 reward for information leading to the identification of the person or persons responsible for the bombing of the East Milton home of Lewis McHardy, a Sacco-Vanzetti case juror.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller suggested the reward to the executive council. The suggestion was adopted promptly.

The Milton Post, American Legion, sent to the governor's office today a resolution deploring the bombing, pledging support to him in his "courageous stand" and urging him to "use every force to bring to justice the cowardly bomber."

TWO ARE HURT IN AUTO CRASH AT BLOOMFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson Victims of Accident.

FIVE UNINJURED

Johnson Car, Which is Overturned Badly Damaged.

[illegible] five others escaped unhurt in a collision between a Buick touring car, driven by Robert Birbeck, of Elm street, and an Oldsmobile, owned and driven by Harry Johnson, Bloomfield potter, which occurred on the Calcutta-East Liverpool road near the Bloomfield church, about 11 o'clock last night.

Mr. Johnson was cut and lacerated by broken glass while Mrs. Johnson was bruised and suffered from shock. Their three-year-old daughter, Jean and four passengers in the Birbeck car were not hurt.

Johnson, who was enroute to his home, claimed that he had just made the turn off the Calcutta road to the road leading into Bloomfield when the Birbeck car, which had been following him crashed into his machine. The Johnson car was turned over on its side, the windows being shattered and the top wrecked. Birbeck's car was not so badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were assisted to their home only a short distance from the scene of the accident where they received medical attention. Their car was brought to town by the McElray Brothers' wrecking equipment.

CHARGE VIOLATION OF DOG MEASURE

Frederick Alaimo, proprietor of a shoe repairing shop, Broadway, near Sixth street, is the first dog owner to be arrested here under the new law which became effective last week prohibiting dogs running at large between sundown and sunset.

He was arrested on a warrant issued at the request of C. E. Donahey, of Damascus, who was appointed recently to the position of county dog warden. Arraigned before Judge Jesse C. Hanley in municipal court his trial was postponed until a later date in order to allow a study of the law's provisions.

Boy is Gun Victim.

CANTON, O., Aug. 17. — Edward Herdlicha, 16, is dead here today, the victim of a rifle shot accidentally discharged while four youths were hunting frogs in a boat near Millersburg. The bullet of a .22 calibre rifle struck his forehead when he picked the firearm from the bottom of the boat.

BRING REMAINS OF ARMOUR TO UNITED STATES FOR INTERMENT

Body of Millionaire Packer to be Taken to Chicago.

DEATH A SHOCK

Deceased Once Was World's Second Richest Man.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The body of J. Ogden Armour, prominent Chicago packer who died yesterday in London following a long illness of typhoid fever, will be brought here for burial in the family plot by the side of his father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour.

Mrs. Armour, the widow, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Jr., her son-in-law and daughter, will accompany the remains to Chicago. They were at Mr. Armour's bedside when he died.

News of Mr. Armour's passing cast a pall of gloom over Chicago where he spent his lifetime building the great packing business founded by his father. News of his death was a great shock as it was not known generally that his condition was serious.

Leaders in all phases of the city's industrial, commercial, civic and educational activities joined in paying tribute to Mr. Armour. Many retired from active participation in business. Five years ago he resigned as president of Armour and Co., and was elected chairman of the board. Later he disposed of much of his vast holding in the concern under a trusteeship.

Mr. Armour, self-made son of a self-made father, inherited at 38 the great packing industry his father, Philip D. Armour had founded. He developed it from a $100,000,000 a year business to one of $500,000,000.

At the height of his career he was rated the world's richest man next to John D. Rockefeller.

Speculation was rife today over the extent of the fortune left by Armour. Estimates of his estate vary from a few thousand dollars to $20,000,000. The exact figure probably will not be known until his will is filed for probate.

Reverses during the post-war depression period wiped out the greater part of his huge fortune. He met losses of between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 to protect the name of Armour. To what extent he succeeded in retrieving a part of his wealth is a subject of conjecture.

SISTER OF JAMES NAGEL IS DEAD

Mrs. J. D. Stevens, former resident of East Liverpool, died today in her home at McKeesport, Pa.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two brothers and three sisters, John A. Nagle, Cleveland; James E. Nagle, East Liverpool; Mrs. W. P. Lear, Wheeling, and Anna and Nell Nagle, both of McKeesport.

GARY'S REMAINS ARE TAKEN TO RESTING PLACE

Train Bearing Body of Steel Magnate Reaches Wheaton.

Services in Church Built by Deceased for Parents.

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 17.—Unaccompanied by pomp or ceremony the bronze casket containing the body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary was borne into Gary Memorial church here today by ten farmer boys.

The only member of the immediate family present was Mrs. Elsa Gary Dyce, a niece of the late industrial king.

Garland Grange, brother of "Red" Grange, former University of Illinois footbal star, was one of those who acted as preliminary palbearers.

Less than thirty persons witnessed the arrival of the hearse and two accompanying automobiles. Four motorcycle policemen cleared the state highway for the cortege.

Mrs. Gary and her two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, are expected later this afternoon.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The body of the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, was to arrive in Chicago for a brief moment today before being borne to Wheaton, Ill., on special train.

Leaders of the industrial world waited at the depot at which the private car of the Twentieth Century, carrying the body of the great leader, was due to arrive. The bronze casket will be transferred without ceremony to the suburban special train for the last stage of the journey to his final resting place in the little city that observed his early struggles as a promising attorney.

GOLDEN EAGLE AND ALOHE ARE LEADING DASH FOR DOLE PRIZE

Woolaroc Believed to be in Third Place Position.

Thirty-two Ships Stand Watch to Render Assistance.

On the last leg of the greatest race in the history of aviation four planes were believed nearing Hawaii at 8 a. m. today, Pacific coast time. Two were believed to be in the lead— the Hearst plane Golden Eagle and Martin Jensen's Aloha.

A fairly close third was the Woolaroc with Art Goebel as pilot, fourth in the race was believed the Miss Doran, piloted by Auggie Pedlar and carrying Miss Mildred Doran, Flint, Mich. school teacher, as a passenger.

Leaders "Sister Ships"

From the only plane carrying sending apparatus came a message through the United States naval radio station at Wailupe at 7 a. m., Pacific coast time announcing that the Woolaroc was [illegible] miles out of San Francisco and stating that "everything was running on schedule on the last 700 mile lap.

Inasmuch as the fragmentary wireless reports of ships had placed both the Golden Eagle and the Aloha ahead of the Woolaroc and the Miss Doran well behind Goebel's plane, it was believed these positions were being maintained on the last leg of the race.

In effect the Golden Eagle and the Aloha are "sister ships" although built by different manufacturers and of slightly different type. Both are the work of the same designer, however. The Golden Eagle has shown its speed between San Francisco and [illegible] record be-

Woolaroc Nears Goal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.— A message to radio corporation from the S. S. City of Los Angeles reported the position of the plane Woolaroc a 8:59 Pacific coast time as being 1,950

HEALTH LEAGUE WORK DETAILED

Annual Fresh Air Camp Being Maintained in County.

The Columbiana County Public Health league, which conducts the annual fresh air camp for under-nourished and under-privileged children with the proceeds from the sale of Christmas seals anticipates a successful year as far as building up the children are concerned. So far one girl, Marie Nelson of Leetonia, has gained ten and one-half pounds in the last four weeks, and Lewis Catlos of Salem, has gained seven pounds in the same time.

This year the health league enlisted the aid of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Quota and Lions' clubs in Columbiana county in constructing permanent buildings. So far the Lisbon, Leetonia, East Palestine and Salineville Kiwanis clubs have voted to contribute an amount equivalent to $6.50 per member, which makes a quota requested of them; Salineville's quota being $280.00; Lisbon $354.00; Leetonia $377.00 and East Palestine $260.00. At the present time the secretary and treasurer of the health league has received the checks from the Lisbon and Leetonia clubs.

BORER INSPECTION WORK COMPLETED

Inspectors on corn borer control in Mahoning and Columbiana counties have now completed the work according to statements issued by O. H. Brown, New Springfield, county supervisor for the two counties. A 98 per cent cleanup was effected in both counties.

Brown has requested that owners of any farms which have been missed on final inspections immediately report same to himself or their respective county agent's office. Farmers who fell that they have had unsatisfactory inspections are also requested to report.

The department of agriculture is anxious to give every farmer a square deal and pay him for what work he has done in compliance with the regulations, Brown says.

LEGIONNAIRES AT BATTLE FIELDS TO FIND WAR ANCIENT HISTORY

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The soldiers of the American Legion who make a visit to old battlefields this year will find that already, the great war is fading into ancient history.

The wide, smiling fields with their good crops and new, modern homes, have little to do with the places of horror they once knew. It is almost impossible to find the traces of the old front-line in any place for one can't trample down the wheat or oats. And where the German line once ran peaceful cows lie chewing their cud.

Year by year trenches are falling in, parapets washed away and dugouts collapse and disappear completely. Great shell-holes are slowly filling in and young bushes and trees beginning to hide the burnt stumps. The yards and yards of barbed wire have been rolled up and everywhere throughout the battle areas the fences of farm and garden are made of it, rusted and twisted, sometimes only half-straightened out. Ragged sheets of corrugated iron are put to a thousand uses, and among the spick-and-span new buildings are many little Nisen huts. They are used for chickens, children's playhouses, garages and stables. Some of them boast a new addition of corrugated iron and many of them have roses climbing over.

Of course there are a few areas which still remain in their original condition, as on the Vimy Ridge in the Railway Triangle behind Arras, and the dreadful stretch by Thiepvla to Beaumont Hamel, and for several kilometres around Verdun. On the Ridge the ground has been purposely left untouched to the glory of the Canadians and Highlanders who fought there ten years ago. And in the Triangle where perhaps more Germans met their death in 1917 than at almost any other place, there really is no purpose to which the land can be put.

The fourteen thousand graves in the American cemetery at Romagne, near Verdun, and the recently-inaugurated memorial arch to the Pennsylvania regiments at Varenne, not far distant are certain proof that there was heavy fighting in these parts. Then everywhere, the scavengers of the battlefields in gangs of two or three are still at work. They have a long iron rod sharpened at the end with a T-shaped handle like that of a garden roller, with which they probe into the loose earth. They know by experience when the instrument hits metal and then they attack the spot with the great hoe-like spades of the French worker. There are still many accidents from unexploded shells and hand grenades but the rewards are high enough to justify the risks.

That 3,600 pails of wine and 1,600 barrels were consumed at the wedding of a German prince in 1561, has recently been disclosed.

"And you heard it, Roderiguez?"

"Madre de Dios!" swore Roderiguez.

"Only a bird!" repeated Mr. Henshaw.

But John was watching Roderiguez. "I wondered whom the bird was calling. When I stumbled over Clench I knew."

"Bah!" ejaculated Mr. Henshaw. "How did you get up on the porch?"

"I climbed up this end," said John, still watching the big Mexican who was staring down at Clench.

"Why?"

John glanced impatiently at the inquisitor. "I had had enough of being spied upon," he replied sharply.

"Nervous about it, were you? And this poor fellow came to your room a second time. You climbed up here, you say? He turned half about to look.

"The rope!" thought John, too late. "If he asks me about it."

But apparently it did not occur to Mr. Henshaw to do so. He glanced from the rope to Clench and then at Roderiguez and Manuel. "Look! Mira!" he said quickly.

The sight of the rope seemed to break the spell of Roderiguez's superstitious fear. He was angry at once. "He came prepared," he snarled, scowling down at Clench.

"To bind Mr. Moore in his sleep perhaps," broke in Mr. Henshaw, sardonically. "It is quite evident that Mr. Moore feared some such thing. And yet it seems poor justification for—" He paused and looked down at Clench. "Poor devil!" he said for the second time.

"Just what do you mean by that?" demanded John.

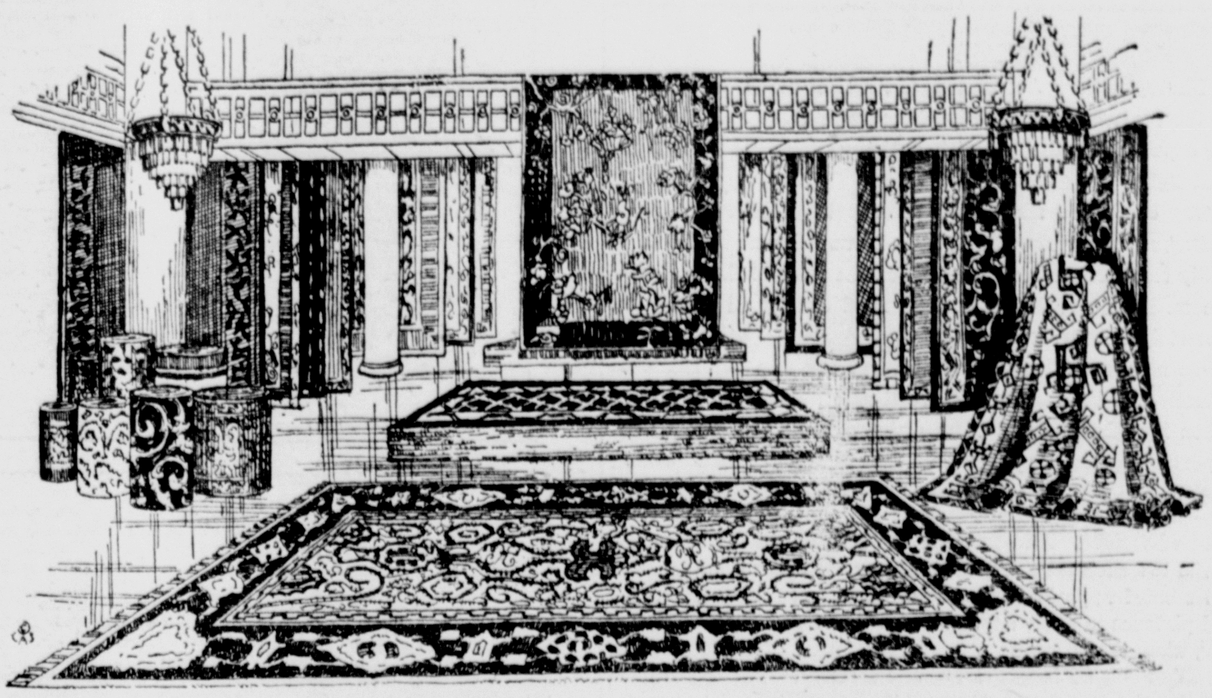

Mr. Henshaw did not answer. He stooped and set his lamp on the floor beside the body. He touched the hand which held the shoes and then the face. "Still warm," he muttered half aloud. "But quite dead. One sure stroke—" His hand closed about the knife handle and drew it steadily forth. The little stream ran more quickly.

Manuel drew a gasping breath.

John looked up at him quickly. His eyes were almost starting from their sockets. He muttered unintelligible words and crossed himself; his face worked convulsively. Roderi

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting so that he may take Ruth out of the country. Clench is murdered.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"No, it isn't well," he said coldly. "Meeting Clench! Say rather that I have been put to it to keep out of his way! I don't like it! I came down here presumably on your invitation, Mr. Henshaw, and I have been spied upon ever since I came. This fellow Clench was snooping around in Tubutama this morning. He hung around me here all afternoon. Tonight while I smoked in this garden I heard him get up some sort of plan to get into my room. More spying! They planned something about a watch—I couldn't catch all of it."

"But that was—" began Roderiguez.

"Mr. Moore is telling this," interrupted Henshaw. "You say he planned to get into your room?" he asked more mildly of John.

"He did. And Roderiguez was a party to it," lied John boldly. "Clench went into my room and came back and reported to Roderiguez that I was missing. I could hear them talking to each other, although I couldn't catch their words. But it was all plain enough. In a few minutes they sent Manuel down to tell the news to you. That's correct, isn't it?"

"But—" began Roderiguez again.

"Keep out of this," snarled Henshaw. Then to John: "That is correct. But still, Mr. Moore, that is not—. You say then, that you did not speak to Clench after you left us in the dining room?"

"No," said John.

"Ah," said his host, softly. He stood shaking his head gently and looking down at the dead man at his feet. "Poor devil!" he said.

"Fooled him!" thought John Moore. "He has stopped worrying about what Clench told and has time for a few decent regrets over the murder."

It was, indeed, with just that look of decent regret which John had in mind that his host brought his attention back to John Moore. "And—what else—did you see in the garden?" he asked.

"Nothing," admitted John, frankly.

"Surely you saw Emanuel return to his room? I watched him climb the terraces in the moonlight myself."

"But I didn't—I fell asleep."

"Asleep! Until—?"

"Until about twenty minutes ago. When I awoke there was no sign of Manuel, no sign of any one, in fact, and no sound." John broke off abruptly.

Very softly, his voice a mere thread of speech, Mr. Henshaw spoke. "You heard something?"

"I heard some one calling from the shadow of the pepper tree," said John slowly.

"Ah!" The word released a deep drawn breath from Roderiguez.

"Got him!" thought John.

"Calling whom?" asked Mr. Henshaw.

"That's what I wondered." John returned. "Listen!" His voice sank to the pitch of the dove's crooning wail. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

"Ahh," breathed Roderiguez again.

"You mean that fool bird!" said Mr. Henshaw, contemptuously.

"You heard it, too?" asked John.

Photograph Albums

The Photographers' Association of America makes an eloquent plea for the revival of the family photograph album. Not necessarily as a public benefaction, either, though it might be regarded in that light.

History can never adequately portray the debt owed to the aforesaid album. For two generations it ranked next to the Bible as a family treasure, and lay beside it on the table in the darkened living room. It never had a serious rival during all that time, except possibly the stereoscope.

It was a source of never-failing inspiration to the members of the family and invaluable as a social asset. How many million young men have been saved from embarrassment by having the family portrait gallery opportunely shoved into their willing hands. How many million afternoons and evening—and especially evenings—have thereby been rendered a social success instead of a tongue-tied failure. And to come down to our own generation, how rich is the entertainment afforded by that same album, even though its chief appeal nowadays is the unintentional humor of those old pictures in pose, expression and sartorial style.

Now, alas, there are so many other forms of entertainment that the album is no longer a social necessity. Yet it deserves a revival, for the family associations it represents and preserves. It ministers to the sense of family continuity and preserves many a relationship that otherwise would be forgotten. And what matter if the next generation were to laugh at our pictures just as we, graceless scoffers that we are, laugh at those of our parents and grandparents?

The photographers, however, have quite a different slant on the thing. They want the album revived on the ground that its disuse has lost them money. It would pay them richly, they think, if there were once more an album in every house, gaping for new pictures. Millions would be rushing to the galleries for photos to fill those empty pages.

It might work that way. Nevertheless, as far as an outsider can see, the photographers might not profit so much as they fancy. In making pictures for insertion in an album, they couldn't mount the print on an expensive card, then insert the card in a more expensive paper frame, and insert that frame in a still more expensive folder. In selling more pictures, they would sell less paper. And any good photographic business man can tell you there's money in fancy paper.

College Quota

Oxford university, England, has gone on a quota basis as regards sex. It is ruled that the number of girls attending the university shall not be more than one-fourth of the student body.

This is considered very liberal. In the past, a femine quota of one-eighth has been thought ample. Obviously the girls are making headway in the most conservative of British educational institutions.

The reasons given for limiting the feminine attendance are entertaining.

"There is a real danger," the authorities say, "that the increase of women, if not checked, will threaten the masculinity of the university. This would affect the character of the teaching given. Women are more of a type than men. Women concentrate on certain courses, especially English literature, where they do extremely well, but they are not good at other branches of study, scientific, mathematical, philosophical and classical. They thus tend to give the university a less universal character than a learned institution like Oxford considers proper."

The authorities very considerately fail to mention athletics, which have suffered much from the invasion of women in American universities, and are likewise imperiled in England. Oxford would probably sacrifice even its precious classics rather than its football and rowing prowess.

Liver and Light

Iowa State college is feeding liver to anemic students, instead of regular meat, and reports that their blood tests show improvement. To others it is administering the ultra-violet ray, which likewise improves the blood by encouraging the growth of red corpuscles. Sunlight serves the same purpose, but is less controlable than the artificial light.

So it happens that there is a boom in lights and livers.

We are getting to be light-worshippers in this country. Thousands who used to fear sunshine are devoting their best efforts to getting out into it. Sun baths are becoming a fad, and they are a mighty wholesome one when not carried to excess. The sun is appreciated more than at any previous time since the days of ancient Greece. It was probably no accident that those old Greeks worshipped the sun, under the name of Apollo, "the god of life and poesy and light."

As for liver, recently scorned, it seems to be almost as full of vitamins—the invisible little life-givers in food—as cod liver oil. Almost any liver, from cod to cow, is good for the undernourished.

"A clean life is the key to old age," declares a centenarian, thus refuting the saying that the good die young.

It isn't such a small world after all, when it takes two months to learn that 100,000 Chinese have been killed by an earthquake.

It's great weather for the golf ball crop.

Just A Real Dirty Trick — By Fontaine Fox

(© Fontaine Fox, 1927, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. — New York's search for thrills is appeased somewhat in trick types of speakeasies. They are staging blood-curdling effects in many seamy dives to attract upper crust slummers. The thrill complex is noted in other diversions as well.

The plays with biggest patronage this summer were mystery shockers. The wax figures of the Snyder murder principals were the chief horrors at Coney. After theatre parties drifted to spook parlors for hair raising seances instead of the cabarets.

One speak-easy has an ashen pale piano thumper who gives the impression of sniffing cocaine between tunes. He uses table salt but the effect is gripping and at a table is a group of plug uglies who start a row and draw terrible looking knives.

In another a beautiful "prop" patron has a quarrel with a gigolo type and drinks the contents of a bottle labeled poison. It is explained afterward it is all good playful fun. The idea is for spectators to return with friends who are not in on the joke and provide them a goose-pimpled thrill.

In 22d street is a delightful fakery that has been drawing the initiated with unsuspecting friends. They are told the place is a horrible hell-hole, difficult to enter but dispensing the choicest of spirits. The come-on is led through a cellar passageway.

An ugly seared race peeps through a peep-hole and the prospective patron is questioned thoroughly. He is even searched for concealed weapons. Inside he finds a shuddery den with feeble low hanging lamps and a motley collection of riff-raff. All very pulse jumping.

He is told to order what he pleases and the climax is when he finds nothing stronger than ginger ale is served. Several other such places are reported but we, the portable machine and I, have not seen them. There is thrill enough for country boys crossing New York streets these mad days.

A tense moment in the old fashioned drama was furnished about 20 years ago in Gallipolis, O. The heroine had been hurled over a cliff, strapped to a railroad track and otherwise cowed by the villain of the piece. In the last act he had her at his mercy again, tied and gagged, near a buzz saw. Standing over her, flickering his riding crop against riding boots and tugging at his silken mustache—durn him—he inquired: "Nellie, why do you fear me?"

One of New York's chronic but inconspicuous first nighters is Joseph Urban. He is usually standing in back of the house or sitting in the balcony. He is a dreamy looking fellow of tremendous bulk whose manner seems as soft and detached as the blue of his celebrated theatrical skies. Urban does not conform to prescribed aritistic tendencies. He lives in Yonkers and his chief sport is attending prize fights. He is robust, jovial and addicted to constant cigarette smoking. He is just now designing the new Metropolitan Opera House.

Add disillusionments of the past 24 hours: A pair of stage twins who are not related; a sporting editor who goes to church every Sunday and Wednesday; a cabaret owner who never drinks and spends idle time on a farm and an incessent cigarette smoking novelist who never inhales.

But the most crumbling disillusionment of all was a visit to one of those sterling figures of the advertisements who proclaims himself as "a builder of personality." He wore a toupee, his uppers had to be clicked back in place periodically and he spoke of his wife as "the little lady." Fortunately he does his stuff by mail.

If these disillusionments continue many of us are going to smile at the idea of hanging up our stockings this Christmas.

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION.

It is harking back into the dim corridors of sporting history to call up memories of the time when Billy Murray was manager of the Philadelphia team in the National league. Nevertheless, the opportunity to revive a baseball classic, is, I think, sufficient justification for directing the reader's attention to these reminiscent days.

Murray, as I say was manager and Murray had a bitter wit. Kitt Bransford was playing first base. Stanley Coveleskie, the Pole, was one of the pitching staff and one of the best men on it.

One afternoon at the Polo grounds when the Philadelphia team was playing the Giants, Coveleskie became abstracted, which was a very bad thing for any pitcher opposing the Giants to do. He passed a batter and thereafter paid so little attention that the runner stole second and then a moment later, third and finally scored on a high fly to the outfield.

When the inning ended Stanley came walking into the visiting players' bench looking rather abashed. Murray, who could use very stylish language when the occasion seemed to warrant such, hailed him in his most ceremonious manner.

"Mr. Coveleskie," he inquired, "did you happen to recall, just before you went to sleep standing up out there in the box with your eyes open, that there was a man on first base?"

"No," confessed the Pole, "I plumb forgot all about it."

'Oh,', you forgot about it?" echoed Murray, elaborating his sarcasm. He turned to his baseman: "Mr. Bransford, one moment if you please. Hereafter when a player on the opposite side reaches your station I wish you would please inform our young friend, Mr. Stanley Coveleskie, of the fact, won't you. It seems so foolish to have any secrets in the club."

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—V.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—A woman in this city bought a canary on the assumption that it was a male and therefore a songbird. After she had the bird a short time and it had never burst into song, she took it for granted that the canary had to be acclimated. Judge of her astonishment shortly thereafter when the canary that was supposed to be a "singer" laid eggs!

Obviously the woman had a just grievance against the dealer who had sold her the bird. She was not interested in raising canaries. All she wanted was a golden-hued, golden-throated songster, and all she had got was the makings of a canary nursery. Needless to say, the store adjusted this customer's complaint.

This is but one—if rather an unusual one—of the 627 so-called consumer complaints that were handled by the Washington Better Business Bureau during the last fiscal year, the majority of which, it is claimed, were settled on a basis that retained good will for the merchant and further established confidence in the public mind.

Such cases are instances in which members of the buying public are of the opinion that they have not received a square deal, and they come under the head of the miscellaneous activities of the forty-odd Better Business Bureaus in the United States. They are not cases in which misrepresentation, untruthfulness, or inaccuracy in advertising may be alleged, nor do they fall under the category of financial cases, in which the public is exploited through fake promotions and questionable stock transactions.

These cases may be said to involve unfair practices and misrepresentation in selling rather than in advertising and all of them are handled for the mutual interest of legitimate business and the public. With impartiality to both sides, the Better Business Bureaus endeavor to investigate and mediate the differences between the buyers and the sellers.

Customer Not Always Right.

Many business establishments adhere to the policy exemplified in the statement that the customer is always right. That is an expensive policy, although it may be vindicated in the long run, for the customers are not invariably right.

In fact, the general public is admonished that there are more dishonest customers than there are dishonest merchandisers, and that the comparison stands when it is a matter of sharp or unethical practices. The outstanding reason for this is that there are so many more customers than there are merchandisers and that the same inherent traits of character are to be found in buyers and sellers alike.

A more potent reason, however, is to be found in the fact that it is a great business asset to a merchant always to deal fairly and to see that his customers are satisfied, whereas the customer has nothing to lose by indulging in questionable practices.

Times innumerable the merchant is made the victim of the buyer who makes a purchase under no misrepresentation whatever and then decides that he wants his money back or an exchange. This often happens in a sale in which the merchant in his advertising has stipulated "no exchanges," which carries, of course, the meaning, "no money back." But the customer decides after the purchase has been made that he does not like his bargain and insists upon repudiating it. He alleges misrepresentation or faults in the article he has bought, and if he is sufficiently loud-mouthed in his complaint he usually gets away with it.

Then, too, there is the customer with a charge account, usually a woman, who has a gown or a coat sent to her home on approval, wears it once or twice, and then returns it with the demand that she be credited with its price—which is the equivalent of a "money back" transaction—or that she be permitted to exchange it. She gets away with it, even when she is flagrantly at fault, merely because she has a charge account. The merchant is comparatively helpless. He must take a loss incident to the condition of the article or its re-sale, or invite a controversy that may even occasion him a greater loss. The general public's complaint is that merchants must fix their prices at a scale that takes into consideration a certain percentage of such cases.

Buy From Reliable Firms.

Admittedly the customer's greatest safeguard for his purse in buying any kind of merchandise is to deal with reliable, established firms or merchants, to whom the customer's good will and confidence are assets to be conserved as carefully as stock on hand or cash in banks. The honest customer need not fear the honest dealer. The latter may make mistakes—honest mistakes or inadvertent inaccuracies—in his advertising or in his selling, but when he does, he corrects them. And, even more, when the honest dealer finds that an honest customer is unhappy over a purcrase he is always ready to make an adjustment, even though he knows that he is not at fault.

But when the buyer has been victimized through dealings with merchants of another kind, he may have recourse to the Better Business Bureau of his city and be reasonably sure that he will secure a satisfactory adjustment.

Among other miscellaneous activities of the Bureaus may be mentioned their squashing of fake solicitation schemes. So-called benefits, yearbooks, programs, social registers, charities, and what not, that the public is solicited constantly to patronize are almost without number. Some of them are selling and some of them are advertising schemes, but many of them are conducted by professional promoters solely for their personal gain. It is said that there is not a city

Irreverent Dawes Irks Professionals By "Straight-Talk"

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Through all of Vice President Charles G. Dawes' philosophy there runs a deep vein of irreverance.

CHARLES G. DAWES

It crops out from time to time, too obviously for anybody to mistake, as it did the other day in the course of the vice president's contemptuous references to the experts' handling of the recent Geneva naval limitations negotiations.

The truth is, Br'er Dawes has no respect for professionals.

"RESULTS" is C. G. Dawes' criterion of everything.

If a thing's done, he doesn't care a hoot how it was done, provided the job's satisfactory.

If it isn't done, and ought to have been, or if it turns out to have been botched in any respect, he thinks it was a fizzle, no matter how strictly according to Hoyle the procedure was.

Dawes would rather submit to a surgical operations at the hands of a horse doctor, with a carving knife, and be cured, than have the highest-priced specialist do it, with the most up-to-date kit of instruments, and die under the anaesthetic.

INTERNATIONAL relations, as Dawes sees 'em, are business—important business but no black art about it—and his idea of business is that it's something to be transacted.

If a matter of business arises between two or more countries, he wants to see it taken up, progress and be disposed of.

He can't conceive of a group of genuine men of affairs sitting down to settle a question that really has got to be settled and reporting, ultimately anything but some sort of a settlement.

Otherwise business would be impossible, he reckons.

BUT international experts don't try to transact business, or know or care anything about it, the vice president has concluded.

His observation is that they do nothing but play a game they've invented — a game called diplomacy—which is no more like business than tennis is like it, or golf or poker.

They play a lot of "draws," too, Dawes adds, and in his opinion the Geneva conference wound up in one of them.

RICHARD DIX ARMY OFFICER

"Quicksands" at Ceramic is Hair-raising Story.

The versatile Richard Dix as an army lieutenant, who in the ordinary course of duty falls in with more hair-raising adventures than happen to the layman in the course of a lifetime, was enthusiastically received by large audiences Monday and Tuesday at the opening of "Quicksands" at the Ceramic theatre.

The picture is a fast moving melodrama of the frontier, where a gang of smugglers makes headquarters in a hard boiled town, and shatters the placidity of honest folk with its nefarious activity. The girl in the case, Helene Chadwick, is forced by the pinch of circumstances to live a double life. Part of the time she spends at Portugee Joe's place in Deadville where the smugglers congregate and where she attempts to discover the "brains" of the outfit in order to help out her father. In reality she is the very respectable daughter of a rancher who is a federal agent.

The story moves fast. Dix in love with the girl, finds himself launched in a campaign against the smugglers. His superior officer orders him to lead a detachment of troops in a raid on the town. Things start to hum. People who like good fast action will find plenty of it in the subsequent scenes. Dix finds himself confronting a whole infuriated mob of smugglers bent on killing him and the girl.

"Quicksands" in this reissued, retitled, reedited form is a film packed with thrilling action. The supporting cast is particularly good. Noah Beery in the role of "Silent" Kruno treats to a remarkable bad man characterization. Others in the cast are Alan Hale, Walter Long, Frank Campeau, and Jean Hersholt.

THIS is why, not long ago, Dawes spoke so slightingly of a "career man" in the state department.

A "career man's" a professional diplomat.

He begins at the bottom and works up and the complaint frequently has been made that the reason this country is so often out-generaled diplomatically is our lack of enough of this kind of experts in key positions.

What if we are out-generaled? queries Dawes. It's only a game, anyway.

THE Dawes theory is that American business men, opposed to foreign diplomats, may lose all the diplomatic games, but they'll get the best of all the business dickers, for the simple reason that they know business and the diplomats never heard of such a thing.

He doesn't care a cent for all the games they lose.

What he's interested in is the business clean-ups they'll score to their credit.

SUCH talk as Dawes indulged in at Buffalo—in Secretary Kellogg's presence, too, and the Prince of Wales' and Stanley Baldwin's—is very painful to the state department.

It has diplomatic traditions to uphold.

The vice president doesn't go in for tactfulness in his speeches, however.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

THE WAY OF THE WORLD—oFa....

THE UPSTAGE PEOPLE

There are people who are both sad and funny. They are the "upstage people"—the ones who take themselves so seriously they are never quite natural. It is said that the Greatest Man who ever lived was so powerful he could feed five thousand people from a few baskets of food. And this man was not too proud to ask a lowly peasant woman for a drink of water at a roadside well.

"Nothing is more simple than greatness," said Emerson. "Indeed, to be simple is to be great."

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

Children cannot be grouped and classified according to age. Some are smart and some are dull. Others are worse than that. Intelligence tests, little believed in by old-fashioned people, are used to try them out. Grown-ups might find some of the questions hard. For example, in the Binet test, a question for twelve-year-olds in this: Explain the meaning of pity, revenge, charity, envy, justice. And sixteen-year-olds are asked: Distinguish between laziness and idleness; evolution and revolution; poverty and misery; character and reputation.

Try yourself out on these.

BLUE STRIPES

When Lord, director of the budget, noticed that government mail bags had blue stripes he asked why. He went all the way along the line and clear to the top. He never found anybody who knew. So he discontinued the blue stripes and saved the government $40,000 a year.

Have you some blue stripes that might just as well be dropped out?

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

First impressions are important. It's unfortunate that they are. They are frequently wrong, inaccurate. We cannot always judge matter by the first glance; neither can we judge personality by the first impression. Be tolerant with new acquaintances. Wait until the facts are all in.

HARD-BOILED?

The hard-boiled may get further as far as money goes, but the soft-hearted have a better time along the way. No soured happiness ever rested on the unhappiness of someone else.

guez was in the same condition, talking to himself. By Jove! They were praying! They had not feared Clench alive but Clench dead—

As if suddenly sensing their agitation Mr. Henshaw, the knife still in his hand, rose and faced them, his back to John.

Surely, thought John, he must now see and speak.

He was speaking, sternly. "You fools! A dead man cannot hurt you. Give me your lamps! Now, take up the body and carry it into his room. Pick it up! It won't hurt you!"

With reluctant steps Roderiguez and Manuel approached and lifted Clench, face downward. His arms dangled horribly. The shoes clattered to the floor. Manuel shuddered and dropped the feet. Henshaw swore at him in Spanish.

"What are you going to do with the body?" asked John.

"We will arrange that. Fortunately you are among friends—in Mexico." Mr. Henshaw spoke with mournful dignity.

"Rot!" said John Moore. "You need not try to conceal murder — among your friends—in Mexico—for my sake. One glance at Manuel and Roderiguez here would be enough for any one who was hunting the facts of this case, Mr. Henshaw!"

The latter stared at him in blank astonishment. "You are surely not trying to fool us, are you, Mr. Moore?"

"No," retorted John. "I am not. I am being candid with you. I accuse your two friends here of murdering Clench."

FREDERICKS PLAN FAMILY REUNION

The Frederick family reunion will be held at the Lisbon fair grounds Wednesday, August 24. Indications point to a large attendance.

C. W. Frederick of Rochester, N. Y., has compiled the Frederick genealogy which will be exhibited together with photographs and other things of interest connected with the history of the family. Among these is a copy of a petition sent to the Provincial council in 1756 asking for more protection for the colonists from Indian atrocities, and citing as an example the killing of Noah Frederick and the capture of his children.

A moving picture taken of the gathering last year will be shown upon a screen.

Groner Family Reunion.

The sixth annual reunion of the Groner family was held last Sunday, at Eagleton's Glen. About 75 guests participated in the day's activities.

At 1 o'clock a picnic luncheon was served, after which a short business session was held, with the president, W. S. Groner in charge. Secretary J. L. Keller read the minutes of the previous meeting.

The following officers were elected: President, W. S. Groner, Leetonia; vice-president, James Groner, Salem; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Charles Schrader, Struther. It was decided to hold the next reunion at the same place, the second Sunday in August, 1928.

There Are Lots of Ways to Identify the Delicious Kleen-Maid Loaf

HOUSEWIVES in this community have discovered these ways of knowing the delicious Kleen-Maid loaf.

First, you identify Kleen-Maid by the Little Dutch Girl and the Old Dutch Windmill on the tidy wrapper. You can also tell it by gently pressing its sides; Kleen-Maid bread has the unmistakable "feel" of good bread.

You can identify Kleen-Maid by its appetizing fragrance . . . the oven-aroma that says "Here is real, honest-to-goodness bread!" Kleen-Maid's glorious golden brown crust also will give you the clue.

But the surest way to know Kleen-Maid is to taste it. Here is bread at its tempting best! Ovenfresh, flavorful, satisfying. One fluffy slice starts a procession of slices. It's the kind of bread you like.

Conference Held Yesterday to Consider Peace Fails.

GET AFFIDAVITS

Situation in Mine Zones Reported Quiet Today.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Efforts of Col. L. S. Conelly, Ohio National Guard, to bring about a settlement of differences between Sheriff Clyde C. Hardesty and Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell of Belmont county, having failed at a conference here late yesterday, Waddell today was preparing to press prosecution of charges of intoxication against the sheriff, and was to leave for Columbus tonight where he will confer with Gov. Donahey relatives to seeking removal of the sheriff from office.

The differences between the two officials grew out of the rioting here last week, when a taxicab driver transporting non-union miners was was attacked and beaten by union sympathizers. The prosecutor charged that the sheriff was intoxicated during the riot, and incapacitated for performance of his duty. Sheriff Hardesty emphatically denied the charge. Political differences between Hardesty and Waddell are said to have figured in the dispute.

Waddell, before leaving here today, issued a statement in which he declared that he had no prejudice in the mine strike controversy and that his only purpose was to obtain enforcement of the law. He declared he would take numerous affidavits to Gov. Donahey today and demand removal of the sheriff from office.

The situation in mines of this vicinity was reported quiet today with no further violence or outbreaks of any character reported early today.

PRODUCERS SEEK CUT IN FREIGHT

West Virginia Operators Carry Fight to Supreme Court.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Southern West Virginia coal operators today were already making plans to carry their fight for a freight rate reduction on coal to lake ports, as offered by view of the refusal of the interstate commerce commission, to allow a reduction of 20 cents a ton.

The decision blocks plans laid by the operators to continue competition in the lake ports with the mines of Pennsylvania and Ohio despite the recent ruling which gave the latter shippers an advantage which the West Virginia operators claim is "ruinous" to their business.

Operators here today expressed belief that an appeal to the U. S. supreme court would result in upsetting the ruling of the interstate commerce commission.

Gary's Remains Taken

Funeral services are to be held in Gary Memorial church in Wheaton tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock daylight time.

More than twenty years ago the late Judge Gary contributed more than $100,000 for the construction of the church as a memorial to his parents.

The body will lie in state from 2 to 7 p. m. tomorrow. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Ahmer Penniwell, assisted by Bishop F. D. Fleet of Indianapolis, the Rev. Earnest F Tuttle of Evanston, Ill., and the Rev. James T. Ladd of Elgin, Ill., all of the Methodist Episcopal church.

gramme, and indignant Britishers on their own ship wade through a list of American breakfast foods that amazes and outrages them.

At this moment comes a radio from International News Service: "German pilots, Edzard and Frisch, flying Junkers machine, beat Chamberlin's endurance record, flying 52 hours 12 minutes." You thank heaven that soon we shall fly to Europe, escaping the dog and perfume ladies. Vain hope. They will be on the airplane, promenading a deck above the clouds, as soon as planes are a little bigger.

In old days after dark sentimental young people stood whispering behind the wheel house. The older, more serious, loked at the starry sky, muttering about Arcturus, Orion and Pleiades and the Chambers of the South.

That is "old stuff" now. There is no wheel house accessible on a modern ship, and you are not supposed to look at the stars.

The only one of six decks from which they can be seen is dark at night. Nobody uses it. To walk there is to interrupt your musings by falling over shuffle boards or imitation greens for golfers.

On modern ships one star is enough. The one to be seen tonight is wonderously beautiful, deep and soulful. Her picture, in colors, just outside the dining saloon, shows her pretty tiny nose, pressed close to the nose tip of some gentleman. The sign says Pola Negri in "Good and Naughty."

In the smoking room pools are auctioned on the ship's daily run, the pools running to thousands of dollars. The chief smoking room steward, generously remembered by the winner of each pool, gets twice as much as the ship's captain. That also is modern. Many a bootlegger gets four times as much as the president of the United States.

On this voyage Mr. Newmark and Mr. Lehman display strange knowledge as to how fast a ship will go. Martin Conboy, of New York, looks on and says it's too complicated and not worth the bother anyhow.

In spite of ladies and dogs, 90 per cent is improvement in modern travel, which is faster, safer, more comfortable. You have a room with real beds and windows, and higher above sea level than much of the land on Long Island; waves cannot reach you.

News comes through the ether from both shores, and unlike the brother of old Jerome, of Travers and Jerome, you don't wait ten days to learn that Wall Street has ruined you. You know it the same day.

Golden Eagle Leads

miles out from San Francisco or about 450 miles from its goal.

The message said the Woolaroc reported receiving the radio beacon signals faintly.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Thirty-two ships are standing by to watch for the Dole flyers, the navy announced today.

There are three submarines off Hilo, the mine sweeper, Ortolan, and six submarines in the channel between Hawaii and Maui, and five submarines between Mokokai and Oahu. The sub-tender Widgeon and five submarines are stationed four miles apart between Oahu and Kauai.

The John Rogers came into five submarines north of Kauai four miles apart. The army announced that searchlights and beacons have been set up on the landing field.

Special kitchens have been erected on Wheeler field to feed the crowds gathering to greet the flyers.

Half Way Mark Passed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.— The three leading Dole planes were believed to have passed the half-way mark of their 2400-mile race to Honolulu and to have entered the home stretch at 4 a. m. today, according to radio reports, mostly fragmentary, received here.

At that hour, the steamship Manukai reported by radio that she had been in communication with Art Goebel's Woolaroc, the only plane in the race equipped with a transmitter. The Woolaroc gave her position as latitude 28.45 N; longitude 143 W, which would put the plane about 1400 miles at sea and 60 miles off her course. The Manukai's captain added, however, that he was not sure of the plane's figures and was endeavoring to check them.

At 6 a. m. the city of Honolulu messaged she had been working with the Woolaroc and that the plane had given her position as latitude 27:50 north; longitude 146 west. "All okay" was the reassuring word sent out by the plane, the steamer reported. At that hour the City of Honolulu was approximately 1,575 miles off the coast.

The plane's position, translated into offshore mileage, on charts here, was placed at about 1,800 miles at sea, or 600 miles from Honolulu.

Radio reports picked up from ships at sea by the Post-Enquirer wireless station on the Oakland municipal airport prompted the belief that at 6 a. m. the "Golden Eagle" and the Aloha were between 1,800 and 2,000 miles out.

Contradicting a report relayed by the Esther Dollar, the City of Los Angeles, working directly with the Oakland station, said that she had sighted two planes high overhead at 3:05 a. m. Pacific coast time. The City of Los Angeles is bound for San Pedro, however, indicating that two of the ships, probably the "Woolaroc" and the "Miss Doran," have deviated nearly 65 miles off course. At 1:35 the airport station picked up a flash from the Manukai, in the great circle course. Reporting the sighting of two planes. The Manukai attempted to signal them, but had no luck, the report added. This strengthened the belief that the two ships were the "Aloha" and the "Golden Eagle," since neither ship has a sending set.

The liner Manoa, rounding the turn on the great circle course and heading for Honolulu, reported to island stations that she had picked up an unsigned message from a ship far at sea telling of the passage high overhead of two Dole planes. The planes, according to the message, were flying closely together.

The source of the message to the Manoa was not definitely established. Belief that the City of Los Angeles had seen the Dole birds was dispelled when the steamer Esther Dollar reported to local radio corporation headquarters that she had been in communication with the City of Los Angeles and that the latter boat had advised that she had neither heard nor seen any of the planes.

The unidentified radio report was interpreted to refer to the Hearst "Golden Eagle" and to Martin Jensen's "Aloha." This report, and the word from the Hanukai regarding the "Woolaroc" accounted tentatively for three of the four flyers. The fourth, the Buhl biplane of Auggie Pedlar and Miss Doran, "The Flying Schoolmarm" was trailing approximately 140 miles behind, due to the necessity of making a second start from the Oakland airport yesterday.

Woolaroc Sends Message.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—"Everything running as per schedule," radioed Art Goebel in the Dole plane Woolaroc at 7 a. m., Pacific Coast time, the Wailupe naval radio station reported today.

Goebel gave his position at that hour at latitude 26:20; longitude 147.40.

All Hawaii Ready.

WHEELER FIELD, HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Hawaii was ready to greet the Dole flyers today.

Territorial and municipal officials began arriving at Wheeler Field at 5 o'clock. Two battalions of the 27th infantry took up guard duty about the field to keep off the crowd.

It was the largest gathering in the history of the field. Military officials estimated there were 3,500 automobiles parked at the field and lined up along the road leading from the city with others still coming.

Beacon experts of the army estimated that the plane Woolaroc on its last reported position was almost in a direct line with the Beacon Waves.

James Dole, Hawaiian millionaire and donor of the $35,000 pot for the race, arrived on Wheeler Field at 5:35 a. m. entering the reception stand. Dole greeted cordially the officials and committeemen already gathered. He shook hands all around with members of the official receiving group.

Three Soldiers Injured.

WHEELER FIELD, Honolulu, Aug. 17.—Three soldiers sleeping on the road near Wheeler Field were run over by an ambulance early today and badly injured.

These men were the first casualties reported in connection with the gathering at Wheeler Field.

GUARD OFFICERS ARE WITHDRAWN

Major Thomas Quits West Point Mine Zone.

Major A. J. Thomas, Ohio National Guard, assigned to Lisbon for the purpose of making a detailed survey of the mining situation in the West Point field in this county has been withdrawn. Col. Robert Haubrich and Col. O. E. Hardway, two O. N. G. officers first assigned to make observations in this territory, returned for a few hours Tuesday, and when they left they were accompanied by Major Thomas.

A handfull of non-union mine workers are still at West Point, and are making their headquarters in the bunk house provided by the Seger Fuel company. It is related upon authority close to the Seger Fuel company that no effort will be made to produce coal at the West Point mine, all work being directed toward pumping the water from the mine.

A day and night guard is on duty at the West Point mine, but they have little if anything to do. The mine tipple and also the power plant of the Youngstown & Ohio Railroad company is brilliantly illuminated at night as a precautionary measure.

Union mine workers at West Point still maintain their camp across the Wellsville-West Point road from the bunk house of the Seger Fuel company, but not as many men are to be seen about the camp now as a few weeks ago.

ROAD INSPECTOR UNDER ARREST

Gallipolis Police Continue Investigation of Murder Mystery.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Aug. 17.—Edward J. Costello, 25, was at liberty under $2,000 bond here today, to await a preliminary hearing Thursday on charges of violating the Mann white slave act, following the tragic death of Mrs. Florence Buck, in a hotel room Monday.

Costello with Mrs. Loyal Wright, Grimms Landing, W. Va., a sister of the slain woman, registered at the hotel late Sunday. Costello and Mrs. Wright, occupied the same room, it is charged, while Mrs. Buck occupied an adjacent chamber.

During the night, Mrs. Buck was strangled. Her sister was released after being questioned by authorities.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Etta Patterson.

Mrs. Etta Patterson, 47, died last night in the home of her cousin, Mrs. J. W. Early, 1182 Harker avenue, East End, after an extended illness.

She leaves her father, Richard Price; two brothers, William and John Price, and three sisters, Mrs. Stella Morris, Ms. Mattie Pegran and Mrs. Celia Coleman, all of New Kent, Va.

Glenda Roushausen.

Glenda M. Roushausen, five-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Roushausen, died last night in the home, 522 Mulberry street.

Besides her parents, she is survived by two brothers, Elbert and Hillis.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Canton Men Drive Around Rim of U. S. in 21 Days.

A novel long distance automobile record and a remarkable exhibition of motor car stamina and durability were completed when Police Officer Albert O. Bush and his relief driver and mechanician, Theodore Marsh recently returned to their home city of Canton, Ohio, 21 days after they had left it in a 1924 Chrysler "70" touring car for a drive "Round the Rim" of the United States.

In the three weeks of their absence their itinerary had taken them through every boundary state of the Union and along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coastlines. They added 13,456 miles to the 50,000 already registered on their car's speedometer, making an average of 636 miles a day. The actual elapsed time for the trip, checked by Western Union, was 21 days, 4 hours and 6 minutes.

In computing the daily average time Officer Bush pointed out that consideration must be given the fact that speed laws were observed throughout the trip and in some states faster running was possible than in others.

The time of the new record is all the more striking in view of the almost inconceivable combination of adverse conditions that met the drivers, running the gamut of cloudbursts, floods, mountain snow and blinding sandstorms.

Their daily telegraphic reports show that from the time they left Canton headed east, and all the way down the Atlantic coast, they ran into a succession of furious rainstorms, which in New Hampshire reached the proportions of a cloudburst. Detours through miles of mud, often hubdeep, dragged down their average running time, and washouts entailed long delays until streams could be forded or crossed by improvised bridges.

MA APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

BOSTON, Aug. 17. — An "eleventh hour" dash to Washington, by either train or airplane, to save the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti was being planned today by defense legal forces.

The dash to the national capital would be made to obtain a writ of certiorari from the United States supreme court in event of an adverse decision by the Massachusetts supreme judicial court on bills of exceptions to state court rulings against motions for a new trial, revocation of sentence and a writ of error.

Defense counsel, M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, stated that several moves in federal courts were under consideration but that the application for a writ of certiorari was practically decided upon.

ROME FLIGHT TO START SOON

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 17. — "Old Glory" may start for Rome very soon, possibly as early as five o'clock this evening.

While neither Lloyd W. Bertaud nor James De Witt Hill, air mail pilots, would confirm the reported 5 o'clock take-off, it was learned from other sources today that the possibilities for a start at that hour are good.

Weather reports show favorable conditions over the proposed route most of the way to Italy and the big Fokker monoplane is tuned to perfection, Bertaud and Hill worked on it at Curtiss field until four o'clock this morning, assisted by a large crew of mechanics.

PRESIDENT WILL MEET INDIANS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 17.—President Coolidge left here at 8 o'clock this morning for Pine Ridge Indian reservation where 10,000 redskins this afternoon are to greet him. He was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and his son, John. The president is scheduled to deliver an address to the Indians this afternoon.

MARION SUFFERS $20,000 BLAZE

MARION, O., Aug. 17.—Loss of $20,000 was sustained by the Marion Hay, Grain and Supply company today in an early fire. The fire is thought to have originated in an overheated housing. Flour and grain constituted the greater part of the loss.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. — Strength and activity in the motor stocks and high priced specialties was the outstanding feature of early trading today. The dividend rails continued to move forward in the face of disappointing freight traffic reports for the week of August 6, while all of the low priced motor stocks bettered their previous closing prices.

Walter Chrysler's "mystery" statement, due on Saturday, is expected to disclose details about a new car that will make a bid for the Ford business, and the stock has been in demand at the highest prices of the year. Hudson sold up 2 points, while Packard and Studebaker continued to attract attention.

Baldwin was jacked up to another new high level around 260 to the accompaniment of reports that the Fisher brothers were preparing to take an active interest and participation in the affairs of the company. Radio Corporation, American Linseed, International Combustion and other specialty and mercantile stocks which have recently stepped into the limelight, moved upward a point or two. The oils were firm with Lago petroleum duplicating its best previous price for the year above 32. Vanadium was the leader of the independent steel group.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up 20 points on good home and foreign buying. Sterling cables were quoted at 4.86-3/16 and French francs at 3.92⅛. Call money unchanged at 3¾ per cent.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy during the long illness and death of our husband and father.

Especially do we thank Rev. Shaddock of Rogers and the singers for their services.

MRS. JOHN H. FITZSIMMONS AND CHILDREN.

CLASSIFIED AD BRINGS RESULTS

Mrs. John Ludwig, of 820 Highland avenue, had a four-room house, which she desired to rent and so she decided to invest a trifling sum in the classified columns of the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Her investment brought her 24 telephone calls from interested persons; 10 personal interviews; and the satisfaction of renting her property to responsible people.

These few lines did the work:

FUNERAL HELD AT COLUMBUS

Services for Mrs. Wheeler and Father Today.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.—A delegation of officials of two international prohibition organizations—the World League Against Alcoholism and the Anti-Saloon league—headed by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of the M. E. church, was to arrive here today to attend the funeral this afternoon of Mrs. Wayne B. Wheeler, and her father, Robert Candy.

Mrs. Wheeler, wife of the general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, died of burns sustained Saturday night in a gasoline explosion at a Michigan resort. Her aged father died of shock soon after Mrs. Wheeler had been injured.

The double funeral was to be held from the Central M. E. church, conducted by Rev. A. G. Schatzman, pastor, and Rev. A. B. Riker. Hundreds of telegrams, telephone messages and letters of condolence from friends and political foes alike throughout the country continued to pour in here to Wheeler today.

NATIONAL GUARD AT CAMP PERRY

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 17.—Contingents of Ohio National Guard riflemen were on the range here today as were several detachments of United States regulars, for first firing practice in preparation for the national rifle matches which start here in September.

A team to represent the O. N. G. in the national event will be selected from the high-scorers, to try for the Hilton trophy which Ohio won in 1924 and lost again in 1925. Lieutenant Noble Morton, of Company G, Lima, Ohio, and Sergt. Franklin Murphy, Company K, Delaware, are expected to try out for a place this year. Both have served on previous teams.

WADDELL FOR BEER AND WINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A new attack on the Volstead act by Col. James C. Waddell, federal alcohol and brewery control chief of New Jersey that he would press for passage of a light wine and beer bill, today added fuel to what promises to be the most lively congressional prohibition fight since the adoption of the 18th amendment.

Waddell, who declared that the Volstead act is not enforceable unless 2¾ per cent beer is legalized, added that there is no reason why the beverage should not be sold in lunch counters, drug stores and groceries.

PIRATE LEADER GETS $100 FINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was fined $100 today by President John Heydler of the National league for alleged "violation of the playing rules and bad conduct."

Bush was ejected from the game by Umpire Ernie Quigley in the first inning for protesting vigorously a decision by Quigley. Quigley declared Lloyd Waner was out at third base on a throw from Eddie Roush. Bush contradicted the statement.

UHRICHSVILLE IS QUARANTINED

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Aug. 17.—Six cases of infantile paralysis are on record here, following the discovery of two additional cases Tuesday. All places of public meeting have been closed to youths of 16 years or under.

One case is reported at the adjacent city of Dennison, with two probable cases. The epidemic has reached the northern portion of Tuscarawas county, where one new case was reported late Tuesday.

CHECK SPREAD OF PARALYSIS

California and Ohio Lead in Number of Cases Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Although there have been several outbreaks recently, notably in Ohio, good progress is being made in checking the spread of infantile paralysis in the United States, the public health service said today.

So far this month 179 cases are active in the country. In Martins Ferry, Ohio, there were 43 cases this month, with three deaths since August 4. Nine new cases were reported between Aug. 13 and 16.

Cumming said that infantile paralysis spreads by direct contact with infected persons and declared that the service is recommending that all cases be isolated. State health authorities have been requested to report all cases to Washington.

The cases active at present are distributed by states as follows:

California, 56; Ohio, 43; Connecticut, 11; Massachusetts 10; Missouri 15; New Jersey 17; New Mexico 9; Oklahoma 8; and Texas 10.

Claims Riding Record.

BUSINESS MEN STAGE OUTING

Annual Event Sponsored by Chester Merchants at Rock Springs.

Annual basket picnic of the Chester Business Men's association is being held today at Rock Springs park with a large crowd in attendance. Stores of the city closed at 10 o'clock.

Feature of the afternoon was an athletic program in which events were held for men, women and children. Baseball game was staged between clerks of Chester and East Liverpool, while a soft ball contest was played between Chester and business men of East Liverpool, Newell, East End and Wellsville.

Sport committee is composed of L. W. Bird, F. E. Werkheiser, Dr. H. E. Matthews, Max Tuttle, H. Kenneta Kimble and A. G. Floyd.

Free coffee was furnished by the Campbell Wood company, of Pittsburgh, while music was rendered by Bennett's band of Chester.

Business men of East Liverpol, Wellsville, Newell nad East End were largely represented.

BIDS SOUGHT ON CITY BUILDING

Bids for the construction of the new combined city hall and fire station will be opened in the municipal building on Tuesday, September 6. Plans, profiles and specifications are now in the hands of city clerk, A. Earl Wilson.

CHANGES MADE AT WEIRTON MILL

A number of changes, including several promotions, was announced by the Weirton Steel company in the management of departments at their Weirton mills.

J. M. Hill has been promoted from manager of the tin plate and sheet mill to manager of the tin plate and sheet mills of the Weirton plant, succeeding E. M. Mentzer, who is now on a vacation. Mr. Mentzer will return in November and will assume duties in the general offices of the company.

Hugh H. Scanlon, who was succeeded as manager of the tin mill by E. W. Reiger, will go to Steubenville as manager of the Weirton plant, in that city.

E. E. Paddock of the Steubenville plant, has been promoted to the general offices in Weirton. He was formerly a superintendent in the Weirton plant.

R. F. Horn will become manager of the sheet mill, succeeding Mr. Hill. Mr. Horn, until his promotion, was chief clerk at the Weirton office. Adam Hill will succeed Horn as chief clerk.

BEAVER FALLS HERE TONIGHT

Record crowd is expected to attend the baseball game here tonight on Smith field between Chester Superior Cord Tires nad the Beaver Falls Elks. This is without a doubt the best attraction ever booked for fans in this section by Manager Frank H. Riley. The contest will begin at 5:30.

Delegations are expected to be on hand from all towns in this district.

Lawn Fete Arranged.

Lawn fete will be held tomorrow night on the grounds of the First Methodist Episcopal church by the Ladies Aid society of the church.

JUNIOR EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Junior exhibits, the entries of boys and girls, will play an important part in the forthcoming forty-seventh annual West Virginia exposition and state fair at Wheeling which opens Saturday, September 3 and continues to the 10. They will constitute the handiwork of boys and girls, both in the cities and on the farms.

Chief among these junior exhibits will be those of the 4-H clubs. The sons and daughters of the farmers will have their inning here. They will exhibit calves which they have raised, judge live stock, exhibit poultry, sewing and garden truck. The 4-H club camp at the fair grounds will be a virtual bee hive of industry. Here will be quartered the boys and girls entered in the state contests during their stay at the fair.

In the textile and fancy work department the girls under 14 years of age will show their skill with a needle. They will exhibit specimens of cross-stitch embroidery, darning, buttonholes, patching, crochet and other needlework of various kinds.

The school exhibit is another juvenile feature of the fair. The pupils of grade and high schools will show their skill in many endeavors. These will include applied electricity, industrial drawing, pottery, sheet metal, wood turning, cabinet making, architectural drawing, designing, machine shop work, basketry, home economics, art and handwork.

Eastern Star Meeting.

Members of Crescent chapter No. 49, Order of Eastern Star, will meet Thursday night in the Masonic temple, First street. Routine business will be transacted.

Many Attend Garden Party.

Large crowd attended the garden party last night under the auspices of the Loyal Daughters class of the First Christian church at the home of Mrs. A. Earl Wilson in Church street.

Prayer Services.

Prayer services tonight in the First United Presbyterian church will be in charge of H. C. Leeper. Services will be held in the other churches of the city at the usual hour.

How THE Other Half Behaves

HOT DOG, SOME CLASS!

NEW YORK.—No longer will people of artistic tastes need to shudder every time they glance at a hot dog stand. The Art Center of New York has announced that $7,000 donated to it by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would be used to provide prizes for architectural suggestions for artistic hot dog stands. As to the hot dog itself, it's still to retain its present shape.

A PIPE! NO, NEVER!

PARIS.—If American women make up their minds to go to Paris to see the wild, wild life in Paris cafes, they must reconcile themselves to one thing; that is, leave their pipes at home. This was emphatically decided when two girl students were ejected for smoking their pipes at dinner at a famous cafe.

WELL, WHY NOT?

SAN FRANCISCO.—According to A. B. C. Dohrmann, dean of Pacific coast merchants, America soon will be a nation of garage owners with bedrooms attached, instead of home owners. Such cramped living quarters, said he, never can insure happiness.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who so kindly ministered to our dear father, Mr. J. B. Rowe and to us during his sickness and death.

We especially thank the Rev. Fowler for his comforting words and male quartette, also the neighbors who sent flowers and donated cars.

MRS. J. B. ROWE AND FAMILY.

BEAVER COUNTY DIVORCES CLIMB

For every eight couples married in Beaver county in 1926, one couple was divorced, according to the report of the Department of Commerce, Washington, just issued. There were 956 marriages and 121 divorces during the year. There was an increase of 15 marriages and seven more divorces than in 1925.

In the state during 1926 there was a decrease in divorces. In 1926 there were 7,706 divorces and in 1925 there were 8,027. There were 72,222 marriages in 1926 as compared to 71,093 in 1925.

Fans To Attend Game.

Choir Rehearsal Scheduled.

Choir rehearsal will be held at 8 o'clock Friday night in the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

Missionary Meeting.

Mrs. W. E. Baird will be hostess to members of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church tomorrow night at her home in Ohio avenue.

Tires Scheduled Here.

Knowles, Taylor and Knowles and Chester Superior Cord tires are booked to clash in an Industrial league game tomorrow night at Columbian park.

Lodgemen To Meet.

Members of Pennova lodge No. 880, I. O. O. F. will meet tomorrow night in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

DINNER STORIES

He Ought to Know.

Two business men were discussing a competitor who once had been an employee of the older of the two men.

"I happen to know that fellow is a sharper and not above lying or stealing when it's to his advantage," remarked the older man.

Do you know him personally?"

"Know him? Say, I taught him everything he knows."

Not in His Class.

"Porter, I say, porter! Don't let that man off here with me! He is not of my station."

"Prithee, whaffo?"

"He comes from a lower berth?"

ANTI CLUB FOR TAX REDUCTION

Will Urge Heavier Penalties for Intoxicated Auto Drivers.

Members of the board of directors of the Columbiana County Motor club met in regular monthly session in H. C. Armstrong's office in Lisbon Monday night.

The body went on record for the repeal of the remaining 3 per cent federal war excise on passenger automobiles and will work with the American Automobile association for its discontinuation.

The board of directors are preparing to appear before councilmanic bodies in Columbiana county for the purpose of having ordinances enacted in conformity with a bill recently passed by the state legislature providing heavier penalties for intoxicated drivers of automobiles.

Public approval has caused the board to continue the personal automobile accident insurance policy as a part of club membership service until the date of their next meeting on September 19, 1927.

'ROOKIES' REAL FARCE COMEDY

All-Star Cast in Picture at American Theatre.

A rip roaring farce comedy. A laugh in every foot of celluicid, and a chuckle, every inch!

That's an apt description of "Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's latest comedy, which is being shown at the American theatre.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, two inimitable comedians, are introduced as a team in this farce, and between them they manage to keep the audience in an uproar from beginning to fade-out.

The story, which was filmed with the cooperation of the United States government, has a background of the citizens' military training camp, held annually in many of the states, a background affording ample opportunity for thrills and laughs.

Byron Morgan, who wrote the original story, nad Sam Wood, who directed the picture, nut have spent many days figuring out the laugh-producing situations and gags. Don't miss it!

More recently the Better Business Bureaus have been getting after fakes of this kind. The Bureaus advise the public to make inquiry before contributing to any unknown charity, benefit, or advertising proposition, or before buying anything from itinerant solicitors who offer their wares with the plea that a purchase will "help" some one or some movement and thus be semi-charitable. Almost invariably a Bureau can supply immediate information on such schemes and is always in a position promptly to investigate others.

Individuals who comprise the general public are urged in their buying and "contributing" to curb that cupidity that is characteristic of so many humans. Cupidity, freely defined, is the desire to get something for nothing, or almost nothing. The "something" may be extraordinary profit on an investment or self-exaltation from a charity contribution.

WELLSVILLE SEWER INSPECTION NEAR COMPLETION

COMMISSION AND ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEET

Prepare Recommendations on Drainage Problems.

CONFER THURSDAY

Suggestions Will be Submitted to City Council.

With their work practically completed, the sewer commission appointed last week by Wellsville city council to inspect drainage conditions in the west end of the city from Fourteenth sreet down, is expected to confer on Thursday evening with Engineers McGill, for the city, and Frederick, for the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, preparatory to submitting their recommendations to solons for action.

The meeting of commission members and engineers on Thursday evening will be followed by another conference between the commission and city council when recommendations and views of the commission members will be discussed in detail. The complete report and recommendations will then be made public at a subsequent session of council.

The members of the sewer commission include: D. S. Brookman, first ward; C. C. Ewing, second ward; Frank Kerr, third ward; Issac Cable, fourth ward; C. J. Berg, Martin Foley and J. S. McLane, at large.

FILE ACTION ON $50,000 NOTES

Suit to recover $50,000 and interest on 10 notes of $5,000 each given at Salineville, July 24, 1925, has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney Elmer E. Black of Salineville in behalf of the First National Bank of Marietta, against James S. and Bridget Strabley, John H. and Beatrice Strabley, James C. and Margaret F. Strabley; the Dillon Electric Co., of Canton and the Miller & Coulson Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The notes were secured by mortgage deeds on 13 tracts of land in sections 29 and 35 in Washington township.

CARAVELLA AND SPELL IN JAIL

Fined $2,000 Each at Police Court Hearings.

Patsy Caravella and Peter Spell, arrested last Friday in a raid by local police on a farm south of Lisbon, are in jail today in default of fines amounting to 52,000 each, assessed by Mayor W. L. Fogo following hearings yesterday afternoon.

Caravella and Spell were charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, second offense. A number of witnesses were introduced during the hearings, the defendants being represented by Attorney Frank Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

Frank Fusco and Patsy Romano, arrested along with Caravella and Spell, are at liberty under bond pending disposition of their cases on Tuesday, August 30, Mayor Fogo announced today.

Visit in Chicago.

Mrs. N. S. Wood and son Albert of First avenue are spending two weeks with the former's sister, Mrs. R. J. Dickerson, in Chicago.

MOTORS PLAY MIDLAND HERE

Meet All-Stars Tonight; Newell Thursday and Saturday.

Two more games with the Laughlin champions of the City Industrial league and an engagement with the Midland All Stars will round out the Wellsville Nash Motors' schedule for the present week.

The locals are billed to meet the Midland aggregation tonight at 5:30 at Nicholson Field in an exhibition encounter.

On Thursday night the team will play at Newell in a league contest. A bad first inning when the Newell club crashed out three straight hits and scored two runs discounted a brilliant pitching exhibition by Huffman last night.

On Saturday afternoon, according to arrangements made by the two clubs last night, Laughlin will play the locals in an exhibition game at Nicholson Field.

Motor to New York.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted us during our bereavement in the loss of our husband and father; especially Rev. Berger for his kind words of sympathy, the singers and all those who donated cars; the state highway department; and friends and neighbors for their beautiful floral offerings.

MRS. ROSS GOULD.
RONALD GIBSON AND FAMILY.

Giants Play Thursday.

Colored Giants will clash with Porter's Nationals of Congo Thursday evening at Congo. A lawn fete will be given by the Giants and members of the Baptist church in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Giles.

CIVIL SERVICE PLANS EXAMS

Seek Eligibles for Patrolman, Janitor Jobs.

Date for a civil service commission examination for patrolman, patrol drivers and public school janitors was fixed at Friday, August 26, at a meeting of the commission last night in the city hall.

One vacancy exists in the ranks of public school janitors and this will be filled from the eligibles certified by the commission after the examination. There are no vacancies at present among patrolmen or patrol drivers, but the list of successful applicants will be retained to select from in case of future needs.

COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Will Confer Monday on New Power Co. Franchise.

City council held a short session last night, the third meeting of the municipal lawmakers in as many weeks.

Plans were announced by the street and light and the finance committees for a meeting with Ohio Power company representatives next Monday night here when a proposed ordinance granting the electric power company a new franchise will be discussed preparatory to formal action at a later session of the solons.

Each member of council as well as city officials were presented with copies of the proposed ordinances last night.

A communication from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company asking that the city inspect repaving jobs by the gas company between the street car rails, was referred to the service director. The street car company communication, signed by C. A. Smith, general manager, pointed out that unless the bricks, which were taken up by the gas company to install and inspect pipe lines, were replaced carefully, the surface of the street would be damaged.

The street and light committee recommended the relocating of a telephone pole at the corner of Third and Broadway and a white coat of paint for electric light standards.

Auditor Eckfeld submitted the following report: General fund, $1,843.13; safety, $1,249.66; health, $544.26; service, $1,039.93; water, $3,002.45; cemetery, $1,103.15; library, $378.09; gasoline tax, $5,729.39; special water, $4,734.63; auto license, $3,844.33; cemetery trust, $613.37; firemen's indemnity, $350.06; sinking fund depository, $26,259.60.

EX-SOLDIER TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE AFOOT

15,000 Mile Hike in Three Years is Plan.

TO MAKE RECORD

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 17. — New York to Paris, not by airplane but afoot.

Such is the intention of John Oliver Porter, world war veteran and globe trotter extraordinary of this city.

"Quite a task, yes, but I'll do it," he declared with much emphasis. "They laughed at Lindbergh and no doubt they'll do the same to me, but I'll see Paris."

Porter's declaration has set this quaint little New England town agog. It's the chief topic of the day. Many of the "boys" go as far back as Colonial days, when Danvers, once old Salem village, was the cradle of witchcraft where men of strange ideas were punished by death, it being taken for granted that they were possessed of some evil spirit.

Only Way Left.

Since travel to Paris has been accomplished by almost every means conceivable only one way remains and that is to hike it, according to Porter.

Porter will begin his trek to Europe the latter part of this month. From New York, he will move to Canada, thence to Alaska and the Behring Sea. What next? There, according to Porter, is the greatest handicap of the hike. A sixty mile stretch of water is frozen solidly for a period of three months or more during the course of winter. Indians and Eskimoes living in the vicinity are known to frequently cross that great stretch during winter time. Cold, yes, very cold, they tell us, perhaps 70 degrees below zero or more. But, according to Porter, 60 miles is not far when a man is properly clothed and with a suitable guide the move can be made without any undue exertion.

Once across, Porter then faces a stretch of Asiatic country covering a stretch of several thousands of miles. Dangers are many among them being the cold.

According to Porter approximately three days will be consummated in his task perhaps more with the possibility that some 15,000 miles will be covered before the finish.

Will Lecture Enroute.

Porter is a native of the town of Marblehead, the town that claims to be the birthplace of the American navy. Walking is his chief hobby. Even now Porter thinks no more of walking 30 or more miles a day through the woods and different neighboring towns. During the World war, Porter was a member of the 20th Field Artillery. He served two years in France and never faltered once during the long hikes that were prevalent during those days.

He is a magazine salesman by occupation and is known to have visited practically every college in the country during the last ten years. Porter will turn to lecturing at various points enroute.

Porter is now working during his spare time making plans for his undertaking.

The latter part of this month will see John Oliver Porter, of Danvers, starting his jaunt to Paris from New York.

"I want it understood—not by airplane, but afoot," remarked Porter. He seems to be wondering as to whether the folks back home will be calling him the "walking fool."

"Paris is my goal," declared Porter. "Just watch me!"

PHILADELPHIA POLICE CHECK MURDER STORY TOLD BY WIDOW OF SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 17. — Police authorities of this city have asked the British Admiralty and the police authorities of Tampico, Mexico, to cooperate in tracing down an alleged trail of murder which stretches back 22 years, and ended in the harbor here with the death, by suicide, of a barge captain, Juan Fernandez.

The tale of three murders, alleged to have been committed by Fernandez, was told by his widow, who said Fernandez had confessed them to her. She declared he suicided in fear of his crimes being found out by the authorities of one of the countries affected—Guatemala, Mexico, and Great Britain.

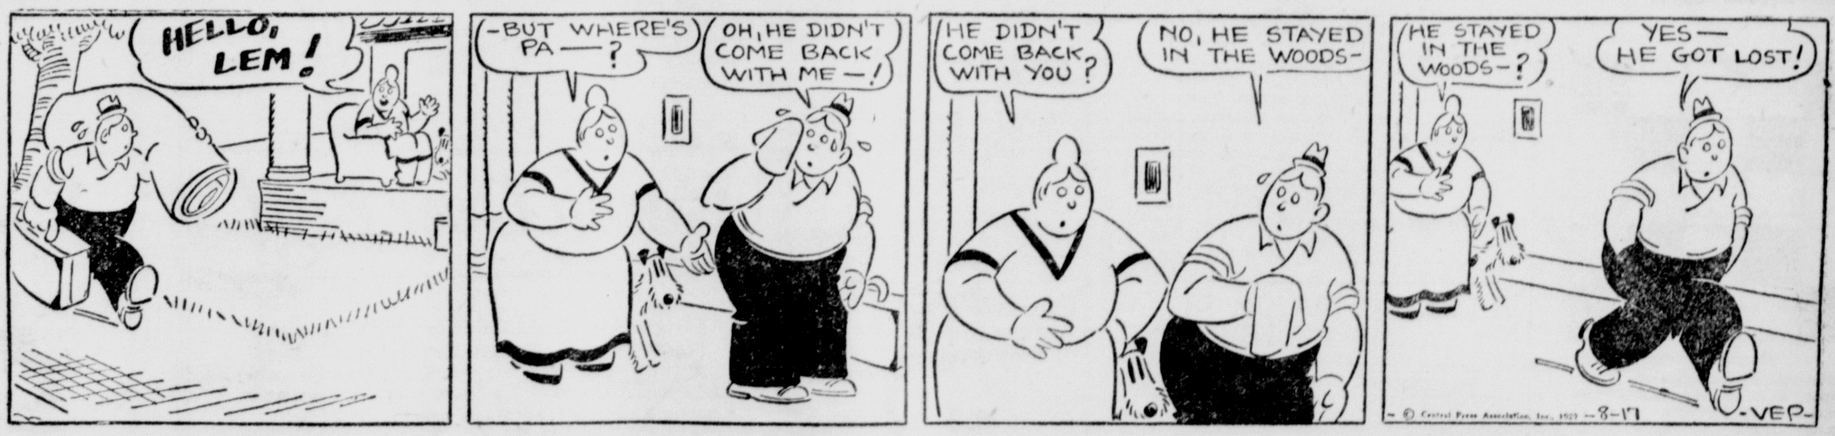

According to the widow's story, Fernandez shot and killed his brother in their home in Guatemala, 22 years ago, when Fernandez was only 11 years old. He then fled the country. In 1927, the widow asserted, Fernandez stabbed to death a man at Tampico, Mexico, during a quarrel, and then fled that country. His third murder, according to the widow's story, was committed the following year aboard a British merchant ship. She said Fernandez choked a sailor to death during a quarrel aboard the vessel, and threw the body overboard to conceal the crime.

Police are holding the widow pending a check of her story.

In 1927, the widow asserted, Fernandez stabbed to death a man at Tampico, Mexico, during a quarrel, and then fled that country. His third murder, according to the widow's story, was committed the following year aboard a British merchant ship. She said Fernandez choked a sailor to death during a quarrel aboard the vessel, and threw the body overboard to conceal the crime.

Police are holding the widow pending a check of her story.

SUPERIORS WIN NINTH STRAIGHT

Tiremakers Maintain Lead in Victory Over Turk Nash.

WITH both clubs hitting the ball hard at times, the players exhibiting plenty of fielding thrills and the outcome in doubt until practically the end of the game the Chester Superior Cords defeated Turk-Nash on Smith field yesterday, 5 to 2.

By reason of the dash displayed, the headwork manifested and the fighting spirit shown by the competing teams, the contest will stand out in local baseball annals.

James was hit harder than in any previous game in which he has worked in the City Industrial league since joining it. The same may be said for Crandall. The former was found for 11 and the latter seven safe drives. Off James two triples were made and nine singles; off Crandall was one three-bagger, two doubles and six safeties. The Turk-Nash twirler fanned five and the Chester southpaw six. Both walked one each.

Both teams scored in the first inning, Turk-Nash making one and Chester two. Both lead off men, E. Bayley and J. Evans, hit safely and subsequently scored on their first appearance at the plate.

Wilde and McConnell furnished the greatest fielding thrills of the game. The former, just after the score had been tied, 2 to 2, and Turk-Nash was on the verge of a battling rally that might win the contest, jumped into the air and with his gloved hand speared L. McMath's liner to right, a certain safe blow which, since Smittel immediately followed with a single might have ruined Chester's chances had not he landed it. On Schneidmiller's drive Wilde further thrilled the crowd by starting a double play that retired Smittel and the side.

McConnell in the next inning stopped another potential rally by Turk-Nash when, with R. Pollock on first after he had singled to right, he ran back to the cherry trees and with his gloved hand captured a long fly by Sainor. Deshler forced Pollock, Melchori to Conners, at second and J. Evans threw out W. Mundy at first.

"Sunny" Deshler put Turk-Nash in the running in the fourth when with two out he unexpectedly stretched his single to right into a double. Then Manager W. Mundy used the "grey matter" by putting himself to hit instead of J. Watson and coming through with a single to third.

This blow put Deshler on third and enabled him to score when Scullion threw low to retire James at first.

The count was 2 to 2 in the fifth. Wilde had fanned and Melchori flown to Parsons. Conners then singled to right. P. Cebula did likewise to left. Had Smittle fielded cleanly, Conners might have been retired at third. James wavered apparently here for McConnell sent the ball on the third base line, scoring both runners. He went to second on the plate throw and himself scored on Parsons' single to middle.

E. Bayley beat out a bunt in the first. L. McMath sacrificed, Crandall to Wilde. Smittle flew to P. Cebula. E. Bayley scored on a wild pitch. Schneidmiller fanned.

J. Evans singled to middle in the last of the first. Wilde sacrificed, J. Watson to R. Pollock. Melchori singled to middle, scoring J. Evans. Conners singled to left, sending Mechori home. J. Watson then threw out P. Cebula and McConnell at first.

After R. Pollock and Sainor had struck out in the fourth Deshler doubled to right. W. Mundy went in to hit for J. Watson and singled through third, thus putting Deshler on third. James missed the third strike and Scullion, essaying an assist to Wilde to retire him, threw low, giving the pitcher life and enabling Deshler to count and tie the score.

JOE MAKES AKRON MEET SEMI-FINAL

Wells Plays Akron District Golf Champ Today.

AKRON, O., Aug. 17.—Four stellar golfers from widely separated sections of Ohio battle today in the semi-final round of the Portage Country Club's invitation tournament.

John Herron, Portage star and present Akron district champion, came through his match with Dave Ogilvie of Cleveland, one up. They were even at start of the final hole. Herron then took a four to Ogilvie's five to win.

Joe Wells, of East Liverpool, former state champion, defeated Bob Johnson, the Springfield driving marvel, 2 and 1, to gain a berth in the semi-finals.

Christy Diebel of Akron, turned in a victory over Jack Munro, Portage, a former state title rival, 2 and 1.

The fourth entry in today's round is Bob Winteringer of Steubenville, the Princeton champion, who defeated E. O. Handy of Portage three and two.

Diebel meets Wintringer and Herron will battle Wells in the eighteen-hole semi-final matches. Winners of those two tussles play eighteen this afternoon.

In the second flight F. F. Dugan, Portage, is in the finals, having won from H. H. Bandy, Cleveland, in the semi-finals by default. The other semi-final match will bring J. J. McFawn, Detroit, and Dr. D. E. Carey, Zanesville, together. The winner will play Dugan for the flight title.

In the consolation play of the first flight L. C. Boles, Wooster, will play the winner of the other semi-final, consisting of O. L. Brailey, Toledo, and R. C. Garretson, Ashland.

Second flight consolation semi-final pairings are: John York, Cleveland, vs. B. H. Allen, Portage; W. T. Sisler, Portage, vs. H. C. Cook, Toledo.

AT INDIANAPOLIS—Meyer Grace, Chicago middleweight, defeated Patsy Rocco, Chicago, 10 rounds.

Kewpie Trimble, of Chicago, won over Tony Ross of Pittsburgh, in 8 rounds.

BOXING has been legal in the state of Illinois a comparatively short time.

Since the state made the gorgeous real awngray by giving the fight promoters legal right to "get away with murder," Chicago has had two 'honest-to-goodness championship battles. And in both instances the title changed hands.

Which may or may not give Gene Tunney, heavyweight king, some food for thought.

Rocky Kansas, lightweight champion, was the first king to risk his crown there after the lid was raised. They met a year ago—July 3, 1926. The affair went 10 rounds. Neither one of them tossed a haymaker during the fight. Mandell received the decision at the end of 10 rounds—and the title.

Tiger Flowers was the middleweight champion—and the first of his race to hold that title—when Chicago promoters brought him into town to meet Mickey Walker, Dec. 3, last year, in defense of the title.

The bout was suggested and engineered by Jack Kearns, managing Walker and former pilot of Jack Dempsey. The shrewd Mr. Kearns is said to have promised Flowers a return battle with Walker within 90 days should the former lose the title.

Walker won the bout—and crown—on points. There was considerable squawking. Flowers is still waiting for the return battle.

Now comes another champion of a major division to risk his crown in the Windy (from bandit bullets) City.

It's to be a 10-round affair—liable to go to the finish and be decided on points. Tunney's last battle with the former champ went the limit.

If Tunney is given to pondering such matters it may be that the reverses handed champions who preceded him there will worry him a bit.

Indianas Lose to Whippets

The Indiana Trucks bowed to the Chamberlain Whippets, 7 to 3, in a Community League clash last evening at Stop 55.

The Trucks started a rally in the seventh inning, scoring one run and had two men on with one down when the game was called on account of darkness, the score reverting to the previous inning.

MOORE'S SQUAD BEATS P. O. NINE

Avenging a previous defeat, the Moore Furniture softball club last night handed the postoffice crew a 9 to 0 drubbing in a clash on the Deidrick Hill diamond.

A home run by Holt, the Furniture nine's pitcher, featured the contest.

The two clubs will battle again this week.

NEWELL'S NEW SLAB STAR WINS

Grimm Beats Wellsville in City League Debut.

IN a contest replete with fast plays Laughlin defeated Wellsville in a well played City Industrial league contest on Nicholson field last evening, 3 to 1.

Huffman got off to a bad start and two runs were made off him. He then blanked his opponents in all but the fifth inning when one more run was made by the visitors. He fanned six and walked one.

Grimm, pitching his first game for Laughlin, struck out nine and walked two men.

In the fourth Huffman whiffed Herbert, Heckathorne and W. Watson in a row.

Rager, in left for Wellsville, had six fly catches.

Laughlin had but two assists during the entire game, one by Crawford to Sayers on G. Meyer's single to center in the fourth and the other by Sayers to Heckathorne in the first when Kibble drove to him.

G. Meyers and Lang for their respective teams had two hits each in a trio of efforts.

G. Wagner, batting for Rager in the seventh, came through with a clean hit a 1000 mark for the day.

Crawford, walking in the first, was caught napping, Huffman to G. Meyers. Webber singled to center. Herbert sent the ball over the right field fence for a double, Webber going to third. With "two and three" on him Heckathorne singled to middle, scoring both runners. The latter was caught on the throw-in as he essayed to reach second, Crawford to Litner to G. Meyers.

In the fifth Laughlin scored one more. Sayers flew to Cook. Lang doubled down the left field foul line. Grim hit a hot one between short and second, Lang scoring. Crawford and Webber flew to Rager and H. Meyers.

In the seventh Wellsville counted. G. Wagner, hitting for Rager, singled over second. He was caught off first, Grim taking the throw from Finley, missed him and he landed safely on second. Litner flew to Sayers. Huffman fanned. Kibble singled to right, scoring Wagner. Cook then fanned for the third time.

CLEANERS MEET TRUCKS TONIGHT

Initial Championship Battle to be Staged at Columbian Park to Break Existing Tie Between Clubs.

First half championship of the Community Baseball League will be determined in a series of games between the Indiana Trucks and the Skid Cleaners, the first of which will be played this evening at Columbian park.

The Trucks and Cleaners finished the first heat in a deadlock after the league moguls had decided that the season be divided in halves and, as a result, a series was determined upon to decide supremacy.

Both clubs played good ball during the first half, winning 10 games and losing four while encountering strong opposition from the six other entries in the circuit.

Tonight's game will be played at 5:45 o'clock.

The Skids have won two and lost none thus far in the second half, while the Trucks, playing three games, have dropped a couple while winning one.

The second half standing to date is:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Potters Supply	2	0	1.000
Skid's Cleaners	2	0	1.000
Sherwood	1	1	.500
Chamberlains	1	1	.500
Dixonville	1	2	.333
K. of C.	1	2	.333
Golden Stars	1	2	.333
Indiana Trucks	1	2	.333

Skid's Cleaners hammered out 11 hits and won from Dixonville, 7 to 4, last evening at Dixonville in a Community league contest.

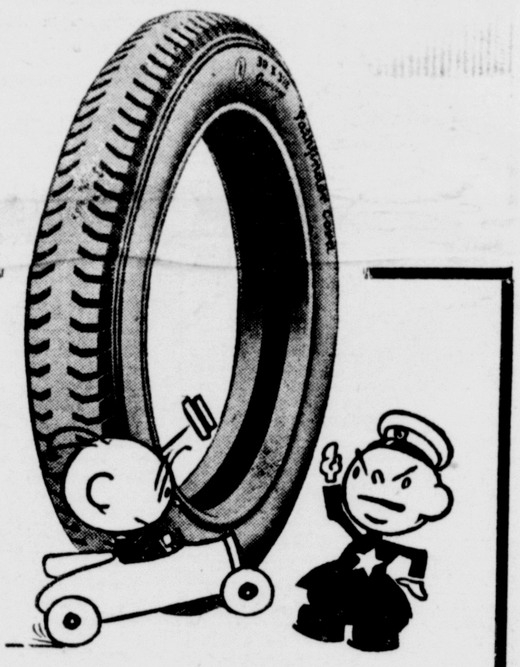

Porter gave the home club four safeties. Dailey, Cleaners' shortstop, collected three hits and a walk in four times up. In the fifth Fry went back to the woods in center to take down a long drive that looked good for a homer. Davis drove one out for a homer in the first with one man on.

Bruins Stretch Lead to Six Games as Pirates Lose to Giants; Hornsby Gets Homer.

By Less Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Baseball fans in the east, who have refused to regard the Chicago Cubs as champions, are about ready today to concede the National league pennant to the Bruins. As a result of their victory over Brooklyn, while the Pirates were losing to the Giants, McCarthy's men enjoy a lead of six games today, with the other three contenders bunched.

Charley Root turned in his 22nd victory for the Cubs, holding the Robins to five hits and whitewashing them 3 to 0.

The Giants, confident that they can overhaul the flying Cubs, won their sixth straight game, 8 to 4, when Hornsby smacked a homer with two on.

The Cardinals advanced to within one game of Pittsburgh by nosing out the Braves, 5 to 3, on Frisch's single in the eleventh. Manager Bob O'Farrell, of the Cards, made five hits.

Lester Sweetland, of the Phillies, negotiated a 5 to 3 win over the Reds. Chick Thompson stole three bases.

The Yankees chalked up their eightieth victory and increased their lead over the Senators to 13½ games as Pennock stopped the White Sox, 8 to 1. Ruth clouted his 37th homer.

The drive of the Athletics to finish in the money speeded up as the A's scalped the Indians twice, 6 to 3 and 8 to 0.

Detroit made it six wins in succession by outslugging the Red Sox, 10 to 7. Catcher Hofmann sustained a broken nose in blocking a runner.

The Senators and Browns were held idle by rain.

AT BOSTON — Jim Sacco, Boston welterweight, won decision over Sid Barbarian, Detroit, 10 rounds.

Spike Hennessy, of Waltham, Mass., won decision over Cannonball Cote, of Lewiston, Me., in six rounds.

AT LOS ANGELES—Joey Sangor, Milwaukee featherweight, outpointed Santiago Zorilla, of Panama, 10 rounds.

Pedro Amador defeated Joe Guerrero, both of Los Angeles, 6 rounds.

Newell Giants Lose To Joetown Club; Play Again Friday

Manager Bernard O'Donnell and his Giants, of Newell, went to Joetown last evening and took a defeat at the hands of Raymond Heath's Joetown Indians. O'Donnell, a veteran boxman, started the game for the Giants but gave way to Laughlin after the first inning. Owen for the Indians had the Giants under his control the entire game, fanning nine men. The Giants, a new organized team, showed lack of practice, but gave promise of improvement.

The Joetown management and fans are to be complimented on the new grounds which are located on the hill back of Joetown providing a view of Newll and East Liverpool. The same teams will meet on the Newell grounds Friday evening at 5:30.

Interest Renewed In Home Run Race

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—With Babe Ruth hitting bigger and better homers than ever before, interest was at fever heat today in the great home run derby between the king of swat and his younger rival, Lou Gehrig. The Babe's 37th homer, made yesterday, sailed clean over the right field stands in Chicago, the first ever hit over it.

Ruth is now only one homer behind Gehrig. Both are some distance behind Ruth's 1921 record, however.

Fight Results

AT SEATTLE, WASH.—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, won decision over Jock Malone, of St. Paul, 6 rounds.

Dode Bercot, of Monroe, knocked out Sailor Thode, of San Diego, in sixth round.

AT NEW YORK—George La Rocco, New York heavyweight, won the decision over Johnny Grosso in 10 rounds.

Lew Barba; New York heavyweight, won on a foul from Bernard Labloski in the second round.

Sid Angstreich, New York light heavyweight, knocked out Charley Rammel, of Austria, in the third round.

Henry Goldberg, Brooklyn, won decision over Eddie Tiernan, of Astoria.

More Trial Matches.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Trial matches held to determine the personnel of the United States Davis cup team had failed to clarify the situation today and two additional matches will be played this afternoon. Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., will oppose John Doeg, of California, in the singles, and a doubles match will be held between Richard Norris Williams and George M. Lott, of Chicago, and John Hennessy and Lewis White.

Doeg and Lott won a hard fought match from Williams and Hunter yesterday. It had been expected that Williams and Hunter, together with William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, would represent the United States in the international matches. The latter pair probably will fill the singles roles.

Beaver Falls Defeats Grays

Beaver Falls Elks, who tonight will tangle with the Chester Superior Cords at Smith Field, Chester, yesterday afternoon beat Smoky Joe Williams and the Homestead Grays, 3 to 1, at Beaver Falls, giving the O. & P. league champs thre victories over Cum Posey's outfit for the season.

Alvin Hilty, Ed. Harvey's pitching star, held the Grays to six hits. Smoky Joe fanned 10 batters but was touched between times for 10 hits. Lefty Friz, Beaver Falls first baseman, had a double and three singles in four times up.

As a result of his workout yesterday it is not likely that Hilty will do any slab work tonight at Smith Field. Herman, from the Eastern Ohio circuit, will probably pitch for the Superior Cords.

The contest will start at 5:30.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Benny Bass, Pennsylvania featherweight champion, knocked out Joey Williams, colored, in the eighth round.

AT UTICA, N. Y. — Red Herring, Utica, outpointed Tony Vaccarelli, New York, 10 rounds.

CHECK-BOOK AACCOUNT OF KLAN ACTIVITIES PREPARED BY DRAGON

THOMAS ADAMS, VINCENNES, IND., PUBLISHER, FOUND IT HARD GOING TRYING TO PROVE CORRUPTION.

VIII

By BONITA WITT

Staff Write for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

(This Story Tells How the Caged Ex-Dragon of Indiana Prepared for the Future).

While in his cell at Noblesville, Ind., waiting to be taken to Michigan City prison to serve a life sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, young Indianapolis girl, D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, prepared a check book account of his activities as "the law in Indiana." He attached notes to checks explaining for what purposes they had been used and why they had been given. Also he gathered together certain contracts which he alleges he made with Indiana officials. He boasted: "I never will serve a life sentence at Michigan City." He was gathering his evidence against the day when he felt it would serve him best. The caged ex-dragon was sharpening his claws.

This is confirmed by Floyd Christian, an attorney of Noblesville, who says: "I saw these checks. They were spread in a separate cell. It was during a call I made upon Stephenson, after his conviction. He requested me to take the checks for him, and hold them 90 days, and if he were not free then to turn them over to Prosecutor William Remy of Marion county (Indianapolis).

Refused to Take Them.

"I refused to take them unless permitted to turn them over immediately without waiting for any expected developments."

Stephenson retained the checks. And further evidence of his power came to light.

Shortly after he was taken to prison at Michigan City the state highway commission was under fire. Two of its members were under indictment, charged with disposing of surplus war materials illegally.

Thomas Adams, publisher of a newspaper at Vincennes, Ind., an advocate of good roads, and a believer in the integrity of the commissioners, brought the situation to the attention of Indiana editors at a meeting of the State Republican Editorial association. Since the railroad had been curtailing service between small towns, publishers were being forced to transport their papers in trucks. Good roads, therefore, were of importance to them. Adams was named as chairman of a committee to investigate the commission.

I went to Vincennes to hear the story of this crusading editor. I found him at his desk, a middle aged, rather large, gray-haired man. His battles to bring to light true conditions in Indiana have been hard on him. Obstacles constantly have been put nto his path. He has been called "a disgruntled old man, disappointed because he wasn't appointed United States senator, and stirring up a fuss to get even."

Nevertheless, he investigated—and startled Indiana with statements of his results.

What He Found.

He found that a "road ripper" bill, designed to change the setup of the highway commission, was traceable to Stephenson. Before it could be passed, however, Stephenson was in jail.

"From the start, I realized a conspiracy existed to overthrow the highway commission and discredit the commissioners," Adams says. "The 'road ripper' bill was framed to loot the highway commission. Stephenson now says he spent $300,000 in an effort to secure the passage of the bill.

"On every year of pavement laid, on every section of roadway, there could have been a profit," Adams asserts.

"The men indicted for stealing and selling junk, that is surplus war materials allotted to Indiana, by the federal government, were innocent. Prosecutor Remy, himself, admitted that there was no evidence against the men, and finally asked that the indictments be quashed.

U. S. Attorney General Agrees.

"United States Attorney General Sargent told me in Washington the whole affair was one of the most disgraceful situations ever brought to his attention."

Adams and the small group of men with whom he worked were astounded at the apparent intrigue which revealed itself as they worked. Hampered by persons apparently trying to hide facts. Adams kept hammering away.

Many who made revelations to him, Adams declares, were intimidated to such a degree that they were afraid to make further disclosures.

Folk feared the man in the penitentiary with the notated checks and "black boxes" hidden away somewhere. He must have smiled at his power, this man locked in prison, deprived of citizenship, as men who had been his friends and those who now were his enemies swept Adams with a barrage that all but conquered him.

"I wish I never had begun," Adams declared. "But I'm going to fight to a finish!" The battle had just begun.

"Daredevil" Babcock Coming to Chester

Loop-the-Loop Artist, Now Appearing at Cleveland, to Fill Week's Engagement at Rock Springs Park, Starting Labor Day.

Oscar V, Babcock, veteran "daredevil" loop-the-loop artist, who is now filling an engagement in connection with the Cleveland Industrial exposition, has been booked for a week's exhibition at Rock Springs park beginning with Labor Day, according to an announcement by Park Manager Charles C. Macdonald.

Babcock was to have appeared at the park earlier this season but was forced to cancel his engagement because of illnes. His exhibition, which will be free, will be given every afternoon and evening during the week beginning September 5 and ending September 10. A gorgeous fireworks display will also feature the Labor Day program at the Chester resort.

Twenty-two years in the business of looping the loop and flying the flume in what is said to be the only act of its kind is a record in the show business that few have attained.

Babcock's history as a loop bicyclist reads like a story book. He has thrilled crowds in India, Japan, China and in European countries as well, and in fact has just returned from an extensive tour in the Orient. That his act has stood the test of almost a quarter of a century's popularity is one of his best recommendations.

Riding down a steep incline 120 feet long, Babcock is shot on his bicycle into a loop that has a 12-foot break in it consisting of a section held by a set of springs that his front wheel must trip as he nears the completion of the loop. The thrill comes in watching the section swing into place as the daring rider speeds around the circle, 28 feet in diameter. It's a question of whether Babcock will reach the gap before the trap as it is called, does. Completing the loop, there is still a big gap to jump and a landing to make on another incline. But it happens fast and all within the length of the apparatus not more than 200 feet over all. From the time that Babcock leaves the 60-foot elevation until he is stopped at the end of the track by a rope barrier, five seconds have elapsed.

Babcock is a heavy set man about middle age and well-muscled from a life of athletic work. When dressed in his street clothes and talking about most any subject, he is not the sort of person one would expect to find in a thriller bicycle act.

He took up the loop-the-loop act upon the death in an accident of the man who performed it 22 years ago. Babcock was a professional bicycle rider. He has several motorcycle records to his credit and is a veteran of two six-day bicycle races in New York city.

During the Spanish-American war he qualified as an expert marksman.

"What are the feelings one experiences in looping the loop?" Returned Babcock in reply to the question.

"Well, they are pretty much varied and mostly tension. When I start down the incline it takes a second or two to pick up speed, so I relax until I enter the loop. The wind rush as I speed along tends to pull my head down and overbalance me, but that is the thing that in 22 years at the job I have learned to handle. As I near the gap the real thrill of the ride comes, because there is always the excitement of feeling the trap spring into place and of riding over it. The question is, will the springs do their duty?

"Flying-the-flume takes my attention next, and I get one landing shock and then in a thrice the other and the ride is over. Sounds easy. And is, if you've had enough practice," he smiled.

"What about the wind, you asked about, Mr. Babcock?"

"A bad puff of wind or a sudden breeze may make it harder for me to keep on the black line in the center of the incline or on the landing, and because I am traveling at lightning speed it does not take much to shift my course."

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial corbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder of tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.
